STRIFE-TORN TOWN IN PENNSYLVANIA SCENE OF KILLINGS

Shots Said To Have Come From Darkened Homes of Republican Leader and Nephew in Coal Mine Section of State.

DEMOCRATS TOOK TOWN IN 1933

Counted Out Later by Officials; Some of Injured Not Expected To Survive; Bodies Riddled.

HAZELTON, Pa., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Three persons were shot to death and 19 others, including six women, were wounded tonight when machine gun fire swept a democratic political rally at Kelayres, a mining village five miles south of here.

The crowd surged toward a brick residence from which marchers said the fire was directed. State police battled the crowd in an effort to keep it from dynamiting the house.

The democrats were swinging down Kelayres' main street, banners waving and red fire flaring.

Suddenly shots blazed out from both sides of the street, raking the marchers with a deadly cross-fire. From darkened second-floor windows of two homes, said by police to be those of Joseph Bruno, republican leader, and his nephew, Paul, came a spray of bullets.

The dead:

Frank Fiorilla, aged 65, Kelayres shot down in street.

William Forte, aged 35, McAdoo Heights, shot through head and body, died at hospital.

The riot, coming on the eve of Pennsylvania's most crucial election in years, climaxed a long period of factional political strife in the little mining village of about 600 voters.

The shooting, according to those who brought the wounded to the hospital, took place as the democratic parade marched past the home of Joseph Bruno, republican leader.

The democrats, known as the McAloose faction, won the November, 1933, election by a margin of over 100 votes on the official count, but a recount in court gave the election to the republican slate.

The reopening of the schools in September, with both sides trying to seat their teachers to the posts, found the building partially wrecked and postponement of the opening was the only measure that brought peace.

A hospital surgeon announced that Andrew Kitishion, 36, of Lofty, could not survive as his body is literally riddled from the bullets.

A list of the injured at the hospital:

Mrs. Charles Colemino, daughter of Frank Fiorilla, who was the first to die under the fire, shot in the body as she stood on the porch of her home directly opposite the Bruno brick dwelling.

William Jacoby, 31, Kelayres, one

Pretty Teacher Admits Passing Forged Check

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A pretty 23-year-old school teacher from Virginia, who told of winning high scholastic honors at four colleges, pleaded guilty in criminal court today to 12 charges of forgery and false pretenses. Sentence was deferred.

The attractive young woman, Miss Catherine Bouserman, of Penhook, Va., also admitted some 300 other similar charges upon which she was not indicted. All the charges had to do with bad checks which the young school teacher said she passed to "keep up appearance" among wealthier friends.

HUEY LONG LOSES EFFORT TO DODGE LIBEL SUIT TRIAL

Supreme Court Rules Senatorial Immunity Does Not Shield Louisianan in $500,000 Action

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The fact that Huey Long is a senator does not exempt him from standing trial in a $500,000 libel suit brought because he called a man a "scoundrel and thief of the lowest level of crookdom."

Unanimously, the supreme court ruled today that Long must stand trial on charges of libeling Samuel T. Ansell, former counsel for the senate committee which investigated the 1932 Louisiana election.

Long applied the "scoundrel and thief" appellation to Ansell after the senate committee inquired into a campaign which resulted in the election of Long's candidate, John H. Overton, as the junior senator from Louisiana.

Immunity Waived.

The "Kingfish," displeased at the way Ansell conducted the inquiry, made a speech and announced he would not claim the customary immunity. He then had pamphlets circulated containing some of his denunciations of Ansell, who sued in the District of Columbia courts for $500,000.

"Yes sir," Huey told the senate, "I do not claim any privilege from this scoundrel anywhere under God's living sun."

But the Louisiana political dictator did claim congressional immunity after Ansell's action began and he was directed to appear in court.

"Arrest" Claimed.

The legal point raised by Senator Long's four lawyers—was that he was, under the constitution—"privileged from arrest" while congress was in session and that serving papers on him in the libel suit constituted an arrest. The highest court disagreed entirely with that contention.

"Senator Long contends," Justice Brandeis said, "that article one, section six, clause one of the constitution, confers upon every member of congress, while in attendance within the district, immunity in civil cases not only from arrest, but also from service of process. Neither the senate nor the house of representatives has ever asserted such a claim in behalf of

Increase to $1,158,701 Since 1929 Is Termed 'Startling'; $63,117,033 Assets; Key Is Praised.

Atlanta's assets were listed at $63,117,033.83 in the general audit filed Monday with Mayor James L. Key by Charles J. Metz, president of the Audit Company of the South, but at the same time a stern warning was issued that the "startling increase in the floating debt, which had been increased to $1,158,701.67 since 1929," must be checked.

The report also recommends consolidation of Atlanta and Fulton county governments and stopping the "extravagance of unintelligent and unnecessary local government."

"Excessive local government is confiscating both taxpayers' property and income, gradually but inexorably," the report recites.

City books show a net floating debt of $608,701.67, according to the report, but worthless accounts totaling "at least $550,000 are carried as assets and must be added to the debt."

Mayor Key Lauded.

Mayor James L. Key is lauded for his efforts to prevent excessive expenditures in the report, which also cites the fact that Key's vetoes have been overridden continually.

"For the city to continue spending money it has not got can only result in disaster," Metz contends.

Worthless accounts should be written off annually, he holds, and also recommends a revision of the pension system based on the city's ability to pay. He recommends a study and report by an independent actuary and also by insurance companies. The city council Monday afternoon set up $750 to obtain the services of an actuary.

Saving of from $2,000 to $3,000 a year on surety bonds for about 50 employes also is recommended in the report through a blanket bond of about $100,000 covering all employes who should be bonded.

Abolition of the post of superintendent of the municipal auditorium to save $1,800 a year and placing the auditorium under the management of the superintendent of the city hall also is recommended.

California Police Move To Keep Peace at Polls

UPTON SINCLAIR (RIGHT) AND GOVERNOR MERRIAM.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Unprecedented measures to keep the California polls free of "irregularities" and possible trouble, while the voters settled the crucial fight for the governorship tomorrow were taken today by police departments, sheriffs, party watches and attorneys.

"Flying squads" of lawyers were marshalled by campaign leaders for Upton Sinclair, "epic" democratic nominee for governor, to serve persons whose right to vote might be challenged.

An officer was ordered assigned to each of the more than 3,500 polling places in Los Angeles county, center of Sinclair's primary election strength. They were ordered to stay 100 feet from the polling places "so the voters will have no thought of intimidation," extra police were ordered to all substations for possible emergency duty.

Wholesale challenging of registrants was expected in Los Angeles, where charges recently were made that as

SECRECY TO GUARD GARLAND-LINDSAY OUTCOME TODAY

Ordinary Refuses To Let Results Be Known, Though Both Candidates Ask Public Count.

NOMINEES IN FULTON WITHOUT OPPOSITION

Fulton county voters today will have no contested races to decide. Democratic nominees for county and state offices are without opposition. However, an amendment to the Georgia constitution must be voted upon state-wide. The amendment is designed to authorize Spalding county to make temporary loans between March 1 and December 1 of each year, to be repaid out of taxes.

Voting places in Atlanta, East Point, Hapeville, College Park, Fairburn, Union City, Palmetto, Roswell and Alpharetta will open at 7 a. m. and close at 6 p. m. All other Fulton county polls will open at 8 a. m. and close at 3 p. m.

The bitter-end political fight of Reuben Garland and Paul Lindsay for one of the three legislative seats in the lower house of the next general assembly will turn another corner in DeKalb county today.

But, according to DeKalb Ordinary Vess S. Morgan, when the ballot battle is over with the close of the polls tonight, no one but the election managers and clerks will know who rolled up the biggest vote.

Morgan Monday stated the count will be in secret and that no precinct workers will be permitted to give the results of the election, and he so instructed all election officials. The votes will be consolidated at noon Wednesday at the courthouse by the executive committee and then, and then only, will the people's choice be made public.

All this is notwithstanding that both Garland and Lindsay said Monday night they saw no reason for a secret count, one which Garland said is almost without precedent in Georgia elections. Lindsay told The Constitution that he had not been consulted and that he feels an immediate count in public and an announcement of the results as soon as they could be completed would instill confidence in the election.

Protests Secrecy.

"There is much interest in this election," Lindsay said, "and the public will be anxious to know the results as soon as it is possible to complete

'Generally Fair' Day Slated for Election'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The weatherman gazed nonchalantly at his complicated forecasting apparatus today and made an "abnormal" prediction for election day—almost perfect.

Charles L. Mitchell, veteran forecaster for the area east of the Mississippi, forgot that tomorrow was nation-wide ballot day when he made his first report. Once reminded, however, he said it would be "generally fair" with perhaps not a cold or rainy spot to interfere with the farm voter.

The city man, if the campaign is hot enough, usually goes to the polls rain or shine, but it's hard to get the dirt farmer to the voting booth unless Old Sol warms him up and smoothes his road.

REPUBLICANS SEEK HOUSE AND SENATE POSTS IN GEORGIA

By GLENN RAMSEY,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Republicans in mountainous north Georgia seek six legislative seats and one in the state senate in Tuesday's general election.

Independents are after two house and two senate togas in north and south Georgia.

Outside of these contests there is some interest in the efforts of B. W. Middlebrooks to defeat Congressman Emmet Owen, democrat, for re-election in the fourth Georgia district. Middlebrooks, however, is conceded by observers to have little chance.

Governor Talmadge called on all democrats in the state to cast their vote Tuesday.

"The right to cast a ballot," he said, "is a fine thing and I want Georgia democrats to exercise that privelege."

Chairman Hugh Howell, of the state democratic executive committee, previously had called on all democrats to back the party's nominees.

In many quarters in Atlanta it was predicted the general election vote would be less than one-fourth of the 280,000 ballots cast in the September democratic primary.

Under the influence of east Tennessee republicanism from across the state line, six of the state's most northern counties are to select their state representatives from among candidates of the two major parties with some independents and progressives thrown in for good measure.

Four in Pickens.

Pickens county has four candidates for the one legislative seat. Carl Darnell is the republican aspirant, W. L. Bruce and Robert L. Nix, democrats, and E. C. Perrow, independent.

The senator from the forty-first senatorial district, composed of the counties of Pickens, Gilmer and Fannin, also is to be decided between Allison S. Prince, democrat, and C. W. Kiker, republican. Under the rotation system Fannin is to elect the senator.

Union county's seat in the general assembly will be filled either by Jim Parker, democrat; J. P. Davenport, republican, or J. M. Rich, progressive.

Walter Hall, democrat, and J. E. Barnard, republican, are contesting for Towns county legislative chair.

Fannin county's house contest is between D. R. Ballew, republican, and R. T. Hampton, democrat.

There are there independents out for one senate and two legislative seats. John Beasley, of Tatnall county is being opposed for the second senatorial district chair by Roy Tillman, an independent. J. D. Mathis is

DEMOCRATS' HOLD ON BOTH HOUSES DEEMED SECURE

Administration Hopes to Retain Two-Thirds Margin in House and Win Similar Majority in Smaller Chamber.

OLD PARTY LINES ARE TO BE TESTED

Particular Interest Centering on Heated Contests in Pennsylvania and California.

By the Associated Press.

The sovereign voters—48,000,000 strong—rule today on the sway to be granted the New Deal in congress for the next two years, who shall govern 33 states and whether to repudiate prohibition in seven states.

With democratic majorities in both senate and house a foregone conclusion, the country contemplated the unprecedented possibility of one party dominating both congressional branches by two-thirds.

James A. Farley, democratic national chairman, said yesterday the story would be 1932 all over again.

Roosevelt Tide.

"A Roosevelt tide is running full in this country that will not be denied," were his words.

The republican leadership, predicting reversals rather than re-enforcement for the New Deal, already was looking beyond today's balloting to the 1936 campaign for more lasting answers to the issues raised in the one just over.

A great unknown factor, potentially of mighty bearing two years hence, was the extent to which the old party lines had been disrupted. Returns were awaited to tell.

Centers of Interest.

Especially were Pennsylvania and California watched. As campaigning climaxed, the New Deal high command concentrated the move on the one big state that went for Hoover. For Pennsylvania to place Joseph H. Guffey in the senate seat of David A. Reed would be hailed as an ominous portent for the G. O. P. Not since the Civil War has Pennsylvania had a democratic senator.

Upton Sinclair, with his socialistic background and his "end poverty" candidacy for the California governorship on the democratic ticket, accounted for the attention focused on the Golden Bear state. Passions aroused by the campaign, dire predictions of what would happen should Sinclair either win or lose, and the in-and-out attitude toward him by the national administration and democratic leaders—all this made for such a mix-up that the contest in some sections received more notice even than national aspects.

120,000 Polling Places.

From dawn in the east until dusk has settled over the Pacific, both the national and local answers are being written in 120,000 polling places.

The house membership is being filled ogt to 435, two democrats and one republican having been selected in Maine in September along with re-election of Senator Hale, republican. Thirty-four more senators are being chosen now to deal with the mammoth relief, budgetary, social insurance and other problems confronting the session that starts January 3.

Now holding only 114 seats, the republicans have to hold those and pick up 32 more to shut the democrats off from two-thirds there. Chairman Fletcher has predicted a gain of 60 to 70 seats, while Farley said there would be no material alteration in

LEAGUE STUDIES JAP PACIFIC FORTS

Calls Upon Nippon To Explain Fortifications in Mandated Islands.

GENEVA, Nov. 5.—(UP)—Japan summarily was called upon today to give a "satisfactory explanation" of her expenditure of large sums of money on harbors and airports of islands controlled by Tokyo under mandate from the League of Nations.

Members of the League's mandates commission insisted that the Japanese reply to charges that the improvements are in the nature of fortifications of these islands lying between Hawaii and the Philippines. Under terms of the mandate, Japan is not allowed to fortify the islands, which formerly belonged to Germany.

Nobubumi Ito, Japanese delegate, was closely questioned concerning the harbor improvements. He deprecated reports that they constituted fortifying the islands and insisted the harbor construction projects were necessary because it was essential to permit vessels of 3,000 tons or more to enter the ports. Smaller ships, he said, could not navigate the frequently high seas in the vicinity of the islands, and the harbors had to be made deep enough to accommodate larger ships to develop trade.

Want General Use.

Delegates during the tense session wanted to know why Japan gave subsidies for airports in the south seas and why these airports should not be open to aviators of all countries. They also asked why destroyers of all countries were not allowed to use the new harbors, and thus quiet old

WOMAN SUCCUMBS TO PISTOL WOUNDS

Miss Mae Newberry Dies at Grady; Gentry Reported Improved.

Miss Mae Newberry, shot in Jones er in the home of James L. Lindsay, 76, retired locomotive engineer, who was shot and killed late Friday in his home, 466 Jones avenue, died at 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon from a pistol wound in her left breast.

Miss Newberry, according to police reports, was shot by George Gentry, 43, who also lived in the Lindsay home, when he commanded her not to open the door when Patrolman R. E. Floyd, who had been summoned to the house by neighbors, knocked. The bullet fired by Gentry, entered Miss Newberry's left breast, passed through her body and grazed the policeman's head.

Grady hospital attendants have held out little hope for Miss Newberry's recovery, as it was stated that she was bleeding internally. She rallied for a short time after a blood transfusion performed Saturday, but she began to decline rapidly Sunday.

Gentry, who was shot twice by Patrolman Floyd in a duel in the home after Lindsay had been killed and Miss Newberry fatally wounded, was in a critical condition at Grady hospital Monday, though he was reported to be improving following an operation on the front of his skull when bone fragments were removed.

Though considered in a precarious condition early Sunday morning, Gentry attempted to escape from the hos-

COURT DISMISSES FIGHT ON BEER TAX

Petition Held 'Premature' as No Collection Efforts Yet Made.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Georgia beer dealers still don't know where they stand on the $1,000 special tax.

Local dealers brought action in federal district court in an effort to prevent Collector of Internal Revenue W. E. Page from collecting the tax imposed on dealers in dry states under an old federal law.

Today Federal Judge W. H. Barrett held the action was "premature" and dismissed the petition for a restraining order, because the government had made no effort to collect the tax.

The judge said no issues were decided and none were considered, his decision being based solely on the fact that no effort had been made to collect.

Judge Barrett said until the government does move to obtain the levy the dealers have nothing on which to base a suit.

In this application for an injunction the dealers based their appeal on the grounds that the tax was unconstitutional in that it was not uniform and that it was a penalty.

Attorneys in the case said it was now "the government's move," but that they were considering appealing in an effort to force the government either to abandon all attempts at collection or to take some action which will clear the way for a court decision on all the questions involved.

Clint W. Hager, of Atlanta, attorney for a group of brewers and beer dealers, said in Atlanta Monday night that a petition for injunction against Page was withdrawn in Atlanta some time ago for the same reason given by Judge Barrett.

"But the moment a move is made to collect this tax from beer dealers in Atlanta we will refile the injunction plea," he asserted. He said the matter is up to the government now, but that a determined fight will be made against the tax.

Just what action the government contemplates was not immediately learned as Page was absent from his office in Atlanta and his assistants said they were unable to speak for him.

ISSUANCE OF SCRIP VOTED BY COUNCIL

Paper Authorized for November, December Salaries; Order New Autos.

Issuance of scrip for November and December salaries of nearly 4,000 municipal employes and purchase of $34,000 worth of new automotive equipment on a lease-rental basis were voted by city council Monday afternoon. The body considered many measures but failed to approve any major legislation.

Offers for purchase of $600,000 worth of 1934 tax fi. fas. were before the council but went back to the finance committee for consideration.

The scrip issue will be for approximately $650,000, if it is made for the entire two months, according to B. Graham West, city comptroller. School employes Monday were paid the amount due them for November 5 and other city employes will draw their regular half-month pay today, West said. The total pay roll is approximately $200,000.

Aid of Solicitor-General John A. Boykin was sought by council Monday afternoon in its drive to close the curb market at the intersection of Washington street and Trinity avenue.

Councilman Max M. Cuba, of the second ward, was joined by other second ward representatives and the third ward delegation in council in obtaining sanction to a resolution urging the city attorney and Boykin to act to close the market. It recently was hit as a public menace in grand jury recommendations which characterized it as a cess pool for breeding of crime and lawlessness.

Other Action Taken.

Among other major actions of council were the following:

1. Approved payment of taxes by Georgia Baptist hospital and St. Joseph's infirmary on 50 per cent of the assessment and of other hospitals on 75 per cent of the assessment. The aldermanic board, however, refused to concur in the measure because it wished Georgia Baptist and St. Joseph's to pay on a basis of 25 per cent of the assessment.

2. Sent to the ordinance committee a proposal by Councilman Ed Almand, third ward, to set up the same conditions for awarding municipal

Army Air Officer Is Killed in Crash

GALVESTON, Texas, Nov. 5.—(AP) Lieutenant Colonel Horace M. Hickam, commanding officer of the third attack group and Fort Crockett, was killed tonight as his A-12 attack plane nosed over on making a landing at the Fort Crockett airdrome.

Colonel Hickam was rushed to the United States marine hospital, but was pronounced dead on arrival there. He was ranking officer in the army air corps.

Colonel Hickam was alone when the accident happened. A board of inquiry will determine the reason for the mishap.

A native of Spencer, Ind., Colonel Hickam was a graduate of virtually all official military institutions, including the war college. He served as commanding officer of the central zone during the operation of the air mail under government service.

1,834 Georgia Students Will Get FERA Aid

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Each month this winter, the FERA will set aside $1,414,940 to aid needy students in colleges and universities.

They will have to work for it in "socially-desirable" projects on and off the campus such as research, clerical, library and laboratory activities; or education, health and welfare enterprises.

The maximum a student may earn will be $20 a month but the average will be nearer $15.

Relief officials said today they expected heir program this year to reach 94,331 young men and women, picked by college presidents, compared with 66,000 last spring.

The number of colleges and universities, the maximum number of students they may aid with federal funds and the maximum allotment the state emergency relief administrations may make to the colleges and universities each month during the present college year include Georgia with 47 colleges and universities at which 1,834 students may be aided with $27,510 a month.

GIRL SCOUTS TO DIVIDE INTO THREE DISTRICTS

Better Contact Expected to Result From Plan; Board Meets Wednesday.

Plans for dividing the Atlanta Girl Scout organization into three separate districts under the direction of the central council will get under way at a meeting of the Atlanta council at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at Girl Scout headquarters.

Better contact between the young girls of the city and the Girl Scout organization will be the result of the new plan, in the opinion of Miss Ray Mitchell and Miss Kathryn Park, members of the national field staff visiting Atlanta. The two Scout executives will be in the city for the next 10 days for the purpose of establishing commissions for the new districts and enlisting more Scout leaders.

The districts are to be designated as the North Atlanta, the Druid Hills and Decatur, and the West End districts. The commission for each district is to be composed of women of that particular part of the city, Miss Mitchell said, with a member of the central council acting as chairman.

"The present enrollment of Girl Scouts in Atlanta is only about 1,000 at present—hardly a third of what it should be," said Miss Mitchell. "By the new plan we intend to increase the membership to two or three thousand. Atlanta has just outgrown the old organization with its one central board. However efficient it might be, it cannot keep up with the growth of the city. But the division of the city into districts should allow us to contact the thousands of girls we are now missing."

Mrs. Albert S. Adams, Girl Scout commissioner of Atlanta, and Miss Lucile Cannon, Girl Scout executive, are working in co-operation with Miss Mitchell and Miss Parks to put over the new plan.

Eggs, Tomatoes Tossed At Coast Co-Ed Speaker

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 5.—(AP) Eggs and tomatoes were hurled at a co-ed speaker today at a University of California student protest meeting directed against suspension of five students at the University of California at Los Angeles for "radicalism."

More than 2,000 students, most of them apparently curious observers, were attracted to the meeting. Boos and missiles came from a group of about 50 men.

The interruption reduced to tears Ruth Moore, a girl speaker. She was not hit directly, but an egg splattered above her and splashed down on her head.

4 Killed, 3 Escape In Train Collision

CLINTON, Mass., Nov. 5.—(UP) Four railroad men were killed and three others escaped by jumping when a speeding freight train of the Boston & Maine railroad, hauled by two locomotives, was in collision with an unattached locomotive in dense fog here today.

The crash occurred half a mile north of Clinton station when the double-header, pulling 84 cars of Aroostook county potatoes from Portland, Maine, to Worcester, rammed the single locomotive as it backed from a roundhouse preparatory to picking up a commuters' train. A danger signal apparently was obscured by the fog.

The dead were Engineer Charles S. Winslow, 55, of Lowell; Fireman A. T. (Jack) Mason, of Hudson, N. H., and Trainman Allston G. Colby, of Rochester, N. H., comprising the crew of the freight's front locomotive, and William H. Moore, of Clinton, engineer of the light locomotive.

Man and Woman Hurt In Automobile Crash

A young man and woman, both seriously injured, were admitted to Grady hospital early Monday night, the man unconscious and the woman refusing to reveal the details of the accident in which they were hurt beyond telling hospital attendants the accident occurred "down the road from Jonesboro." Sheriff Camp, of Clayton county, said he had not heard of any accident in the county.

The woman, who though thought to be suffering from internal injuries when admitted to the hospital, was conscious, said the man's name was Thomas F. Wilson, 22, of 548 Central avenue, and that her name was Mrs. Josephine Coggins, 22, of 499 Highland avenue, N. E., later telling Hospital Patrolman H. C. Miller that her correct name was Sikes.

Disabled American Veterans, Betty Harrison Chapter No. 1, will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the mahogany room of the Ansley hotel to discuss matters pertaining to the welfare of veterans, L. L. Hargrove, commander, announced Monday.

Hailed before United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith, Louis Mooney and Leonard Mann, of Atlanta, were placed under bond of $500 each for violation of the federal revenue law in hauling unbonded whisky, pending grand jury investigation.

"Employment Insurance" will be the subject of a discussion at the Public Speakers' Club of the Atlanta School of Oratory and Expression to be held at the Wesley Memorial church at 6 o'clock tonight. The public is invited.

Coin collectors and the general public are invited to attend the meeting of the Atlanta Coin Club at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Y. M. C. A. "American Colonial Coins," "The Coins of India" and "Inflation in Old Sweden" will be the subjects under discussion.

Kle Club will meet for luncheon and bridge at Sterchi's at 11:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. The proceeds will be given to the club's Christmas charity fund.

Melvin Kennedy, of the New Orleans Item-Tribune, left Atlanta by plane Monday, accompanied by Mrs. Kennedy, to cover the Colgate-Tulane football game in New York. He arrived in the city Sunday and was a guest of Collins Bird at the Robert Fulton hotel.

Charles W. Brannon, 27, of 820 Warren avenue, N. W., was treated for minor knife wounds about his hands and arms Monday at Grady hospital. He told police that his car collided with another at a filling station on Gordon road and that the driver of the other machine jumped out, began an argument, and slashed him with the knife. The man drove away when Mrs. Brannon came to his rascue, Brannon said.

Jimmy Sullivan, 21, of a Rawson street address, was arrested Monday night at Hightower and Gordon roads by County Policemen E. W. Wilson and H. B. Carroll and charged with violating the state prohibition law. He was driving a truck, officers said, which carried 150 gallons of corn whisky. The truck and whisky were confiscated. Sullivan posted a $300 bond at Fulton tower.

Charles Theros, of 315 Washington street, reported to police that early Monday night he was held up on Bell street near Taylor street by a negro man and a woman. The man, he reported, held a knife at his throat while the woman tok his overcoat and rifled his pockets of five dollars.

Fire which broke out in the basement of the home of J. E. Ivie, 1121 Woodland avenue, S. E., Monday afternoon, gained considerable headway and caused a great deal of damage before it was extinguished, a report to the police stated.

New Yeast Vitamin Compound Now Bringing Rehewed Health to Thousands.

Give yourself a fair chance to recover from such ailments as underweight, jagged nerves, intestinal headaches, pimply skin, constipation, loss of energy, with Thor's Vitamin B Compound, the new yeast vitamin compound, known and praised by thousands all over the country, who have used it with splendid results. Read what some of them say:

"My system seemed to be chocked full of toxic poison and I suffered no end from stomach trouble, indigestion, nervousness. Sleep was not restful and I woke too tired to cover my beat," says Officer J. M. S. of Kokomo, Ind., "Nothing seemed to reach my troubles until I tried Thor's Vitamin B Compound which put me on the road to recovery almost immediately. Today my digestion is perfect; my bowels are regular and my sleep is sound and restful. I feel my old-time self in every way and can't say too much for Thor's Vitamin B Compound."

"Becoming all rundown and weak with a bad, stubborn stomach trouble, I gave your yeast vitamin compound a trial and it, undoubtedly, did me a great deal of good," writes Mrs. J. M. H., of Luray, Va.

Get a bottle of Thor's Vitamin B Compound, only 60c, from your druggist, and if you do not think you are on the road to recovery after taking one bottle, ask for your money back. (adv.)

LINER'S OFFICERS BEGIN DEFENSES

Morro Castle Catastrophe Again Aired Before Navigation Board.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Captain William F. Warms and four ranking officers of the Morro Castle opened their defense today against charges of negligence in the disaster that cost 134 lives when the Ward liner was swept by fire off the New Jersey coast last September.

Before two inspectors of the steamboat inspection service of the department of commerce they heard their recital of events contradicted by their own chief radio officer, George W. Rogers. The trial is for revocation of their licenses, the hard-earned "ticket" that is a mariner's livelihood.

Inspectors Alva R. Chapman and Henry L. Colgen questioned the witnesses in the customs house. A federal grand jury inquiry into the disaster, which was to have resumed today, was put over until Thursday because the same witnesses are to be called in both proceedings.

Hon. N. L. Gillis Jr. Passes at Soperton

SOPERTON, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Hon. N. L. Gillis Jr., 39, ordinary of Treutlen county, died suddenly at 10 o'clock tonight following an attack of the heart. He had been in robust health.

Mr. Gillis, a member of the most prominent family in this sections, was a son of the late N. L. Gillis, ordinary for many years, and creator of Treutlen county. He was a graduate of the University of Georgia and for 10 years served as mayor of Soperton.

When his father died a few years ago, Mr. Gillis was a member of the legislature from this county. He resigned this post to fill the unexpired term as ordinary, and later was elected by the people.

Mr. Gillis is survived by his wife, who was Miss Janiebell Perry, of Alagama; three children, Longenia, Neil Lee and Kennon; one brother, Jim L. Gillis, and three sisters, Mrs. Jim Peterson, Miss Kate Gillis and Miss Annie May Gillis.

Funeral arrangements had not been made tonight.

Tetrazzini Drops Plan To Prosecute Husband

ROME, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Madame Luisa Tetrazzini, opera diva, today withdrew her charges of extortion against her young husband, Pietro Vernati.

When the case came to trial, the prosecution stated that Vernati, instead of mulcting the singer, as hed been alleged, tried to save her fortune. The judge acquitted Vernati.

The husband himself has been trying for many months to place Madame Tetrazzini's financial affairs in the hands of a trustee.

Army Policies Are Discussed Before Aviation Commission

By GALDSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Entering the national defense phase of its comprehensive inquiry into American air problems, the federal aviation commission today went into executive session to hear confidential war department policies discussed by high officials of the army general staff.

Returning to Washington this morning after a brief visit to Atlanta, Chairman Clark Howell, of the commission, announced that most of the hearings for the remainder of the month would be executive in character and therefore behind closed doors. All previous hearings, dealing with commercial phases of the subject, have been open. Proceedings of the commission this week will be given over to war department representatives, who will be followed next week by high naval officials.

Secret Testimony.

Only a brief summary of today's secret testimony was given out by the commission at the close of the hearings. It was announced that Brigider General Charles E. Kilbourne, assistant chief of staff, who is assigned to the war plans division, headed the list of witnesses heard with a presentation of the general staff view of the utilization of the general headquarters air force as organized under the existing war department policies. Previously the Howell board was presented with a summary of war department national defense policies as submitted in a brief by Secretary of War Dern.

General Kilbourne then proceeded to discuss the considerations which had led to the adoption of the present approved air corps strength. He covered the international situation, it was said, the possible lines of attack upon the United States and its posessions with special reference to the amount of aviation that could be developed against any strategic area and our own requirements to meet such operations. He concluded by submitting to the commission a tabulation of aircraft of different types and the assignment of these aircraft.

General Kilbourne was followed by Colonel Irving J. Phillipson, who explained to the commission the system of the war department budget, with special reference to the estimates for aviation. He gave a summary of the appropriations for aviation since the passage of the air corps act of 1926.

Another General.

In the afternoon Brigider General A. T. Smith, assistant chief of staff, intelligence division, gave testimony as to the development of aviation in foreign countries. It was brought out in his testimony, the commission revealed, that none of these nations has curtailed in any way its support of land and sea forces, though all have stressed the development of aviation. It was shown that the apparent failure of the disarmament conference had led to some nations preparing programs for an increased strength in aviation. The greater part of General Smith's testimony was on the attitude of the several governments toward the aviation industry, the air transport companies and private flying. He brought out the fact that there was a very considerable subsidy by the nations discussed, of all these activities.

Continuing its executive sessions the commission tomorrow will hear Brigider General O. Westover, assistant chief of the army air corps' in a discussion of air corps problems.

Broad problems of national defense as well as plans for development of commercial aviation will be treated by the commission in its report to congress at the end of the inquiry.

contracts in Atlanta as are recognized by the United States department of labor.

3. Referred to the police committee ordinances by Councilman Joseph E. Berman to make Pryor and Forsyth streets one-way thoroughfares and to eliminate certain downtown stop signs.

4. Sent to the tax committee a proposal to eliminate the $100 annual license tax on sale of 3.2 beer and substitute a 1-2-cent tax levy a bottle.

Underpass Sought.

5. Created a special council committee composed of the fifth ward delegation and aldermen from the sixth, seventh and eighth wards to attempt to procure an underpass at the railway crossing at Marietta street and North avenue. Alderman James E. Bowden was author.

6. Voted to accept deeds to land tracts lying to the west of the Bobby Jones golf course adjacent to property now owned by the city. The new grants will be used for establishment of a memorial park. About 100 acres will accrue to the city under the present plans.

7. Voted to allow city employes to celebrate Armistice Day next Monday on motion of Alderman G. Everett Millican.

8. Approved a proposal by Alderman I. Gloer Hailey to take from the police department the duty of enforcing the ordinances regulating inoculation of dogs and to place it under the health department.

9. Heard Mrs. A. L. Bowden, president of the Kirkwood P.-T. A., plead for establishment of a branch library in the twelfth ward and sent the appeal to the 1935 finance committee with a favorable recommendation. A similar request for the eleventh ward also was sent to the 1935 finance committee at the insistence of Councilman George B. Lyle and other eleventh ward members.

pital and eluded his room nurse and corridor nurse before being seen and captured by Hospital Patrolman J. H. Smith. A guard was maintained over him Sunday, but with the placing of a heavy cast on his right shoulder and arm, it was believed that a guard would be unnecessary as hospital attendants did not think he could get out of his bed with the heavy cast.

Gentry again surprised hospital attendants early Monday night, however, when it was discovered that he could stand and walk around his room. Police Captain A. J. Holcombe assigned Patrolman S. L. Holman to guard the wounded man.

Miss Newberry is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Newberry; four sisters, Mrs. J. W. Disharoon and Mrs. Frank Tracy, of Cleveland, Tenn.; Miss Viola Newberry, of Blue Ridge, Ga., and Mrs. R. C. Pickle, of Etowah, Tenn., and two brothers, H. C. Newberry, of Etowah, Tenn., and Claude C. Newberry, of Blue Ridge. The body will be taken this afternoon by Harry G. Poole to Etowah, Tenn., for funeral services and burial.

SLAYER NAMED EXECUTOR IN J. M. LINDSAY'S WILL

In the will of James M. Lindsay, aged cripple slain Friday night, the man who fired the fatal bullet is named as executor and guardian of the 10-year-old Lorraine Lindsay, who saw George Gentry fire the shot which ended the life of her foster-father.

The fact that Gentry had been entrusted with execution of Lindsay's will and the guardianship of the child was revealed Monday by Paul L. Lindsay, attorney, a cousin of the murdered man.

Lindsay said that he will file his cousin's will for probate today in the ordinary's office and will ask that a guardian be appointed in Gentry's stead. The slain man's estate probably exceeds $10,000, the attorney said, and the child is named as chief beneficiary.

Motorcycle Squad Makes 548 Cases in October

The motorcycle squad of the Atlanta police department, commanded by Lieutenant Reggie McLean, during the month of October made a total of 548 cases, as result of which fines aggregating $3,843 were collected.

Of the 548 cases made, 193 were for speeding, 90 for failing to stop at stop signs, 72 for improper lights, 46 for going through red lights and 43 for drunken driving.

Lieutenant McLean stated that inclement weather and illness of members of his squad materially reduced the month's record.

LAST SERVICES TODAY FOR JAMES E. RABUN

Funeral services for James Earl Rabun, 30, of 731 Ashby street, S. W., killed by an automobile Sunday afternoon as he attempted to flag a motorist near Canton, will be conducted at 10 o'clock this morning at the Bellwood Baptist church with the Rev. W. S. Pruitt officiating. Burial will be in the Holly Springs cemetery, in Cobb county.

Mr. Rabun had been visiting his mother at Canton and had started back to Atlanta on the highway and when struck he was in the middle of the road attempting to flag down a car. The motorist swerved and Mr. Rabun dodged in the same direction. Police who investigated declared the accident unavoidable.

U. S. Officials To Take Part In Gainesville P. O. Ceremony

Farley, Branch, Robert and Moffett Will Visit Atlanta After Building Cornerstone Is Laid.

A party of national figures, headed by Postmaster-General James A. Farley, and including also Assistant Postmaster-General Harllee Branch, L. W. Robert Jr., assistant secretary of the treasury, and James Moffett, United States housing administrator, will come to Georgia November 28 to participate in the ceremonies attendant to the laying of the cornerstone at Gainesville's new federal building, and will then proceed to Atlanta by way of Buford, Edgar Dunlap, RFC representative in Georgia, announced late Monday.

The governmental dignitaries, with the possible exception of Mr. Moffett, are well known in Atlanta, both Mr. Branch and Mr. Robert being native Atlantans, and Mr. Farley well known because of his frequent visits here. They will leave Washington by special car November 27.

The entire city of Gainesville will turn out for the ceremonies and to pay homage to Postmaster-General Farley and his associates, Mr. Dunlap said. The party will be met in Gainesville at the railroad station by a group of Riverside Military Academy cadets and will be escorted to the Dixie Hunt hotel, where, following the cornerstone laying, a luncheon honoring Major John S. Cohen, national executive democratic committeeman, and Congressman John S. Wood, from the ninth Georgia district, will be given.

Farley to Have Escort.

Student bodies of the Riverside Military Academy, Brenau College and Gainesville public schools will be released from school for the day. Postmaster-General Farley will have as his special guard the famous organization of deputy sheriffs known as the "Hall County Black Hats."

Ceremonies attendant to the laying of the cornerstone will begin at 11:30 o'clock in the morning and with Mr. Dunlap as master of ceremonies, and in that capacity will introduce the distinguished guests. Major Cohen will introduce Postmaster-General Farley, who will make the formal address of dedication. J. E. Palmour Jr., Gainesville city attorney, will accept the new five-story building in behalf of the city. The Riverside Military Academy band will furnish the music for the ceremonies.

Following the ceremonies the city will tender the luncheon honoring Major Cohen and Congressman Wood in appreciation of the efforts to obtain immediate construction of the building through which funds had been appropriated by the government through the efforts of former Congressman Thomas M. Bell, Senator Walter F. George and the late Senator W. J. Harris.

The distinguished guests will be welcomed in Gainesville by Senator George and Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. and the entire Georgia congressional delegation, Mr. Dunlap said, as well as judges of the United States district court and the executives of the various governmental agencies in the state.

Hardy to Preside.

Albert S. Hardy Sr., editor and publisher of the Gainesville News, who for 14 years was postmaster at Gainesville, will preside at the luncheon at which speeches will be made by Senators George and Russell, to which Major Cohen and Congressman Wood will respond.

Mr. Dunlap stated that arrangements are being completed to have the speeches of Mr. Farley and Senators George and Russell broadcast over the principal radio stations of the state.

Following the luncheon, he said, the official party will go by automobile from Gainesville to Buford, where the members will be the guests of Bona, John and Victor Allen for a short time, following which visit the party will proceed to Atlanta, where, after a brief stop, they will continue on to Warm Springs.

Members of the Gainesville committee handling the arrangements are as follows: George Moore, mayor of Gainesville; Perino Davis, chairman of the board of commissioners of Hall county; Marion T. Grimes, president of the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce; Walton Jackson, president, Gainesville Rotary Club; H. C. Hosch, commander, Gainesville post, American Legion, and chairman of the Hall county democratic executive committee; E. E. Kimbro Jr., president, Gainesville Kiwanis Club, Mr. Hardy and Mr. Dunlap.

How is one to know when Glasses are needed?

Nature provides many tell-tale signs to forewarn one of impending eye trouble. But most people are prone to pass them lightly because the symptoms are not acute.

Discomfort experienced after reading for a considerable length of time is one of the most common signals that all is not well in the optic region. Frequent headache is another. Eyestrain is indicated in a number of ways.

If one but realized the permanent harm that often results from postponing an examination of the eyes, there would be far less impairment of the vision.

Lottery Violators To Get Gang Terms

Following the recommendation of the Fulton county grand jury made last Friday, Judge Jesse M. Wood issued a warning Monday in city criminal court that all lottery offenders arrested henceforth will be given chain gang sentences without the privilege of paying a fine.

Four first offenders were given $50 fines, and two check-up men were fined $75. Lillian Bohannon, negro woman, was given three months straight on a lottery charge, and an additional nine months for assaulting Deputy Sheriff J. W. Hopkins with crockery and other missiles when she was arrested.

The grand jury in its presentments pointed out that it is estimated that the lottery operators are garnering $25,000 daily from Atlanta homes, voiced the opinion that a vast majority of the homes have contributed to the racket and deplored the fact that many persons who consider themselves of the best class of citizenry do not hesitate to indulge in the "number game."

STUDENTS HEAR TALKS BY HAMILTON HOLT

Hamilton Holt, president of Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla., told students at Georgia Military Academy, Washington Seminary, and Girls' High school Monday that "many educational crimes today are done in the name of research." He told of useless experiments that have been carried on by prominent educators, and stated that revolutionary changes will be forthcoming in the higher education field.

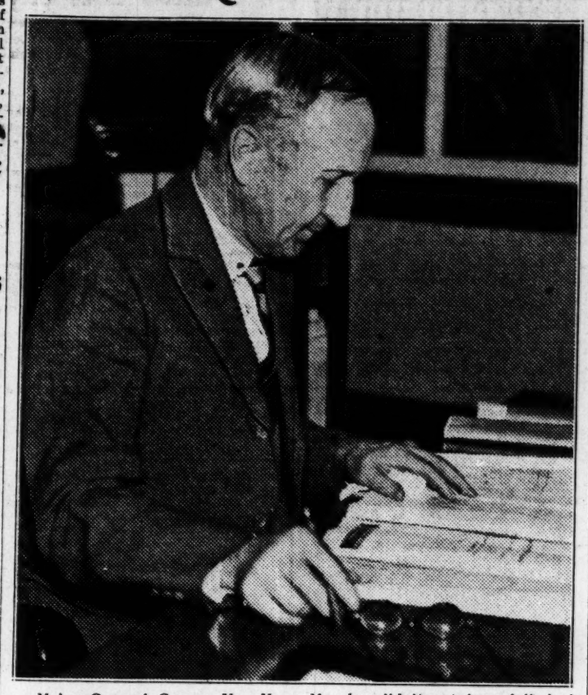

He said that the mass system of education, of large classes, is being dispensed with by leading educational institutions and that smaller classes in which the students ask questions of the professors are in line with projected improvements in the system. Under the new plan, he said, the students would take the initiative and would be seeking information instead of having it forced on them.

FHA OFFICIAL IS HERE FOR CONFERENCE TODAY

John Robert Waller, prominent lawyer and banker of Bethesda, Md., and special representative of the federal housing administration, will arrive in Atlanta this morning to launch his state-wide tour to conduct meetings with local campaign committees of the better housing campaign.

He will speak in Columbus tonight, in Macon Wednesday night, in Athens Thursday noon, and that night in Augusta. Friday noon he will address the Savannah committee and Friday night the Brunswick committee. He will complete the tour by speaking Saturday afternoon at Waycross and at Thomasville Saturday night.

4th Corps Getting Settled In New Quarters in Atlanta

Major General George Van Horn Moseley didn't get in a full day's work Monday in his new headquarters on the fifth floor of the old post-office building, what with moving, hanging pictures and all, but here the fourth corps area commander is at his desk and it looks shipshape, although the general had been in his new offices less than two hours when the picture was taken. Staff photo by George Cornett.

Moving day for the army is bringing a military atmosphere to the old postoffice building as Major General George Van Horn Moseley and his fourth corps area staff engage in getting things ship-shape in their new offices on the fifth floor of the building.

The fourth corps area offices occupy the entire fifth floor of the federal building. Extensive alterations and repairs have consumed the past month in preparation for moving the offices from Fort McPherson. Office work already is being carried on in the new location and the staff expects to be completely settled in its new quarters by Thursday.

Besides General Moseley, commanding general of the area, the postoffice building houses the offices of Captain E. C. Bomar and Captain H. L. Fuller, aidesdecamp; Colonel Lorenzo D. Gasser, chief of staff; Major R. M. Howell, of the military intelligence department; Lieutenant Colonel R. R. Glass, planning and training department; Colonel T. C. Musgrave, supply and transportation; Colonel W. T. Bates, adjutant general; Colonel W. H. Noble, quartermaster; Colonel L. S. Morey, finance officer; Colonel W. N. Bispham, surgeon; Lieutenant Colonel A. M. Burdett, judge advocate; Major H. L. Mumma, inspector; Major E. O. Sandlin, C. C. C. officer; Colonel S. F. Dallam, officer in charge of organized reserves, and Lieutenant Colonel B. M. Bailey, officer in charge of national guard.

Wherry Talks of Georgia Flowers In Opening 'Conservation Week'

Dr. Edgar T. Wherry, of the botany department of the University of Pennsylvania, Monday afternoon, at Rich's tea room, addressed 300 members of the Garden Club of Georgia on "Some Notable Wild Flowers of Georgia."

The occasion marked the opening of "Conservation Week," proclaimed for this week by Governor Eugene Talmadge. Mrs. Hayes Hubbard McHatton, president of the Garden Club, read the governor's proclamation, as well as a letter from President Franklin D. Roosevelt's secretary, expressing the president's interest in conservation and the efforts of the Georgia organization.

Mrs. McHatton presided at the meeting while the first speaker, Dr. Charles H. Herty, of Savannah, was introduced by Mrs. Oscar McKenzie, conservation chairman of the Garden Club.

Dr. Herty told something of his work in making paper pulp from Georgia pine and explained his interest in conservation. He urged the club to push its work to prevent ground fires, saying that in saving the wild flowers from the fire menace they are also saving the young pine which grow among them.

McHatton Introduces Speaker.

Mr. McHatton, who occupies the chair of horticulture at the University of Georgia, introduced Dr. Wherry.

Dr. Wherry used many photographic slides illustrating his talk on Georgia wild flowers. The slides, he explained, he had taken himself on his many visits to various sections of the state in search of the innumerable interesting and indigenous plants and wild flowers found on Georgia's soil. He had also colored the slides himself in order, he said, to secure the exact shade of coloring for the various blossoms.

The granite rocks of Stone mountain, and other similar places, Dr. Wherry said, produced many rare specimens of wild flower. There are, he said, at least 20 different species unique to Stone mountain. He showed the lovely yellow lily, the white-clustered diamorpha and the American "live forever," as plants which grow among the granite rocks.

Exhibit of Hydrangeas.

He showed pictures of climbing hydrangea, saying he was surprised this plant was not used more by gardeners.

Pctures of the wild yellow canna, taken in south Georgia, were used to illustrate how cross-breeding and cultivation produced popular cultivated flowers. It was by crossing the yellow canna of the wild places of Georgia with the red canna of South America, Dr. Wherry said, that the many beautiful color combinations of the cultivated canna were secured.

Many varieties of orchid, phlox, lily, iris and other flowers were shown, found mostly in the coastal plain section of the state, in the pine swamp lands and in the "prairies"

CLEMENCY IS SOUGHT FOR SAVANNAH NEGRO

Appeal for clemency for Mose Street, Savannah negro under sentence to electrocution on November 15 for the slaying of a Savannah policeman, was presented Monday to the state prison commission. Edwin J. Feiler, representing the negro, presented a recommendation from nine of the trial jurors that the sentence be commuted to life imprisonment.

Opposition to clemency was expressed by Andrew J. Ryan Jr., assistant solicitor-general, who said the trial jury, the presiding judge and the state supreme court had passed on the case and that the judge himself had recommended that no clemency be extended. Street was sentenced for the killing of Policeman J. E. Roughe..

BOY WHO SLEW FATHER IS GRANTED NEW TRIAL

Jim Smith, Wilkes county youth convicted of voluntary manslaughter for killing his father with a rock, was granted a new trial by a decision of the Georgia court of appeals Monday. The ruling was based on failure of the trial judge to instruct the jury on involuntary manslaughter.

The boy, according to the record, cursed his mother during an argument and was ordered from the house by his father, who threw his clothing out after him. When the father, Tucker Smith, went out on the porch the boy threw rocks at him, one breaking three ribs and puncturing his heart.

TRANSIENT DIRECTORS HEAR NATIONAL HEAD

W. J. Plunkert Tells of Work Being Done and of Plans for Future.

Southern directors of the federal transient bureau, holding a regional conference at the Ansley hotel, Monday heard William J. Plunkert, of Washington, federal director, outline future plans for transient relief work and describe the present status of transient unemployed in the country as a whole.

Monday's program also was featured by an address by Miss Helen Mawer, southern director, and the reading of reports by the regional directors.

Today the group will go to Fort Benning and visit the negro transient camp there, returning to Atlanta for an open meeting tonight at the Ansley, with representatives of the FERA and the Atlanta Social Welfare Council. Tonight's meeting will conclude the conference.

There are 250 transient camps in the south at the present, Mr. Plunkert said, ranging in size from 200 to 2,000 persons. He stated that of the national total of 250,000 persons now registered at transient bureaus, 5,818 are in Georgia. The government, he said, is spending about $4,000,000 monthly on this program.

The bureau will endeavor, he said, to put on programs in the coming months that will be self-sustaining, rather than the work programs now being carried on.

The transient situation in the south, he declared, is much better than in the north, due to climate and other conditions. The annual winter influx of transients to the south will be checked by the concentration camp established at Fort Eustis, Va. Washington, he said, is the funnel mouth through which drifters from the northeast pour into the south.

The program tonight will include speeches by Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state relief administrator; Edward M. Kahn, executive director of the Jewish Educational Alliance; Miss Mawer and Mr. Plunkert. J. Arthur Fynn will preside.

The following directors are attending the meeting: F. F. Newcomb, Alabama; W. H. Redkey, Florida; J. Arthur Fynn, Georgia; Miss Pearl Weaver, North Carolina; H. M. McElween, South Carolina; Miss Elizabeth Scheiblick, Tennessee; William S. Burchard, Virginia, and P. B. Murphy, director, Camp Eustis, Virginia.

Spain Pardons 20 Of 22 Rebel Chiefs

MADRID, Nov. 5.—(UP)—Premier Alejandro Lerroux tonight announced that two of the 22 rebel leaders in the recent socialist uprising who were sentenced to death would be executed, the other 20 being pardoned.

One of the two to die was convicted of tossing a bomb into a truck carrying loyal troops. The other killed a guard pursuing him at Gijon.

INSULL, ON STAND, QUIZZED ON DEAL

Former Utilities Magnate Loses Fencing Battle With Prosecutor.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Samuel Insull bowed off the Insull trial stage today, leaving that field to the 16 associates accused with him of defrauding investors.

The spotlight swung to Insull's investment bankers. Clarence T. MacNeille took the stand with the claim that Halsey Stuart & Co. gave Insull's Corporation Securities Company an $11,000,000 boost when it began its career in 1929.

Before he left the witness chair, pausing to bow to the jurors, Insull spent 30 final minutes in luckless fencing with Assistant Attorney-General Salter. Defiant as in his earlier cross-examination, Insull lost a battle over a $4,500,000 security deal the prosecution charges was concealed, back in 1929.

MacNeille, second of the 17 defendants to testify in the mail fraud trial, related how Halsey Stuart & Co. came to join forces with Insull, the middle-western utilities king. He served as an officer of both the investment banking house and Insull's Corporation Securities Company and is one of the four Halsey Stuart officials accused with Insull.

"Mr. Insull was very anxious for Halsey Stuart & Co. to aid in pushing his first investment trust, Insull Utility Investments," MacNeille testified, and that company accumulated 152,270 shares of its stock in 1929.

When the Corporation Securities Company was formed in October, 1929, the investment banking house turned this stock in at its cost of $3,407,000, MacNeille said, although it had a market value of more than $15,000,000.

Insull's final testimony found the utility man still in fighting mood, after many hours of cross-examination. It required an order from Judge James H. Wilkerson to make him admit that stock the Insull company sold to Halsey Stuart in January of 1929 was purchased by Insull Utilities Investments, with a check he signed, a few weeks later.

"The buyer was not Mr. Insull," he told Prosecutor Salter sharply. "The buyer was Insull Utility Investments. I was president. That is all."

Liquor and Taxes Are Leading Issues

By the Associated Press.

Many important proposals affecting the constitutions and laws are being referred for the decision of voters today.

Liquor and taxation lead in the number of proposals, which total almost three score and ten.

Here are the states that act:

On repeal or retention of the state prohibition laws: Florida, Idaho, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, West Virginia and Wyoming.

On other liquor proposals: California and Massachusetts.

On taxation in some form or other, including reduction: Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Texas, Washington, West Virignia.

On bond issues for various purposes: California, Illinois, New Jersey, New York.

On horse race betting: Massachusetts and Nebraska.

RECORD BALLOT EXPECTED TODAY

their strength of 309 seats. Two-thirds is 290.

Senate democratic strength, now 60 seats, would have to be raised to 64 for a two-thirds majority. Farley forecast a gain of six at the expense of the opposition. He was not specific, but his counsellors have named Maryland, West Virginia, New Jersey, Missouri, Ohio and Indiana as providing the most likely prospects.

Aid From Washington.

Despite Senator Cutting have supported Roosevelt against Hoover, special efforts were made in New Mexico as the campaign ended to replace him with Representative Chavez. Democratic Senators O'Mahoney in Wyoming and Pittman in Nevada were the beneficiaries of particular attention from the national organization, after republican reports of hope to unseat them.

The Hyde Park, N. Y., town hall was President Roosevelt's place for voting his own indorsement of the New Deal, on the candidacies of Lehman for governor and Copeland for senator. He arranged to receive the returns tonight before the library fireplace of his estate.

Record Expected.

Prospects for a record "off-year" tally were enhanced by a weather forecast of "better than average" for the country as a whole. This encouraged the efforts by party workers of all complexions to get their sympathizers to the polls.

Out of the 48,000,000 eligibles, it was estimated upwards of 30,000,000 would vote. This would exceed considerably the mark in 1930, when the democrats began their march to the White House by smashing republican control of the house.

In addition to arguments over the New Deal, interest raised by the gubernatorial contests and 57 attempts to amend the constitutions in 19 states indicated a tremendous vote.

The states reconsidering on prohibition include Kansas, where the dry amendment has been in force for 54 years. Others are Florida, South, Dakota, Nebraska, Idaho and West Virginia. Wyoming takes a referendum on the liquor question, and various Massachusetts localities are choosing between authorizing hard liquor and light wines and beer.

Relief Bonds Up.

The urgency of relief accounts for various bond issue propositions, amounting to $40,000,000 in New York, $30,000,000 in Illinois, $24,000,000 in California and $10,000,000 in New Jersey. California also is answering whether $30,000,000 in bonds should be issued to help war veterans acquire farms and homes.

Illinois is disposing of the question whether to revise its state constitution completely.

The campaign close found local issues super-imposed upon and, in many instances, largely obscuring the nation-wide test of the New Deal.

The spectacular Falifornia contest wound up with a threat from Upton Sinclair, the democratic candidate, to have jailed employers said by him to be intimidating their workers to vote against him.

McAdoo Aid Claimed.

Sinclairites claimed the support of Senator McAdoo, democrat, California, despite his failure to speak in the state during the campaign. McAdoo told interviewers he would support "all democratic candidates in California as well as the whole country."

Three thousand miles away, in little Delaware, another tense contest drew the watchful eye of the federal government. Emil Hurja, executive assistant to Chairman Farley of the democratic national committee, said "an army of federal men" would spend the election hours in the state because of the "tremendous number of fraudulent registrations."

Delaware's bid for national attention is in the race by Senator Townsend for re-election as a republican against Representative Wilbur L. Adams, democrat. There is no gubernatorial vote this year.

Governors in Jeopardy.

Twenty-eight of the present 38 governorships, eight of the nine republican and Minnesota's farmer-laborite control are at stake. Republicans want to reverse the trend which has shorn them steadily of state chairs since 1928, when they held 30 governorships to 18 for the democrats.

But the democrats concede nothing, in fact claim a six-state start in the solid south where nominations usually are tantamount to election. These are Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, South Carolina, Texas and Tennessee.

In three of these—Georgia, South Carolina and Tennessee—the republicans actually have no candidates, although Lewis S. Pope, democratic primary loser, is running as a fusionist against Governor Hill McAlister in Tennessee.

But California's terrific battle is not the only stand where the G. O. P. is fighting vigorously to hold its slender handful of states and win back old strongholds. It looks especially toward Michigan, Iowa with its first democratic governor in 40 years; Ohio, Wyoming, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Nebraska and Idaho.

Personalities to Fore.

The personalities involved lift some of the struggles for state control to national significance.

The La Follettes, Robert and Philip, have put all they could into the combat for their new progressive alignment in Wisconsin. Against Philip La Follette, the democratic organization is solid to re-elect Albert G. Schmedeman governor.

James Roosevelt, the president's son, is actively supporting James M. Curley—pre-Chicago Roosevelt man—for Massachusetts' governorship against Gaspar G. Bacon, republican.

Floyd B. Olson, lone farmer-labor governor, is in a stiff fight for re-election in Minnesota, which went democratic in 1932 for the first time in history. Against him are Martin A. Nelson, republican, and John E. Regan, democrat.

Unusual, too, is the race of Mrs. William Langer to succeed her republican husband as governor of North Dakota. Langer was ousted after an indictment charging misuse of federal funds.

The governorships now held by republicans are California, Delaware, Kansas, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Vermont. Delaware alone is not open to a possibility of change at the polls today.

Strange Hoosier Issues.

Strange issues figured in the Indiana campaign between Senator Robinson, republican candidate for re-election, and the democrat, Sherman Minton. Republicans blamed Governor Paul V. McNutt for paroling Dillinger and said he let him escape by discharging experienced prison guards; Robinson contended Minton was McNutt's "hand-picked" candidate. McNutt retaliated by charging republican "left-overs" at the prison with responsibility for Dillinger's escape.

In Rhode Island, the two words—"skunk hunters"—drew the attention of voters in the campaign finale. State Senator William G. Troy, a Providence democrat, had said it was a sad state of affairs "when some skunk hunter from West Greenwich has as much power in the senate as a good citizen from some larger city."

Though Troy was campaigning for local candidates, republicans promptly organized "skunk hunters associations" and sought to capitalize on the phrase in Senator Felix Hebert's campaign for re-election against former Senator Peter Gerry.

New England had other warm contests that drew attention from outside.

Vermont Choice.

Vermont, republican stronghold of the past, is voting almost entirely on the New Deal issue, with Senator Austin, bitter administration critic, seeking re-election against Fred C. Martin, the democratic candidate.

Though the gubernatorial election in New York was the chief contest there, Natalie Couch, republican candidate for representative-at-large, attracted last-minute attention by announcing she would challenge the ballot of Mrs. Anna Dall, President Roosevelt's daughter, if she should try to vote.

In a telegram to Mrs. Roosevelt at Hyde Park, she said she was informed Mrs. Dall had established legal residence in Nevada during the past year. The president's daughter was granted a divorce at Reno.

The Bankhead cotton law figured in the election contests in the south wherever the campaigns did not end with the primaries. Senator McKellar, Tennessee democrat up for re-election, predicted congress would correct "every injustice" of the cotton law.

Florida Repeal.

Though Florida's choice for congress were made in the primary last June, the state was expecting a big vote on repeal of the state liquor law and other constitutional amendments.

Political rallies throughout the state marked the final day of campaigning in Maryland, where Governor Ritchie is out for his fifth term. He is opposed by Harry W. Nice, a republican candidate, who gave him a close race in 1919.

Nowhere was the New Deal issue hammered harder than in Ohio, where Senator Fess campaigned for re-election as a republican. He closed yesterday with a prediction of victory. Former Governor Donahey, his democratic opponent who has promised to support the New Deal "in every proper manner," awaited the verdict in characteristic silence.

North Dakota wound up a bitter campaign for the governorship with few fireworks. The contest between Mrs. Lydia Langer, wife of the deposed chief executive, and Thomas Moddie, democratic candidate, has been followed closely by neighboring states.

Some Close Early.

Ballot boxes and voting machines begin closing as the clock strikes 3 this afternoon. The first are in the Atlantic coast states. From that time on until 11 p. m., eastern time, polling places will be shutting up shop, the final ones at that hour in the Pacific coast states.

The end of voting starts tellers and judges to work counting the ballots and recording the totals. Shortly afterward the flood of figures begin to issue and announcements are made of the successful candidates.

Rural New Hampshire and Rhode Island, as well as other places in New England, and rural Georgia close their polls at 3 p. m. Some New England towns, usually the first to announce results, close as soon as all registered voters have acted.

Between 3 and 6 o'clock, eastern time, ballot casting ends and counting begins in Alabama, Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Kentucky, Baltimore, Md.; rural Michigan, New Hampshire cities, New York, South Carolina and South Dakota.

Sunset is the closing time in Florida, North Carolina and Virginia.

The largest number of states have fixed their closing time in the two hours between 6 and 8 p. m., eastern time. They are Arkansas, Georgia cities, Indiana, rural Kansas, Louisaina, Maryland counties, Massachusetts, Michigan cities, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas and West Virginia.

Democratic, G. O. P. Leaders Are Claiming Victories Today

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The democratic and republican national chairmen ended the jumbled political campaigns of 1934 tonight with a mingling of arguments, pleas and expressions of confidence before a national radio audience.

James A. Farley reiterated the New Deal would be at least six votes stronger in the senate, when tomorrow's ballots had been counted—and "maybe more than six." The present record democratic majority in the house, he said, was more likely to be increased than diminished.

Henry P. Fletcher, while predicting "victories tomorrow," dwelt more on the need for republican workers to "stand firm during the next two years."

"From present indications," he said, "the next congress will be more reckless than the last one. If present radical proposals and legislation of the New Deal do not bring the promised millenium, and we all know that they cannot, the great danger is that the next step will be more radicalism. . . . My closing appeal to all republicans is to keep their faith—the country will need it in the years to come."

Farley, speaking from New York just after Fletcher's broadcast from Washington, thanked those who have labored in the democratic cause, including "those republicans, independents and thinking people of all political sects who have joined with us in bringing about the election of a new congress sympathetic with the president's views."

He renewed his contention that faith in President Roosevelt is the only issue up tomorrow. He mentioned republican allegations of despotism and regimentation, and rejoinded that "the president has exercised no powers except those delegated to him by congress and in which 40 per cent of the republicans in our national legislature concurred."

Both chairmen signaled for a big "get out the vote" drive in every section.

"And see that these votes are counted," admonished Farley.

"We are up against a big and heavily-stuffed team," said Fletcher. "But it has an unbalanced line and the star quarterback seems to be undecided about his plays. After grooming Sinclair (democratic nominee for governor in California) for a gain around left end, he was put off the team last week and the lineup changed. A new backfield of bankers has been signed up. It looks like a fake pass to the right. But, to drop the football similes and speak in plain terms, I want to say seriously that the republican party is entering the fight tomorrow in splendid trim . . .

"We are going to recapture seats in congress and we are going to win back control of state governments. The party is coming back into its own in hundreds of counties and towns."

Previously Fletcher had predicted a republican gain of from 60 to 70 house seats, and sustentation of the present senate strength.

Farley predicted that anti-New Dealers would hail "every possibile or apparent gain, if they have the opportunity, as evidence that the people are dissatisfied and that the trend of popular thought is towards repudiation of the president. They make no pretense that they have any chance to win either branch of congress; their hope is only that they may increase their membership among the representatives to a number that will give them one-third—or rather one over that number—in order that they may be able to hold up the majority policies and so delay, hamper and obstruct the legislation requisite to rounding out the administration plan to complete the work of reconstruction; to put the period of doles and direct relief behind us and in orderly fashion to get us back to the normal processes of our economic life."

"The republican goal is a gain of 31 seats," he continued. "That, incidentally, is less than half the ordinary political turn-over in a by-election year. Thirty-one seats in the house of representatives would make it possible for our adversaries to carry on their planned campaign of obstruction. That is why I say to you that every congressional district is a battleground that calls for your strongest endeavor, for every one of these contests might conceivably be the decisive factor in the great enterprise in which the administration is engaged.

"Confidence is a great element in winning an election, but over-confidence has wrecked the prospects of many administrations."

MRS. DALL'S VOTE FACES CHALLENGE BY G.O.P. CANDIDATE

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The right of Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, the president's daughter, to cast an absentee ballot in the New York state election was challenged today on the ground she had established legal residence in Nevada last summer to obtain a divorce from Curtis B. Dall.

Miss Natalie Couch, republican candidate for representative-at-large, telegraphed Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt that she would contest acceptance of Mrs. Dall's ballot if it is offered tomorrow.

Mrs. Roosevelt's campaigning in behalf of Miss Couch's democratic opponent, Mrs. Caroline O'Day, brought criticism of the first lady by republican and independent leaders, one of whom termed it "eminently unfair."

Mrs. Dall, who applied for an absentee ballot in Dutchess county, was not mentioned by name in Miss Couch's telegram to Mrs. Roosevelt, but was referred to as "a member of your household."

The absentee ballot had not been returned to Dutchess county election officials late tonight and the possibility of Miss Couch exercising her threatened challenge seemed remote.

LONG HOLDING CENTER OF DIXIE VOTE STAGE

By W. F. CALDWELL.
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Louisiana's Kingfish, Huey Long, is in the forefront of the south's program for today's election.

The Kingfish urged his followers in an election eve appeal to vote for constitutional amendments proposed and sponsored by his political machine. One would permit the levying of an income tax on individuals of from 2 to 6 per cent and 4 per cent on corporations.

Another, aimed directly at the mayor and city administration of New Orleans, would cancel a $700,000 annual highway fund grant to the city for streets. Sunday night Long predicted an early "doom" for the city government of Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley.

Tennessee Campaign.

Headquarters of the regular democratic nominees and of the fusionists claim victories in the senatorial and gubernatorial races in Tennessee. Henry R. Bell, chairman of the regular democratic campaign, said "We are expecting majorities ranging from 50,000 upward to 100,000." Their candidates are Governor Hill McAllister, seeking re-election; Senator Kenneth D. McKellar, who is up for another six-year term, and Senator Nathan L. Bachman, who is running for the unexpired term of Cordell Hull, now secretary of state.

Lewis S. Pope, who calls himself a "straight-out democrat," and who lost to McAllister in the democratic primary, is running for governor and has joined forces with Ben W. Hooper, republican nominee for McKellar's seat.

Vote in Virginia.

A light vote is expected in Virginia, except in the ninth district, where there is a spirited race for congress between John W. Flannagan, democratic incumbent; Fred C. Parks, republican, and Bruce Crawford, Norton editor and independent. Governor Peery has been stumping the ninth for Flannagan.

A last-minute appeal of Osro Cobb, state republican chairman, to voters to desert party lines marked the Arkansas campaign. The republicans are centering their campaign in the third congressional district, where Rev. Pat Murphy is opposing Congressman Claude A. Fuller, democrat.

J. Wallace Winborne, North Carolina democratic chairman, said "the administration will be indorsed with a huge democratic vote." The democratic majority two years ago was 285,000 in a total vote of 711,000.

Two Florida Issues.

Florida votes on repeal of the state prohibition act, but the chief interest is over a proposed amendment to exempt from taxation on an assessed valuation up to $5,000 all homes occupied by their owners at least nine months a year.

Confident of the ninth district, Kentucky republicans are concentrating their fire in Louisville and Jefferson county composing the third congressional district, and in the seventh district in eastern Kentucky.

South Carolina and Mississippi are without effective republican opposition and the democratic nominees will have easy sailing.

The young democrats of Alabama are out to roll up a record majority in each of the 67 counties to show the stand of the state behind President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

the count. I am convinced that the count will be honest in any event, and all we want in DeKalb is an election and an honest count. I see no reason for such secrecy."

Garland said that he had written to the ordinary under date of October 31, asking for the count to start after the close of the polls and that the count be public. Under the state election laws for a general election, no count may be started until the polls close if a candidate in person or by letter makes such a request. While the state election laws for the conduct of a primary require that the count be started immediately after the close of the polls, that it be a public count and that the results be made known as soon as the count is completed, no such requirements could be found by several lawyers in the general election laws Monday.

"I'll Be Counted Out."

Garland Monday said that other than his protest, in which Lindsay later joined, he did not know of anything that could be done about Morgan's instructions. "I'll be counted out again," Garland said, "just as I was in the primary, and no one will be the wiser. It will all be secret."

"I, as the democratic nominee, would not serve in the legislature on a certificate given as a result of a secret count from which the public is barred, and I will see that my opponent does not," he said. "There is not the least necessity for all the proposed secrecy. The people are entitled to see the votes counted and the results should be announced immediately. Just why any politicians should refuse me a public count is beyond my comprehension. I demanded an open count and the right to have a representative at each of the precincts. Mr. Mogran ignored both."

R. J. Freeman, former DeKalb county superior court clerk and former DeKalb commissioner, Monday issued a statement calling on citizens to support Lindsay, whom he termed the true nominee.

Carried Fight to Macon.

Garland carried his fight for the democratic nomination to the Macon convention, contending the count in his race against Lindsay in the September 12 primary was not in accordance with the law. He also brought other alleged irregularities before the convention contest committee and was declared the nominee by the convention.

Morgan then announced that Lindsay would be listed on the ballot today as the nominee of the DeKalb county committee and Garland as the nominee of the convention.

Garland sought and obtained an injunction against Morgan but in a hearing to make the injunction permanent lost his point.

In political circles, it is said that the fight will not be concluded at the polls today should Lindsay again receive the largest number of votes but will be carried before the house. Garland to ask that he be seated because of irregularities and because he was the convention nominee, and Lindsay to seek the seat on the basis of his showing in the primary and the general election.

Lindsay has had the backing of the old and new DeKalb county committees and the ordinary. Garland has been the choice of the convention, the state committee and the state political powers that be.

Polls Open at 7 A. M.

Voting places in municipalities in DeKalb will open at 7 o'clock this morning and remain open until 6 o'clock tonight, while the county precincts will open at 6 o'clock in the morning and close at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

In addition to settling the Garland-Lindsay controversy, DeKalb voters also will ballot on other local and state nominees.

The following ballot boxes will be ready to receive DeKalb votes:

Brownings District: City hall.
Clarkston District: City hall and Chewning's store.
Cross Keys District: Chamblee city hall and Harkey's pharmacy at Brookhaven.

J. D. LEE INDICTED AS PLEA IS MADE

Two Holdups Charged; Witness to Lichtenstein Slaying Claimed Found.

A claim that an eyewitness to the slaying of Ben Litchtenstein, widely-known Atlanta man, has been found since J. D. Lee's conviction for the murder, and that this witness named another man as Lichtenstein's slayer, was presented to the state prison commission Monday.

The statement was made by Arthur W. Powell, attorney for Lee, who pleaded for clemency for his client, now serving a life sentence.

He said that the witness was a young woman resident of the state training school for girls, and that she had identified a photograph of the "other man" as the slayer.

The hearing before the commission started shortly after the Fulton grand jury had returned two new robbery indictments against Lee.

Walter LeCraw, assistant solicitor-general, will present the state's version of the case when the hearing is resumed this morning.

Powell said that the "other man" was now in the west, and had left Atlanta "without taking any clothing except that he had on his back," some time after Lichtenstein was shot to death in his Ponce de Leon avenue apartment here in September, 1931. Powell said Governor Eugene Talmadge had been given certain information about the other man, and that he (Powell) was not privileged to reveal the information, since it was given the governor by another attorney and had the status of confidential matter as between an attorney and his client.

Numerous affidavits concerning the case were read by Powell, who spoke for nearly two hours.

Lee, also known as Sumner Compton, has a mother living in Seattle, Wash., Powell said.

The lawyer had in his possession a letter from Judge Virlyn B. Moore, who presided over Lee's second trial, in which he said any action the commission took would be "satisfactory" to him. The jurist said in his letter: "This case was a very unusual one to me, and I am satisfied in my own mind that all of the facts in reference to the killing were not brought out at the trial. In fact, I doubt if the truth of this matter will ever be known."

While the question of a pardon for Lee was being heard by the prison commission, Fulton county grand jury returned two indictments charging him with robbery.

Lee was indicted on two counts, one charging the robbery of $6 from Dr. R. F. Ingram Jr., and another the robbery of $7 from Dr. N. C. Poer.

According to the solicitor's office, Harry Kosnofsky, serving a life sentence for his part in the slaying of Lichtenstein, has confessed that he and Lee held up the two Atlanta dentists as they sat in an automobile in front of Dr. Ingram's home, two weeks before Lichtenstein was slain.

NEGRO WOMAN'S DEATH 53D TRAFFIC FATALITY

Struck down by an automobile on Forrest avenue at Felton drive last Friday night, Georgia McHenry, negro woman, of 410 Felton drive, N. E., died from her injuries at Grady hospital Monday night.

53 The death of the negro woman brings the total number of deaths due to automobile accidents within the city limits since January 1, to 53, and the total number for the month of November to date to two.

According to police reports, the McHenry woman was struck by a car driven by R. B. Ray, of 1033 Williams Mill road, N. E., against whom a case of reckless driving was booked.

The woman suffered internal injuries and fractures of both legs and her left arm. She remained unconscious from the time she was taken to the hospital until her death.

TWO NEGROES CAUGHT LOOTING FREIGHT CAR

Caught in the act of robbing a freight car, according to police, Robert Roosevelt, 22, of Glenn street, and T. J. Turner, 17, of Ira street, both negroes, were arrested and booked on "suspicion" Monday night by Patrolman John Ector.

The officer said he found the two unloading meat from the box car in the rear of a packing company at 252 Peters street. The negroes had a truck to haul away the loot, he said.

Former Wife Seeks Jailing of Bancroft

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Mrs. Edna Bancroft, first wife of the screen actor, George Bancroft, today asked the district attorney's office to investigate the actor's marital affairs to determine if an adultery or bigamy complaint should be issued against him.

The first Mrs. Bancroft turned over to the district attorney's office the transcript of a superior court hearing on her separate maintenance action in which she declared Bancroft had never been divorced from her although he subsequently married Octavia Broske, former opera singer, and mother of the actor's 17-year-old daughter.

Deputy District Attorney Ferguson said he would consider the matter before taking any action.

"B.C." Relieves Periodical Pains In Three Minutes

It is so unnecessary to suffer month after month from inorganic pains, because "B. C." will bring soothing relief in three minutes. "B. C." is prepared by a registered pharmacist, compounded on a different principle from most relief-giving agencies in that it contains several ingredients, used by many physicians, so blended and proportioned as to accomplish in a few minutes what we believe no one drug formula can do in so short a time. "B. C." should also be used for the relief of common colds, headaches and neuralgia, muscular aches and pains, reducing fever and for quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit-forming drugs. Get "B. C." in 10c and 25c packages, wherever drugs are sold.—(adv.)

No More Piles

Doctor's Prescription Guaranteed.

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

This is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give lasting relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause. External treatments can't do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEMROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, sold by good druggists everywhere, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the affected parts.

So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Jacobs Drug Stores invite every Pile sufferer to try HEMROID with guarantee of money back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives.—(adv.)

"Business Blues" Turned to Smiles

The Famous Liquid Test Helps Man in Condition Where His Work Seems to "Have Him Down"

I have used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for years. I take it when I have any of the usual symptoms of sluggishness or constipation. I generally feel better in every way and regain my usual health and energy after using it.
Kenneth B. Logan, Bondville, Vt.

Do you have headaches before breakfast, or after lunch? Nausea or sourness after any meal? Perhaps you have thought yourself a victim of "indigestion" when food doesn't seem to agree. Or that you are all run-down physically because you feel "sunk" an hour or more after eating, or haven't the ambition or energy others have at all hours.

If, by making one little change, you could relieve a condition of sluggishness within a few days, and feel about 100% better—would you do it?

Try This!

If you are a victim of "sluggish bowels"; an occasional sufferer from constipation, here's the secret of prompt and safe relief until nature restores your regularity. Use a liquid laxative!

Start tonight with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. If necessary to repeat the dose use less each day, until the bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

If there is an occasional return of the trouble, Syrup Pepsin will comfort and relieve you again, as easily as it did the first time you ever took it.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative made from fine herbs, pure pepsin, senna and cascara. It is most agreeable to take. The comfortable bowel movement from Syrup Pepsin is a joyful relief from the violent action of strong mineral drugs!

Ask any druggist for a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and make the "liquid laxative test."

BE CAREFUL

IF any laxative is dipsetic (makes you thirsty).

IF it affects your appetite.

IF you need more today than the first time you took it.

IF it drains the system (by too watery a movement).

IF a bad "burning" is felt.

IF there is severe griping.

DON'T NEGLECT COLDS

RUB soothing, warming Musterole well into your chest and throat—almost instantly you feel easier.

Musterole is NOT just a salve. It's a "counter-irritant" containing good old-fashioned cold remedies—oil of mustard, menthol, camphor and other valuable ingredients.

That's why it gets such fine results—better than the old-fashioned mustard plaster. It penetrates, stimulates, warms and soothes, drawing out the pain and congestion. Used by millions for 25 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong. Tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau, No. 4867.

MORE FRENCH RIOTS LOOM

The renewed tensity of the general European situation is made the more acute by the crisis in the French parliament as the result of Premier Doumergue's demand for appropriations that will permit the legislative branch of the government to give exclusive attention during the next three months to proposed constitutional reforms.

The crisis comes as the result of internal troubles and has but little bearing on the troubled international relations of the continent. These relations are certain to be unfavorably affected, however, if the present jittery condition of French political nerves is continued.

The Doumergue cabinet, containing a number of former premiers, is none too well united itself, but there has as yet been no open revolt against Doumergue's leadership. The real trouble is in parliament, where minor political leaders have been champing at the bit for many months.

Doumergue is handicapped by the fact that the French parliament cannot, as is the case in other countries, be dissolved at the will of the head of the government. Under the French law the senate has to agree. Doumergue will ask that he and the president be given this power, and this position has been met with the charge that he is seeking a dictatorship. The opponents to the plan fear that should the president agree, at Doumergue's request, to send the parliament home, new elections might be postponed indefinitly, leaving the cabinet to run the government.

The great danger of the present situation is that it may lead to rioting such as swept the city some months ago and out of which came the creation of a cabinet headed by ex-President Doumergue, who had retired from public life but who was still considered the grand old man of the country. The same elements that precipitated these riots are again excited, and it is reported that heavy reinforcements are already being added to the police forces in Paris.

The collapse of the Doumergue government will bring unfortunate international repercussions, especially in Germany and in the nations of the little entente, and for this reason the world will anxiously await the outcome of the struggle now being made by the French premier for changes in the governmental structure he believes necessary if both internal conditions and international relations are to be successfully met.

QUESTIONABLE DISTINCTION

Announcement by federal liquor agents in this section that the "bone-dry" south leads the country in illicit distilleries reveals a distinction in which the south will feel no pride.

Even worse than the tremendous volume of intoxicants being produced in the southern states is the statement by the federal officials that most of the present output is not even a good grade of the "cawn likker" of pre-prohibition days, but is a near-poisonous concoction, somewhat similar to a low grade of rum, made of brown sugar and cow-feed bran.

The huge amount of this body-destroying intoxicant being consumed by the people of this section is revealed in the statement of Acting Supervisor Tuttle, of the federal alcohol tax-collecting unit in Atlanta, that the stills destroyed during August had a daily capacity of 83,169 gallons. The destroyed stills alone, this federal official points out, "could have produced liquor enough to supply a gallon and a half a month to every person in the four states in the district."

In all probability, the stills destroyed represent but a small per cent of those being operated, and from which flowed uninterrupted hundreds of thousands of gallons of health-destroying raw and impure liquor.

Consideration of the effect the consumption of this huge amount of poisonous intoxicants by the men and women of this section brings a shocking realization of the price being paid by the states that still blindly stick to the fetish of prohibition.

FIRST LADY IN FACT

It is not surprising that Mrs. Roosevelt, who as wife of the president bears the designation of "first lady of the land," should be the choice for the Gimbel award to "the outstanding woman of the nation in 1934." The award last year went to Amelia Earhart for her remarkable accomplishments in the field of aviation.

During Mrs. Roosevelt's reign in the White House she has been the first lady in public service as well as in social affairs. While neglecting none of the rigorous duties of the mistress of the official residence of the government, she has traveled to and fro across the country in the interest not only of movements affecting the welfare of women but as an active worker in the full program of the New Deal.

To the able and energetic first lady goes a large share of the credit for the development of the homesteads program, under which there are now being created new rural communities in every section of the country which will be largely self-dependent.

Mrs. Roosevelt has taken part in activities and sponsored many policies that have revealed on her part a new and broader conception of the duties and opportunities for service of the president's wife. Albeit she has gone about her work in a tactful way that has forestalled criticism, despite the determination with which she has shown her conviction that the emancipation of woman should apply in the White House in equal degree as in any home in the country.

The award to her of the Gimbel medal to the woman whose accomplishments have been the most outstanding during the year is richly merited and will undoubtedly be universally approved.

THE YARDSTICK OF RECOVERY

Statistics termed "business indicators" by the editor of the City Builder, official publication of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, reflect the improvement in local economic conditions during the past 12 months.

These statistics, displayed in table form in the current issue of the City Builder, show that during August bank clearings increased from $131,000,000 in the same month last year to $153,000,000, and bank debits from $108,000,000 to $123,000,000.

September's records show postal receipts increasing from $302,000,000 in 1933 to $310,000,000 this year, building permits from 57,000 to 95,000, water meters from 59,123 to 59,437, gas meters from 46,171 to 49,643, electric meters from 62,755 to 68,333 and telephones from 57,802 to 64,100.

These increases mean that more families are moving into individual homes, new businesses are starting up, and revenues are steadily expanding. The figures, which are tabulated by the industrial bureau of the chamber, show gains which, while not large in some classifications, are material and sound.

Such data, combined with the remarkable increase in retail trade in Atlanta reported by the federal reserve board, reveal the extent to which the city has emerged from the worst of the depression. They are both comforting and inspiring.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

The Spanish Revolt

These lines are written in Madrid, where everything is quiet for the moment, but where one feels as if he were sitting on a volcano. Nothing is settled. The mass of the people are against the new government. But the government has the army and has increased the pay of the soldiers to make them more loyal. A heavy censorship exists and nobody knows exactly what is going on in the Asturia provinces, where between 50,000 and 100,000 troops have been dispatched. What is known is this: The army is using bombing planes and is utterly merciless in repressing the revolt in that part of the country. Since it was feared that native Spaniards would not be ruthless enough, the government imported tens of thousands of Moorish, Arab, Berber and negro soldiers from Africa. The operations against the revolting districts are under direction of the Spanish Foreign Legion, which has a sinister reputation for cruelty.

I was speaking to some Arab soldiers and from what they told me, I gained an idea of the ghastfiness of the situation. The Africans are namely taking revenge on men, women and children for the cruelty practiced by Spanish troops in Africa in the past. Horrible!

* * * *

All Is Quiet

The revolution is a thing of the past, said M. Lerroux, the Spanish premier. But that same day a bridge on which a fascist parade was proceeding went up in the air in Barcelona. There were so many victims that all the streets leading to the destroyed bridge were closed and ambulances ran in and out all evening. To be found in the neighborhood at all meant arrest. I escaped arrest fortunately by pretending I did not know what had happened and acting as if I did not understand a word of Spanish. Yesterday they tried running some street cars, heavily manned by soldiers. The windows of the cars were riddled with shot by striking street car employes. In the scrap two women who were watching the fight from an upstairs window were deliberately fired upon by the troops. Their bodies dropped into the street, where I saw them lying two hours afterwards.

Shopkeepers have been ordered to keep open on a penalty of 20,000 pesetas. Electric window display must also be kept going at full force by government orders and automobile owners are required to drive up and down the main streets in order to give the appearance that normal times have returned. But the factories are still empty. Only a few people have returned to work.

Estramadura

News comes that the province of Estramadura has revolted. Troops have been dispatched, the government communique states briefly. But the troops never arrived. The railway had been blown up in half a dozen places and even several bridges were lacking. Estramadura is that province where King Alfonso visited by accident during the last months of his reign and he found a people who were scarcely human beings. Alfonso has been severely criticized for telling what he saw there. The population of entire villages lived in mudhovels. They knew no furniture of any kind. They fed on roots, had no schools, were physically degenerated and utterly diseased.

The king happened to see all this when he was trying out a new car and had a breakdown, which forced him to stay overnight in one of the villages. The next day all Madrid was agog with the king's story as he related it to the newspapers. Many thought the conditions described unbelievable. But subsequent investigations showed that Alfonso had by no means exaggerated. These people are now in revolt. Repression is to be ruthless, Minister Lerroux announces. That's easy when you have the troops. What's not so easy is to introduce decent, human, civilized conditions in Estramadura.

HEALTH TALKS

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

REAL HEALTH EDUCATION.

Much that purports to be health education in our common schools is sheer hooey. How can any one with a modicum of common sense imagine a young woman who has been trained to teach geography or arithmetic can take charge of the class in physiology and hygiene if she happens to have a vacant period? That is the way physiology and hygiene or health is handled in the average elementary or high school.

In Lansing, boys and girls entering sophomore grade in high school attend a series of lectures by physicians on sex matters. The lectures, illustrated by sketches and lantern slides, cover the problem frankly, thoroughly, practically. The boys in one room, the girls in another, listen to different lectures. At the first lecture, two boys among a group of 600, were shocked and they fainted. What do you say about that, old pruders? I think it was a fortunate thing that the two boys fainted. Even if they had nothing to get alarmed about, that was a small price to pay for the boon or such education of hundreds of boys who would otherwise go out into the world smart Alecks and suffer far worse than shock as a consequence of their ignorance.

One of the teachers in this Lansing High school informs me that the results of this fair deal to the pupils or students has been encouraging: "A gap, which formerly existed between students and teachers and doctors, has been bridged and boys and girls are quite free in their questions and discussions both during and after the lectures."

The same teacher goes on to observe that in a pamphlet entitled "The Problem of Sex Education in Schools" issued by the United States public health service, Washington, D. C., in 1919, appears this view:

"Certainly all teachers are not fitted to engage in direct sex teaching. This task is for a few teachers only and in a few subjects only. These few teachers must meet many requirements. They must have an accurate and scientific knowledge of the facts to be imparted . . . "

But in practice our educators waive all that. They look down upon health education, physical education, sex education as something pretty low anyway, and from that attitude they readily comply with the practice of designating any teacher who has the spare time or who will accept the job, to dish out the hooey which sane people demand in the name of health education.

The boys and girls are quite free in their questions and discussions, during and following the sex lectures. Prudes will pretend to be mortified by that. Honest folk know the young ones discuss things among themselves anyway. Far better that their questions and discussions be founded on facts than that fairy tales or romantic stories should lead the youngsters astray.

It is significant, I think that this Lansing High school teacher says, "I cannot agree with you that the world evidently prefers to reel along as is and not give future citizens a break."

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon

ELECTION CONFESSION WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Now it can be told that the republicans never expected to gain anything out of the election. They have not spent any real money, mainly because they had none, but also because they knew it would not do any good. They did not even open up a New York headquarters for the first time that anyone can remember.

From the inside, their chief purpose has been to save the nucleus of the party organization. The results from eastern and central states, especially Vermont and Pennsylvania, will tell whether they did.

AFTERMATH The republicans have said a lot of harsh things in this campaign, but the only thing they are really angry about is the way Postmaster-General Farley took advantage of them on relief expenditures. They do not believe he lived up to the rules of the game.

It is not the fact that the administration spread relief funds around in doubtful quarters. The republicans expected that. They did not expect Farley and others to go around bragging about it. They feel that democratic politicos tried to create the impression they were handing out their own money, and not the taxpayers'.

A mass of evidence on that subject has been collected for use in congress when the next relief appropriations come up. One item is a quote fro mIowa Democratic State Chairman Feuling to the effect that: "This election, beyond all doubt, will determine whether Iowa will continue to receive . . . very liberal and much needed federal benefits. . . ."

Another is an apparently authentic unsigned democratic campaign document for North Dakota, showing the New Deal disbursed $220 for every man, woman and child there.

DEMOCRATS The democratic slant on the election from the inside is that it will be the greatest off-year sweep in history. The democrats count nearly everything except Vermont and Pennsylvania as already captured and they are hopeful of uprooting the historic depths of republicanism in those two states.

They will whisper to you that they used the New Deal relief program as much as they could. They say the program was not inaugurated for political purposes, but to help the country. They cannot see anything wrong about advertising the help they gave. They think they will win, not because of relief expenditures, but because the republicans offered no real issue, presented no inviting alternative program.

SKILL Every tactician in both camps will concede that President Roosevelt gave a better demonstration of political skill in this election than he did in his own election two years ago. That is a very high compliment.

The side-tracking of Upton Sinclair was considered superb by all democratic strategists. So was the delicate handling of the western progressive problem.

But far more important than those two minor maneuvers was the way the bankers were deftly coaxed out of the republican camp. That was the master sub-surface stroke of the campaign. How deeply it hurt may be judged from Republican Chairman Fletcher's astounding announcement, a few days later, the significance of which was entirely lost at the time. Mr. Fletcher said, in effect, that the bankers may have sold out to the New Deal, but the republican party would continue to stand for a stable currency and a balanced budget.

That was just about the same as a general announcing publicly that his artillery had deserted to the enemy, but that he was continuing to fight with whatever infantry he had remaining. The boys around the stove believe it was the most important statement of the campaign.

PITCH Equally skillful from an inner democratic view was the handling of the cabinet and sub-cabinet cavalry by Mr. Roosevelt.

First, Professor Tugwell was shipped to Europe six weeks before election, with the excuse that he had been slipped on the boat secretly to avoid a sugar suit subpoena. The farm belt was not entrusted even to Agriculture Secretary Wallace, as he was under criticism for idealism. The practical administrator in the AAA, Chester Davis, was dispatched to the hustings as the main orator.

Wallace made several speeches, as did Farley and Ickes, but the heaviest stumping fell upon Donald Richberg. If you compare Richberg's calming speeches with the kind Tugwell used to make, you will get the new campaign pitch sounded by the New Deal organ grinders.

BANTER The most revealing story of Mr. Roosevelt was told in Arthur Krock's column in the New York Times recently. Mr. Krock said that ex-Director of the Budget Lew Douglas once became excited in arguing with Mr. Roosevelt about one of the president's proposals. Said Douglas pointedly: "The reasoning behind that proposal is the thinking of a sophist."

Mr. Roosevelt took no notice of the remark at the time, but days later, he called Douglas on the telephone about another matter and started the conversation off by saying:

"Now, Lew, as one old sophist to another—"

Mr. Douglas is supposed to have related the incident later to a friend, adding: "How can you get sore at a fellow like that!"

NOTES In the Harding off-year campaign about $3,000,000 was spent. This year, both parties have spent less than half a million.

The republican strategists were somewhat baffled by Mr. Roosevelt's indirect support of certain independent republicans. It placed him on their side in some states and left no opportunity for direct, clear-cut democratic and republican shooting.

If everything is as one-sided as the democrats think, the conclusive returns should be in before midnight.

All Furriners Are Enemies to Those Who Haven't Been Out of the Mountains

By Robert Quillen

Back in the days of copper-toed boots and circuit-riders, the backwoods brat, taunted by a passing stranger, would shout derisively from a safe distance: "Yah! Yah! Your ears are dirty and your feet stink and you don't love Jesus."

The world has made some advance in manners and morals, but children are impious heathen still.

Infuriated by their playmates or resentful of a stranger's strangeness, they still shout personal abuse and yell the details of domestic disasters and family failings learned by chance from their elders.

"Your credit's no good," they cry. "Your old man got fired. Your brother's in jail. Your sister's feller give her the air. You flunked in arithmetic. Your house is mortgaged. Your brother got licked. Your old man's a republican."

The practice is distinctly and consistently juvenile. It is an unmistable evidence of immaturity, a throw-back to the primitive who found pleasure in taunting his enemies.

You cannot imagine a man of dignity and sense doing such a thing. Yet something very similar is done by people who seem normally mature in other respects and consider themselves qualified to instruct mankind.

We are all one people, regardless of state lines, and the glory or shame of one region is the glory or shame of all.

One who has outgrown provincialism and learned to think in national terms realizes that every part of America is a part of his country. To malign it is to malign his own property and his own clan.

Yet the provincial, prompted by the age-old prejudice against strangers, habitually berates and ridicules every section of the nation except his own.

"Yah! Yah!" he cries. "You are ignorant. You are lawless. You don't go to church. You have no money. You aren't Nordics. You don't know good cooking. Your manners are bad. You chaw tobacco."

It isn't necessary, is it? And surely it isn't dignified or grown-up.

Poking fun at the imperfections of others is not, to say the least, an evidence of mental maturity.

It is never a bass voice that yells: "Yah! Yah! You're crippled and have to walk with a crutch."

Memphian Named.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The federal housing administration said today A. L. Parker, of Memphis, Tenn., was appointed "several days ago" as assistant to the regional director for the fifth district of the housing administration and would be located at the Memphis office.

Railroad Co-ordinator To Speak Here Today

"The Transportation Future" is the subject of the address which Joseph B. Eastman, federal co-ordinator of railroads, and a member of the interstate commerce commission, will deliver at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Atlanta Athletic Club when seven civic organizations will combine their weekly meetings to hear the transportation expert's views on a subject of widespread interest.

The organizations which will participate in the meeting are the Chamber of Commerce, Atlanta Freight Bureau, Atlanta Traffic Club, Masonic Club, Lions Club, Civitan Club and Kiwanis Club.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

L. A. 'Pioneers' Are Soft Crew. LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5.—The pioneers of the soft frontier, who are having such a hard time feeling sorry for themselves, do not seem to have much in common with the people who made it the hard way in the covered wagons.

Of course Los Angeles, for all the tall buildings, gigolos and spotty sophistication of the place, is still a frontier city. It is a jumbled mixture of prospectors of one kind and another who followed the realtor and the lure of ease. Only in a new and jumbled population would you find such a large proportion of religious nuts, ready to hop up and holler "Glory" under the spell of any corn salve preacher who sets up a pitch and begins to whoop.

The population certainly is not composed of the hardiest types of Americans.

On the contrary it is largely made up of people who couldn't or wouldn't take it in the hard winters back home.

Life Not Hard In Los Angeles. Life is not hard in Los Angeles. A livable bungalow may be had for $10 a month and many of the people who live in such houses are outlanders who receive their rent from the taxpayers through the county treasury. They came here to take the sun and divide up their nothing and their troubles with more fortunate people who had moved in long before and worked to develop a town and accumulate something for themselves.

A dime will buy four dozen oranges on some of the stands along the highway. Carrots and beets are so cheap that the retailers prefer not to sell them by the single bunch if they can induce the buyer to take four bunches for 10 cents. Potatoes are one cent a pound in lots of a dime's worth. Onions are two cents a pound. A dime will buy four pounds of grapes or apples. A nickel buys four stalks of celery. Grapefruit are a little over two cents each in lots of half a dozen.

At one open air market there is an offering of puppies of miscellaneous breed at 75 cents each.

Former Iowan Awaits Pension. An immigrant woman, in from Iowa and now approaching 60, is talking confidently with never an "if" or "maybe" of a happy day soon to come when Upton Sinclair, that blessed Mahatma, will begin to pay her $200 a month for the splendid achievement of having lived three-score years. Her only regret in the world, now that her own future seems to her to be marvelously secured, is the fact that her old friend Sam, the gardener and handy man, who also came in from the outside, did not live to enjoy his pension of $200 a month. Sam died a few months ago.

The old lady is a bit confused in her politics but is hardly to blame for that. She thinks it was Mahatma Sinclair who promised her $200 a month for having lived 60 years. The Mahatma changes his EPIC plan so casually that even an alert politician with an adult mind could hardly be expected to keep up with his promises from day to day. The truth is that not the Mahatma but an old physician, also an imported Californian, and rising 60 years himself, thought up the plan whereby the taxpayers of California would be required to pay $200 a month to every person over 60 years who might care to move in and become a resident. The Mahatma is one who can nod and shake his head in one and the same motion. Sometimes he has favored the pension plan and at other times he has favored it with variations.

Various Ways To Avoid Paying. A man who lives in a bungalow renting at, say, $20 a month, finds himself in a fix. He, too, may be out of a job or down to the bottom of the barrel but the fact that he lives in a $20 house identifies him as a sort of lower case aristocrat. The county cannot support aristocrats. Let him move into a $10 bungalow if he wants the taxpayers to support him. Or, failing that, he still has a remedy of his own whereby the taxpayer has to pay his rent. He can just tell his landlord to try and get it. This has been tried with good results.

The poverty of the country is apparent everywhere. The country is badly overloaded. Its population is far beyond the present capacity of the community to support life and particularly the sort of life which these pioneers expected to lead on the soft frontier. There are communist scraps in the suburbs and in the Los Angeles branch of the state university. Undoubtedly the soft pioneers prefer to work for their living and are desperately eager for jobs and losing morale day by day. But the fact still remains that they would be much worse off if they were unemployed back home and are much less to be pitied than people in the same circumstances who will have to front the blizzards and sleet.

Sinclair To Serve But in Defeat. The Mahatma will draw his vote from the ranks of the people who attached themselves to California and declared themselves in for rations, quarters, heat and light. If elected he would smash up the state completely. He can perform his greatest service to California in defeat because he has thrown the fear of revolution into the complacent republicans who rode the taxpayers' and workingmen's backs for generations. They now realize that they had better be good—or else.

MOSELEY MENTIONED FOR HIGH ARMY POST

Major General George Van Horn Moseley, commanding the fourth corps area, is being prominently mentioned in Washington and New York papers as the president's next choice for chief of staff of the United States army.

General Moseley served as deputy chief of staff prior to April, 1933.

Another possible candidate for the post is Major General Frank R. McCoy, former fourth corps area commander and now commanding the fifth corps area at Omaha, Neb. General McCoy was in command of the fourth corps from October, 1929, to January, 1932.

CONVICTION IS UPHELD IN LARCENY OF AUTO

Conviction of Hughey W. Davis, Atlantan, of automobile larceny and possession of a car on which the motor number had been altered, was upheld by the Georgia court of appeals in a ruling Monday, despite the guilty plea of Milton Wright, who insists that Davis had nothing to do with the theft of the car.

The court held that "recent possession of stolen property without a satisfactory accounting therefor authorizes the inference that the possessor is the thief," and cited the contention that both defendants knew the car was stolen but had agreed that the one caught should "take the rap" and absolve the other.

JUDGE G. H. HOWARD WILL LEAVE BENCH

Fulton Jurist to Quit When Term Expires; New Jury Charged.

Judge G. H. Howard, who has served 14 years on the bench of Fulton superior court, announced Monday that he will not offer for re-election at the end of his term, two years hence, but will retire from public life and devote himself to the private practice of law.

Judge Howard expressed in warm terms his appreciation of the kindness shown to him by the people of the area, but said that he felt that he could continue to serve the public in a private capacity.

In charging the new grand jury, Judge Howard first made known his decision for retirement, and summarized his observations on major problems during his service, for the guidance of the jury.

Comparing the present economic situation with the hardships which confronted the founders of the nation, Judge Howard said that the people today are likely to lose sight of, or fail to comprehend, the basic ideas which moved the framers of the constitution. Referring to the constitutional group, Judge Howard expressed the opinion that a five-year search would not produce such a group of men today.

May Be Worth While.

"However," the court continued, "if out of this great depression there arise two or three great leaders such as guided the nation's destiny then, the depression will have been well worth while."

The court cautioned the grand jury that its duties lie apart from politics or partisan influence.

"As to your power of investigation and your recommendations," he said, "the sky is the limit." At the same time he told the jury to guard against any recommendations fostering individual interests or individual-group interest.

Referring to the Roosevelt policy, Judge Howard said that the framers of the constitution had in mind the protection of the underprivileged, which protection is being safeguarded by the chief executive.

L. D. Hale, secretary to the auditor of A. & W. P. railroad, was named foreman of the new grand jury. J. A. Riviere, clerk of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, is secretary.

18 Jurors Qualify.

Only 18 jurors qualified out of a panel of 32, and 10 additional names were drawn during the day. The five remaining members will be qualified Friday.

In addition to the two officers, the grand jury is as follows: E. C. Findley, Duluth, Ga.; H. W. Reese, 397 West Peachtree street; J. H. Bentley, 778 Parkway drive; S. B. Adamson, 888 Lake avenue; Carroll Griffin, 115 Sixteenth street; A. J. Orme Jr., 1325 Peachtree street; C. E. Mohns, 901 Forrest road; W. A. Spell, 685 Grady place; F. M. Akers Jr., 3950 Vermont road; W. F. Poole, 957 Oglethorpe avenue; W. A. Lyle, 28 Fulton street; J. O. Brown, 574 Griffin street; R. J. Morris, 343 Pulliam street; R. E. Hancock, 554 Tenth street; E. W. Newman, 1575 Olympian way; H. S. Link, 229 Thirteenth street, and George P. Murry, 3969 Wieuca road.

The 10 additional names drawn are: Thomas K. Glenn, president of Georgia Trust Company; J. W. Boone, jeweler; M. E. Sligh, 142 Forsyth street; P. M. Smoak, department head, First National bank; A. R. Nolen, 1162 Lucile avenue; Frank H. Leslie, 902 Adair avenue, of Goldsmith & Leslie; George F. McNulty, 1253 Lucile avenue; S. E. Treadwell, 803 Central avenue, and C. R. Donehoo, 7 Edwin place, Center Hill.

Warm, Fair Weather Is Predicted Today

Atlanta shouldn't kick on her weather today, with continued high temperature for this time of year and on abatement of the blustery wind that kept Atlantans grabbing at their hats Monday, says Forecaster George W. Mindling.

Temperature today is expected to closely imitate that of Monday, with a range of 50 to 70 degrees. Monday's reading showed a low of 49 degrees and a high of 71. No rain is in sight for Atlanta for some time, the weatherman said.

The northwestern area of the country is being blessed with its natural portion of below-freezing temperature, the weather map shows. The northeastern region has been enjoying moderate temperature, with rain reported at Boston, Buffalo, Toledo and New York city.

WORK OF TRAINING YOUTHS IN TRADES IS PUSHED BY U. S.

Apprentice training is the newest activity of the federal government under the NRA, according to B. B. Lassister, Georgia labor compliance officer.

"The crux of the whole plan is to train young or inexperienced workers in a trade, very much in the manner that is practiced in Europe." Mr. Lassiter said. "This will allow for a payment of wages below the NRA minimum during the period of training, and should result in better workmen who eventually will be able to earn better wages than they otherwise would."

Contracts between apprentices and employers will be passed upon by a state agency for apprentice training, according to Mr. Lassiter. The Georgia state agency will be composed of Mr. Lassiter, Lincoln McConnell, of Macon, Georgia state director of the federal re-employment service; Thomas H. Quigley, of the department of vocational education at Georgia Tech; Hal M. Stanley, of the Georgia department of industrial relations; two men from the Georgia Federation of Labor, and two men selected from a group of manufacturers and employers.

The federal commission of apprentice training was created under the combined efforts of the department of labor, the NRA and the federal division of education.

NEGROWOMANINDICTED IN "FAKE CLAIM" CASE

Roxie Burton, a negro woman, was named in an indictment returned by the new grand jury Monday charging her with a misdemeanor in connection with an alleged fake claim against Georgia Power Company.

It is charged that the woman attempted to obtain $5,000 from the company, representing falsely that she had been caught in a street car door and was confined to bed for two weeks as a result.

Forgery of a Fulton county relief administration requisition was charged in a bill naming Edward Hendrix, who is charged with signing the name of Ed Henderson to a $2 grocery order.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

By MOLLIE MERRICK

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 5.—A new Garbo picture always causes breathless excitement among the studio personnel of this village. Garbo retains her magic although a Dietrich picture previewed isn't to be sneezed at. And when the public have absorbed Ann Sten's latest venture, "We Live Again," there will be a different tempo about this lass.

Garbo in "The Painted Veil," in a day when Somerset Maugham's adult story could have been handled in the correct manner, would have been something to remember. Garbo was as lovely as she looked in "The Torrent," if you can remember that far back. In the early scenes of this picture, dressed in a characteristically feminine manner, which later gives over in favor of completely neutralized orientalisms, she has a life, a charm and an unforgettable beauty which made her the name in gelatine that she has become.

With the decision to star Rosamund Pinchot in a story by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements called "The Brave Live On," David Selznick names one of the great departures in cinematics.

Very tall ladies have never had a life on the screen. Garbo's five feet eight has always been soft-pedaled, since there are no end of people who can't assimilate the idea of any woman of such proportions being attractive. Gary Cooper's six feet three is pared down to six feet in order that the unimaginative may fit him into the conventional mold of masculine attractiveness. And what to do about Rosamund Pinchot's close to six feet will be something to watch. It's a handsome face, with plenty of spirit and allure combined. She has a fine, simple manner completely free from theatricalisms, and that is a great asset in a day when simplicity is as rare as gold coins.

The screen needs a new sensation—perhaps the Pinchot will be it.

15 ATLANTA MEN GIVEN RESERVE COMMISSIONS

Nine physicians, two dentists and four other Atlantans have been commissioned in the United States army reserve corps and five other Georgians have been promoted, Lieutenant Colonel Gilbert Marshall, in charge of Georgia reserve corps affairs, announced Monday.

Atlantans commissioned first lieutenants in the medical corps are Drs. Frank Henry Neuffer, St. Joseph's infirmary; Cecil Malcolm Hogan, 433 Euclid terrace; Kenneth Dell Grace, Grady hospital; William Edgefield Mitchell, 35 Fourth street, N. E.; Charles Stedman Glisson, Grady hospital; Walter Dudley Spearman, St. Joseph's infirmary; Henry Clevis Colins, Grady hospital; Robert Eakes Jones, Grady hospital, and Philip Wood Oden, Grady hospital.

Dr. William Palmer Drew Jr., 1 North Fulton drive, and Dr. John Rodolph Jordan Jr., 1013 Candler building, were appointed first lieutenants in the dental corps.

Other appointments include Thomas James Flynn, Fort McPherson, second lieutenant of infantry; Byron Glenn Gifford, 316 Hillcrest avenue, Decatur, second lieutenant, infantry; Wooten Taylor Sumerford, Athens, second lieutenant, sanitary corps; Joseph Lustrat Winecoff, 15 Peachtree avenue, second lieutenant, cavalry, and Robert Humphrey Tomlinson Jr., 1264 Burlington road, second lieutenant, finance department.

First Lieutenant Ferdinand Hubert Major, Atlanta, was promoted to captain, corps of engineers; William Faulkner Catron, Atlanta, to first lieutenant, infantry; Clyde Edgar Trussell, Watkinsville, first lieutenant, quartermaster corps; Seth Ward Dailey, Atlanta, first lieutenant, infantry, and Richard Orme Flinn Jr., Rome, first lieutenant, infantry.

AAA Will Reward Peanut Oil Conversion

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace ruled today that peanut oil manufacturers who divert peanuts purchased this year into oil instead of other commercial channels will be entitled to AAA payments.

The decision followed announceemnt of similar payments for peanut growers under the general program for adjusting production and balancing the supply of shelled goods to the effective demand.

Payments will be made to manufacturers on farmers' stock peanuts grown in 1934, and purchased and processed after October 1. It does not cover peanuts sold under agreements by growers to divert their stock for oil manufacture.

Manufacturers who make such diversions will be paid $16 a ton on Virginia type peanuts; $12 for Spanish type; and $84 for runner type.

NEWSPAPERS CAN PRINT RACE RESULTS IN LA.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Judge Frank T. Echezabal, in criminal district court today, held that an act passed at the 1934 special session of the Louisiana legislature prohibiting the dissemination of race track information does not apply to newspapers or magazines.

Dismissing criminal charges against William J. Lirette, newsdealer charged in a "test case" for selling out-of-state newspapers which contained racing results and gentral track information, Judge Echezabal said it was "reasonable to assume that the legislature meant to exempt newspapers and magazines from provisions of the act."

His decison pointed out that the act was obviously framed to stamp out handbook operations by prohibiting the dissemination of last-minute racing information and quick results.

The telephone, telegraph and radio, "and other such instrumentalities," the court said in effect, furnish such immediate information necessary in running a gambling business, whereas the lapse of time required in publishing racing information by a newspaper or magazine eliminates the use of the information for gambling purposes.

AUTO ACCIDENTS FATAL TO FOUR

75-Year-Old Woman, Grandson, Child Killed Near Summerville.

SUMMERVILLE, Ga., No. 5.—Two automobile accidents on highways near here within the last 24 hours caused the death of three persons, one a tot four years old, and injury to six others.

In a collision between two cars on the Summerville-Rome road, near Gore, early tonight, the 4-year-old child of James Brown, of Lafayette, was instantly killed and the father had several teeth knocked out, suffered a fractured skull and body injuries. He is in Summerville hospital and had not regained consciousness tonight. A. W. Busby, of Rome, companion of Brown, suffered body bruises and after being given treatment at the hospital, was carried to his home in Rome.

C. C. Cleghorn, prominent businessman of Summerville, in the other car, who was returning to Summerville from Rome, was seriously injured, having a lacerated scalp, a broken arm and injured hip. He was brought to Summerville hospital. Smith McCutchen, a negro, said to have been driving the Cleghorn car, was hurt on the face and hands, but not seriously.

The Cleghorn car was traveling north and the car occupied by Brown and Busby was traveling south. Both cars were demolished.

Cause of the collision had not been determined tonight.

Two persons were killed and two others seriously injured late Sunday afternoon when a truck overturned on the Cloudland-Mentone highway, 15 miles west of here, just across the Georgia-Alabama line in Alabama.

Mrs. Hartford Brown, 75, was instantly killed in the wreck and her grandson, Carl Brown, 20, died shortly after reaching Summerville hospital. Both were residents of Mentone.

Two other passengers, Mrs. Ray Cox and Mrs. Paul Tolliver, were seriously injured. Mrs. Tolliver's leg was broken and she was otherwise severely injured. Several other passengers in the truck escaped with minor injuries.

It is said the accident occurred when the truck struck an automobile parked on the side of the road.

FORT GAINES CRASH FATAL TO A. DONEGUE

FORT GAINES, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP) Adolphe Donegue, 23, died last night in a Eufaula, Ala., hospital from injuries received in a week-end automobile accident on the Fort Gaines-Bluffton road. Four others were injured seriously.

Gordon Grimsley was reported in a critical condition at Cuthbert, and Harry C. Hubbard was reported suffering two broken legs and a fractured arm and jawbone.

Horace Martin and W. M. Knighton were less seriously hurt.

Macon Boy in New York Sends Laundry Home

MACON, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP)—A Macon student at New York University gets his laundry done via long distance.

Frank Spikes, who also teaches chemistry, sends his laundry home to be done by the family's negro washerwoman. It costs him about $1 postage each way.

Nurse Training by Colleges Urged at Athens Convention

Important addresses on health subjects will feature the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Georgia Nurses' Association, which is in session at Athens. Dr. D. L. Seckinger, of Atlanta, of the state board of health, shown above, will speak tolay. Miss Durice Dickerson, of Atlanta, also shown, is president of the Georgia League of Nursing, and will preside at the meetings of that body.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Mrs. Dorothy Treakle, of Savannah, president of the Georgia Nurses' Association, told the group in convention here tonight there should be a "drastic reduction" of hospital training schools for nurses because the profession is overcrowded.

She was joined in her plea by Miss Meda Marsh, of Okmulgee, Okla., representing the National Nurses' Association. She urged elimination of training for nurses at hospitals and substitution of education of nurses at colleges. This, she said, would broaden their training and raise the professional standards.

This same view was taken by Mrs. Treakle, who said the number of training schools in Georgia hospitals were being decreased. Both she and Mrs. Marsh declared there is an oversupply of nurses of inadequate professional requirements.

The Georgia League of Nursing Education, headed by Miss Durice Dickerson, of Atlanta, is holding sessions along with the general convention, as are the state organization of public health nursing, headed by Mrs. Mabel Brown, of Macon, and the private duty section, headed by Miss Freida Grefe, of Savannah. The League of Nursing Education, which Miss Dickerson heads, has sessions scheduled for 10 a. m. and 11 a. m tomorrow.

Miss Gay B. Shepperson, director of the federal emergency relief in Georgia, and Dr. S. V. Sanford, president of the University of Georgia, also were on the nurses' program tonight. Miss Shepperson outlined the health work of the FERA and declared that "the relationship between illness and poverty on the one hand and illness and unemployment on the other is inescapable."

Stressing the importance of safeguarding public health, Miss Shepperson declared, "I look forward to the time when Georgia will have, financed from state funds, a statewide nursing service for the care of our children and sick poor. It seems to me that such an investment would pay tremendous social and economic dividends."

On tomorrow's program will be Dr. D. L. Seckinger, state epidemitologist of the state board of health, Atlanta, who will speak on "Some Recent Developments in the Prevention and Control of Communicable Diseases."

THREE ORDERED HELD IN KILLING AT ROME

Coroner's Jury Requests Detention of Trio in Death of Woman.

ROME, Ga., Nov. 5.—Three persons were ordered held today by Coroner Charles J. Ogles, of Floyd county, in connection with the death of Valsie Mathis, 39, who was found dead on a new street near her home in North Rome last Wednesday night. Two of the three, Arthur Turner, sawmill worker, and Rebecca Stroud, a negress, have been held for questioning since the night the body was found. Another woman, Mrs. Lottie Green, 25, pretty brunette and mother of three children, was arrested by police today.

The coroner's jury held a closed session. An insurance policy for $500 on the life of Miss Mathis, taken out last August 4, and naming Turner as beneficiary, it is said, was introduced as evidence at the hearing. Turner and Mrs. Green are friends, police say.

Miss Mathis' body was found early Wednesday night in a new-cut street near her home, with the front of her skull crushed.

'Spontaneous Strike' Offers New Problem

CLEVELAND, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A "spontaneous strike" of nearly 700 employes of the Kaynee Company, manufacturers of shirts and children's clothing, gave federal conciliators here an unusual kind of labor problem today.

Although many of the strikers are members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, officials of the union said the walkout was unauthorized and unexpected.

The union is seeking a 10 per cent wage increase, acceptance of collective bargaining and arbitration of disputes, and was waiting a decision on its case by the national labor relations board at Washington.

The case reached the board only a few days ago, but apparently the workers were unwilling to wait.

Pickets appeared when the plant opened today, and only a few of the employes tried to get past them. Beryl Peppercorn, manager of the joint board of the Amalgamated, said about 30 entered the plant. Most of the others watched from across the street.

Cops Have Big Feet, Says Augusta Shiner

AUGUSTA, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP)—The old saying that "all cops have big feet" has found proof in a shine boy.

George Hughes, a lad of 13, uses police headquarters for his shoe shine stand because, he says, he has found after a month's experience that waiting on cops is profitable.

He collects 5 cents a shine for ordinary shoes and 10 cents for a traffic officer's boots, but he's thinking of boosting the price.

George has considered his income and his dwindling supply of polish.

"Cops' feet are larger than anybody else's," he observed.

Richetti Is Indicted On Conspiracy Count

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A federal grand jury capped its charges of Kansas City racketeering tonight with an indictment accusing Adam Richetti, Oklahoma outlaw, of conspiracy to obstruct justice in the 1933 Union station slayings.

The grand jury, which had reported Kansas City gang-ridden and inefficiently policed, filed the most serious federal indictment possible against the outlaw companion of the late Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, accused with Richetti and Verne C. Miller of the station killings. Floyd was slain Oct. 22, in Ohio by officers two days after Richetti's arrest there. Miller was killed near Detroit by gangsters who feared the searching federal agents.

Richetti testified for an hour late today before the grand jury. He was taken to the federal building in an armored car and walked to the grand jury room under guard of officers armed with machine guns.

Tonight he was placed on a train, accompanied by two officers, and started back to Ohio under the provisions of a writ of habeas corpus by which he was brought here. In Ohio, Missouri highway patrolmen will seek custody of him for the slaying of one of their number and a county sheriff near Columbia, Mo.

Atlanta To Be Visited By Secretary of War

Secretary of War George H. Dern is expected to drop down out of the skies Wednesday, to pay a hurried call on Major General George Van Horn Moseley, fourth corps area commander, at his new quarters in the old federal building.

Secretary Dern intended paying a longer visit to Atlanta but according to a telegram received Monday by General Moseley, he must hurry to Washington on business entailed in the appointment of a new chief of staff to succeed General Douglas MacArthur.

The secretary of war is on an air tour of the south to inspect rivers and harbors. The tour carried the secretary along the Mississippi river, into Texas, to Mobile and to Birmingham, where he expects to leave for Atlanta Wednesday.

WEST POINT SCHOOL TO HEAR SPEAKERS

WEST POINT, Ga., Nov. 5.—Addresses on some phase of education will be given at the West Point school this week at chapel exercises. "Education and Citizenship" was discussed Monday morning by Miss Bertha Heyman. Tuesday, Rev. George L. King will speak on "Education and Religion." Wednesday, President George H. Lanier will discuss "Education and Business." Thursday, Colonel Howell Morrow will tell of "Education and Government." Friday, Scout Executive Grady Bradshaw will speak on "Education and Recreation."

There will be community singing by the glee clubs of the school. Superintendent W. T. Harrison will preside over the exercises.

WATERWAYS MEETING IS SET FOR THURSDAY

COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP)—An organization to promote development of the Chattahoochee-Apalachicola river system will be formed at a valley-wide meeting of waterways enthusiasts here Thursday.

RECOVERY EVIDENCE SEEN IN SOUTHEAST

Improvement Lauded by Retiring Head of American Bank Body.

SEA ISLAND, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP)—The strides which the southeast in general, and Georgia in particular, have taken toward recovery were praised by Francis Marion Law, of Houston, Texas, retiring president of the American Bankers' Association, in a statement here.

"Perhaps in no part of the country is the recovery so much in evidence as in the southeast, and this is especially true in Georgia." Mr. Law said upon his arrival here for an early fall vacation.

"Farmers are repaying loans, bank deposits are increasing, and a more optimistic attitude is in evidence everywhere."

"Nerve and plenty of it is what the merchants and industrialists need," he commented, adding that the nation's bankers already have the nerve and the capital to easily supply the demand and that "contrary to the opinions of many" they are ready and willing to lend money to speed business conditions upward.

He defined the repayment of debts the most definite way in which the rising tide is indicated in business.

"The distribution of money through the federal government is undoubtedly responsible, at least in part, for this condition, through the encouragement to spend money and through the various federal positions given the jobless, as well as through aid to the needy," Law said.

ENGLAND TO PURCHASE TRANSATLANTIC PLANES

LONDON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The vision of a regular trans-Atlantic air service came a step nearer to reality today with an announcement by Sir Eric Geddes, chairman of Imperial Airways, at the company's annual meeting, that it soon was ordering airplanes which would be suitable for such a route.

"We have our own plans, which appear as promising as any others," said Sir Eric. "A great deal of research has been undertaken and, as a result, we are about to order, under an agreement with the air ministry, aircraft which should provide range and paying load to meet the requirements of the route more satisfactorily than anything yet projected for the purpose."

DUBLIN MAN FREED IN THEATER BURNING

DUBLIN, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP)—John W. Peck Jr. was acquitted today of a charge of burning the Ritz theater, a rival business, last March.

The jury took the case at 10 p. m. Friday and returned the acquittal at 3:30 p. m. today. A previous hearing of the case had resulted in mistrial.

Goemboes and Duce To Confer on Trade

ROME, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Premier Julius Goemboes, of Hungary, arrived tonight to confer with Il Duce concerning Italo-Hungarian trade treaties and possibly revision of the treaty of Trianon, which dished out slices of Hungary to the Little Entente after the World War.

DEAN NOE OPPOSES YOUTH PEACE RALLY

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 5.—(AP)—The Rev. Isreal H. Noe, dean of St. Mary's Episcopal cathedral, resigned from the Memphis Protestant Pastors' Association today after the organization had voted to indorse an Armistice day mass meeting of the combined youth group of Memphis.

The youth group, one of its sponsors, the Rev. Alfred Loaring-Clark, rector of St. John's Episcopal church, explained, will meet to protest war and to commemorate the dead of the World War.

Dean Noe made clear that he favors peace, but declared the belief that the pastors' association, should take no part in the meeting.

CHURCH OF NAZARENE IS TO MEET IN MACON

MACON, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP)—The annual convention of the Georgia district, Church of the Nazarene, will open Wednesday and continue through Sunday with sessions at the First Church of the Nazarene here.

Rev. R. T. Williams, D. D., of Kansas City, Mo., will speak at a preliminary service to be held tomorrow night. As general superintendent he will preside over the convention.

Besides the 150 ministers and delegates expected, many visitors will attend from various points in Georgia and other states, prominent among them being Dr. C. E. Hardy, of Nashville, Tenn., president of the Southeastern Nazarene College, and M. Lunn, of Kansas City, general treasurer of the denomination.

The Church of the Nazarene was organized in 1908 with 6,000 members and now has a membership of more than 117,000.

GAIN OF $3,213,738 IN CENTRAL RETURNS

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP)—The bill brought recently by the Central of Georgia railway against W. B. Harrison, state comptroller-general, in which the railroad protested the tax assessments fixed by the state, was dismissed in the United States district court today after it was announced an agreement had been reached over the amount of the assessment.

The dismissal order formally ends a long fight over the issue during which Governor Talmadge last May referred to a restraining order of Judge William H. Barrett as "an action against the sovereignty of the state of Georgia."

Judge Barrett held at that time that the assessments made by the state were "arbitrary, unfair and discriminatory," granting an injunction to the receiver of the Central and to the Savannah & Atlanta railroad.

T. M. Cunningham, counsel-general for the Central, announced to the court this morning the state official had agreed the railway could make a return of $19,392,277 on properties.

The original 1934 return of H. D. Pollard, receiver of the Central of Georgia, was for $16,178,539, which return was rejected and an assessment of $44,100,000 placed against the road, Cunningham revealed this morning.

Mrs. McMillian resided in Columbus for the past six years, having come here from Dawson. She was a member of the Brooksville Methodist church, Brooksville, Ga.

Surviving her are a son, James McMillian, of Shellman; a daughter, Mrs. J. W. Whatley, of Columbus; a brother, Gus Ostzen, of Camilla, Ga.

GIRL WHO RESCUED 2 MEN FROM OCEAN PASSES AT MACON

MACON, Ga., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Miss Marion Jordan, who, at the age of 19, risked her life to save two men from drowning at St. Simons island, lost in a battle against pneumonia in a private hospital here yesterday. She was sick only a few days.

It was in July, 1929, that Miss Jordan, who had been trained in life saving work at Wesleyan College, performed the act of heroism at St. Simons that attracted wide attention.

Malcolm E. Everett, of Macon, was carried out by the undertow after jumping from an improvised raft, and was floundering in the water when her attention was attracted to the scene. In the meantime Everett's friend, Frank Mathews, Atlanta, who was first to reach Everett, also was in trouble. Both men were near drowning when Miss Jordan reached them. She saved both and then modestly disappeared from the rescue picture.

Misis Jordan graduated at Wesleyan College in 1931. She was a teacher in the schools here for the last three years and contracted a severe cold which developed into pneumonia.

The Service... WE CANNOT SEE

IT is just human nature and we are all guilty of it, in failing to understand or appreciate fully—the service we cannot see.

We turn the water faucet, throw on the electric light, tune in the radio, light the gas, talk by telephone. How much thought do you and I ever give to the tremendous organization or the service which makes these things possible? Only at a point where it goes wrong, do we think of it.

Each day in our bank, this unseen service goes on. We mail a check to California. The cancelled check is in our statement envelope at the end of the month—the money has been delivered. Our money is loaned out to stimulate the channels of trade and move the wheels of industry—and yet it is always available when we ask for it. We deposit in a Savings Account and our money earns interest.

In a hundred different forms this unseen service moves—and behind it all is security and safety for our most valuable material possession—our money.

Perhaps we owe it to ourselves to learn more of this unseen service. Perhaps we owe it to our bank to appreciate this service more. Perhaps we owe it to our own best interest to see that our bank earns a profit on these services, so that it will always remain sound and safe and our money will be secure.

THE LAUGHING GIRL MYSTERY

By Viola Paradise

INSTALLMEN XXXIV.

"Very well. Six years ago, Coggs, alias Victor Verseter, and Nan, alias Vera Verseter, vaudeville impersonators, read in the London Times that Dr. Coe, famous archaeologist, and his assistants, Sheridan Dinard and Lester Wilcox, were visiting Dr. Wellington preparatory to an expedition into Egypt. Sheridan Dinard—that name in Asbury Sheridan's will represented one of the obstacles between a large fortune and the Verseter's son, William. The following year an alleged accident occurred; Asbury Sheridan and all his direct descendants were drowned when a bridge gave way. Now only Daisy and Dinard stood between William and a fortune. The gypsy at Daisy's stage door, probably a Verseter in disguise, fostered what superstitions she had by foretelling delays if she told anyone the predictions. Both the fortune and the delay came true. Daisy, now, could be counted on not to marry and produce additional heirs before she could be murdered. Meanwhile Dinard must be attended to."

"You mean," Dr. Coe asked, "that the scheme was worked out six years ago?"

"Most of it. The Versatile Verseters disappeared from the stage. Willie's confession says he and his mother came to America. His father, impersonating a drain inspector, got into Dr. Wellington's house, and 'by accident' dropped a weight on the real Marlin's hand, temporarily disabling it. Next day, in a new disguise, he presented a forged recommendation from a recently deceased archaeologist to Dr. Wellington. Marlin's bruised hand got him a temporary job. Cogg's or rather Verseter's intention was to earn a recommendation from Dr. Wellington to present to Dr. Coe later. But luck played into his hand. Dr. Wellington was about to sell his collection, and the real Marlin wished to emigrate to America."

"And then," Joey excitedly guessed ahead, "he went with Marlin, shoved him overboard, made himself up to look like Marlin, and got the job with Dr. Coe, where he could spy on Mr. Dinard."

"Right, Joey. But even the real Marlin probably did not recognize his cabin mate, for he crossed in disguise as a carpenter with a fake passport."

"But why did he wait so long for his murders?" Adelaide asked.

"He had to establish himself as an American, be forgotten as a Verseter, and bring about a situation which would make Dinard seem to have murdered Daisy. Once the state had electrocuted Dinard, Willie could be discovered in Australia, surprised at his good fortune.

"But the matter moved slowly; the perfect setting had not developed. Then two years ago Dinard met Adelaide Sayre. Miss Sayre and her aunt had lived for many years at their present address. So a Mr. Coggs sprang into being, and went into real estate business. He bought the house on Twelfth street, another on Ninth, and a place at Quapatuck."

"He must have had money."

"Mrs. Coggs has money. Her father was a successful counterfeiter for many years before he was caught. But they were greedy."

"What precipitated them just at this time?" Wilcox asked. "Dinard's engagement?"

"That, and the fact that Daisy, after inheriting, could make a will of her own. And the very nearness to Daisy's twenty-fifth birthday made it a conspicuous time to make Dinard seem to murder her. Besides, Dinard must be got out of the way before his marriage, to prevent a new obstacle—a possible heir. From this point, the rest of the story, I imagine, is clear."

"I don't see how he managed his timing," said Sheridan, "and the changes in personality. Especially Saturday. He reached the museum at 10:30 and stayed till past 1."

"Quite simple. He left his house about 9:30, having Oswald carry his bag to the street car. In the men's room at the Pennsylvania Station he met his son, who had a make-up box. Occupying adjoining toilet compartments, they followed the usual Saturday routine. William became Coggs, limped out, joined Mrs. Coggs and proceeded to Quapatuck. Coggs rechecked the make-up box and appeared at the museum as Marlin.

"After every one had gone, he opened the cabinet with a key he had had made in advance, took the dagger, and then proceeded to remove all his fingerprints from the museum. As he was about to leave, he saw on Dinard's desk the statuette, which could easily be converted into a door knocker—and an additional clue. Dinard, he knew, was calling for Miss Sayre about 6:30. He would, therefore stage the murder about that time. He would not meet Daisy's ship which docked at 2, but would go home, wait for her telephone call, and have her arrive about 5:30, visit with her and give her time to get into her costume. He decoyed Oswald to Ninth street so that he would not, even in some disguise, be seen entering his apartment.

"The rest was easy," Alby continued. "Daisy waited two hours and telephoned. He told her to bring her trunk check and to come to his apartment after 5. He drilled the peep-hole into the door, and just before she arrived attached the statuette.

"She arrived and changed her costume. They visited. He kept watch. He saw Dinard come in and start up the stairs. Then something—we'll never know what—must have made her laugh. Nervousness? Excitement? But this laugh was not according to plan. It had to be stopped. He stabber her 'in the mid-peal' as Dinard put it.

"He watched to see Sheridan and Adelaide come downstairs. He heard them talk with Oswald, and was ready for his getaway, at the moment of Dinard's unforeseen return to get Miss Sayre's forgotten letter. While Dinard was upstairs, he opened the door, removed the statuette, and quickly plugged the hole with putty. From the window he saw Dinard drive off with Miss Sayre, then dashed up to her apartment and planted a scratch in her cupboard. Then in some unrecognizable character, probably unlike either Coggs or Marin, he walked out of the house with Daisy's bag. When we find the bag, we'll doubtless find something of Dinard's planted in it.

"And all this while Willie was blatantly establishing the Coggses' alibi in Quapatuck.

"A telephone message to Quapatuck told of the deed. Then he took Daisy's trunk check to some expressman whom he had spotted in advance, arranged for the time of delivery to the Hotel Astrakan, also chosen in advance. He telephoned to the Ballards', asked for Dinard, pretended to be Dr. Swithin, an English anthropologist, who had to see Dinard immediately at the Waldorf. That took Dinard away from the Ballards' long enough to spoil his natural alibi. All Coggs had to do then was to watch the trunk being delivered, go into the hotel, open it, remove Daisy's letters, and hurry back to the museum, to get the telephone call he knew would come—the one from Dinard asking about Dr. Swithin.

"On the way in he dropped the statuette in the bushes. Then he replaced the dagger, leaving the case open, to attract attention to it. He saw a chance to involve Dinard further by waiting and planting an angry letter of resignation.

"About this time he knew the police would be questioning Oswald, and that Oswald would have told about the door knocker and its mysterious disappearance.

"And then Dinard telephoned, gave him his chance to explode with outraged pride, leave the typed note in the typewriter, and get out.

"Then he went back to the Pennsylvania station in time to meet Willie, as Coggs. And once more in the men's room they changed personalities. And Mr. Coggs then went back to Twelfth street with his wife."

"Gosh!" Said Joey.

"And then Willie," Higgins added, "made his big mistake. He wasn't content to let the law take its course. Instead he tried to bump Dinard off."

"But how did you know where to look for Willie?"

"We knew," said Alby, "that Coggs must have been getting letters from the girl. We did some guessing and visiting around till we found the right postoffice. And by a stroke of luck Willie, calling for the last letter. We should have found him anyway. All outgoing steamers were being watched; we found a ticket for La Guaira in Willie's pocket."

"He sure must have been a swift human fly," said Joey, "to have got down off the roof and out of the black thing I saw him in and into his nightshirt before Burt and the other detectives got into the house."

"He was a lightning change artist. We found the black costume—acrobat's tights—while he and Mrs. Coggs were on their way to the museum this afternoon—tucked between the refrigerting coils of the icebox. And now," Alby stood up, "if—"

"Scuse me, boss," Oswald raised his gold-lettered superintendent's cap respectfully. "But don't nobody know where a married man kin get a job? Of course I'll stay and keep the fires going through Miss Sayre's wedding next Saturday—"

There was a burst of laughter. But Dinard smiled at Oswald. "Maybe I can put in a good word," he said. "Dr. Coe's going to need a new caretaker for the museum—"

"That's right nice of you, Mr. Dinard. I always did say you didn't seem like a murderin' man!"

FAMOUS STORIES.

II—St. George and the Dragon.

Ireland has St. Patrick, Scotland, has St. Andrew, and England has St. George for "patron saint."

St. George slaying the dragon.

St. George spent at least part of his life in Asia Minor, and died there more than 1,600 years ago, probably as a Christian martyr. That is about all we really know of him, but legends have grown around his name; and some of them were written down by Jacobus, archbishop of Genoa, during the Middle Ages. Among the stories which the bishop recorded is that of St. George and the Dragon.

St. George, we are told, made a visit to Egypt. Soon after arriving, he learned that the people were in fear of a terrible dragon. Unless it was given a fair maiden each day, it would kill hundreds of people with its poisonous breath. The king's daughter was to be the next victim.

Because he was a bold knight, and because he was promised that the princess would marry any man who killed the dragon, St. George rode forth to do battle. Reaching a valley he beheld the monster roaming about. It was making a bellowing noise louder than thunder; but the knight's heart did not give way. Leveling his spear, he galloped to the attack.

The spear broke into pieces as it struck, and the dragon switched its tail so that both the knight and his steed were knocked to the ground. By good fortune they fell near an orange tree which had flowers with an odor which the dragon did not like.

St. George rested until his strength came back. With a new spear and with his magic sword, he made another charge. He struck with his sword, and then he plunged his spear into the monster. In a moment it fell dead.

The king did not keep his promise to give his daughter in marriage; but after many further adventures in other lands, St. George returned to Egypt as a conqureror and was crowned king of the country.

That is what the legend tells us. We of today do not believe that there were dragons in Egypt or anywhere else. It appears that the story about St. George grew out of the older Greek tale of how Perseus slew the Gorgon Medusa. The effort was to give a Christian knight the same honor which had gone to a Greek hero.

Portugal and the large section of Spain known as Aragon, as well as England, have claimed St. George as a patron saint.

DOUMERGUE RULE FACES NEW PERIL

Radical Socialist Followers of Herriot Between Two Evils.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Premier Gaston Doumergue's emergency cabinet was again in danger of overthrow tonight, but its opponents, seeking to curb what they fear as impending dictatorship, were on the horns of a dilemma.

Former Premier Herriot's radical socialist cabinet followers were apprehensive on the one hand of renewed civil riots if the government is upset, and on the other of the wrath of their constituents if they support Doumergue.

Herriot and his five colleagues have been counseled by some to resign from the cabinet at tomorrow's meeting unless Doumergue offers to compromise on his demands for a strengthened government. Such action would break the political truce, but its proponents think it would avert, while others believe it would precipitate violence like that which cost 28 lives last February.

The aged premier was determined tonight to force through the chamber of deputies Wednesday or Thursday a measure providing credits for three months' government operations, which would give him time to act.

He was confident Herriot's radical socialists would not dare to overthrow him, but the Herriot group was in a tight corner and uncertain what to do. They were torn between a party doctrine which opposes doumergue's plan to provide for dissolving parliament without consent of the senate, and double-barreled anxiety—fear of their constituents. They fear the voters will throw them out if they desert their party policy defined at the recent Nantes congress.

Premier Doumergue, already something of a one-man government, proposes to strengthen his hand so he can really govern and end the French habit of throwing out governments too often. The average life of cabinets has been about nine months and in difficult times they have often lasted only a few days or a few weeks.

Doumergue wants:

1. Premier and president to be able to dissolve the chamber.
2. Real power in the premier to control the cabinet.
3. The chamber deprived of the right to initiate appropriations.

Good Chorus Numbers Feature at Burlesque

"Temptations of 1934," the current bill at the Atlanta theater, is a rebuilt show which tends to glorify the ladies of the chorus. Under the new director, Paul Morokoff, the chorus has taken on new life and pep, and for the first time in many long months the Monday afternoon matinee and audience applauded chorus numbers.

The chorine numbers are no longer just adequate backing for some strip or posing act, but have become a distinct part of the show, an outstanding and separate unit of the bill. Morokoff comes to Atlanta from the east, where he has produced for Shubert and the offering at the Atlanta this week is distinctly modeled on the latest Shubert burlesque production which is playing on the largest eastern burlesque circuit at present. It is a real show.

Morokoff is aided here by his brother, Charles, and, of course, Ray King, the theater's straightman who has had his hand in on all productions for the last few months. In addition, King feeds lines to the comics and keeps the show moving at a fast pace. This week the scenic effects are more lavish than ever before, and border lights, foot spotlights and floods from the wings are used for the first time.

The Bugle Call Rag number by the chorus drew a very good hand Monday afternoon, and the opening Taxi number of the second act was also well received. The Moon Glow number, the Gypsy fiddle act, and the King Kong ballet, are especially worthy of mention. Vick Garrett and "Delores," a new importation from New York, were pleasing in specialties. Al Pharr, Vic Hallen, and Dome Williams continue to give us chuckles and hearty laughs.

In the strips Buelah Bayer and Vick Garrett won good hands by merely walking on the stage. Joan Lee, the featured strip, still holds the fancy of the burlesqueites and seems to be growing in popularity.

Good Film, Stage Show Presented at Capitol

Hollywood has again turned the camera on itself, this time to search out a clever racket which operates among Los Angeles' impossible hopefuls. "365 Nights in Hollywood," with James Dunn and Alice Faye is the film and it may be seen at the Capitol theater in conjunction with "Southern Scandals," on the stage. The vaudeville bill is "all-cracker" this week, the billings state, and Monday night's audience evidently considered it a better show than last week's performance. A ballroom dancing team, "Val and Valerie," and "The Three Georgia Crackers," consisting of the orchestra leader, the master of ceremonies and a blackface comedian were the most popular acts.

The screen show is mostly of Alice Faye, a pleasant subject, and James Dunn's struggle to put her on the marquis lights. She comes from Peoria to study under the great ex-director, Dale—and parts with her cash at the sucker school.

An angel in love with Miss Faye puts up his uncle's legacy for a film to star the young lady. Dale gets the job, which will put him back into big time again, and contrary to his partner's intentions, spends the money on a successful picture. Miss Faye has a surprisingly good torch song delivery. She sings a very catchy tune, "I Love to Say Yes to You." The performance of Grant Mitchell, in operating the come-on game, is of the best.

If we had more space we could say many more good things of the stage show but it must suffice to say that the whole bill was well received. Six children did a collegiate football number that was encored with gusto; Ken Conroy's imitations of a trumpet, using only his hands, were cleverly done; Bob South, the minstrel, showed good technique with a harmonica and the tap team of June and Julie evidenced much practice. Malon Gunn (who plays the guitar and sings) and his recording orchestra with the line girls made a smart showing.

its members. Clause one defines the extent of the immunity. Its language is exact and leaves no room for a construction which would extend the privilege beyond the terms of the grant . . .

"History concerns the conclusion that the immunity is limited to arrest. The case cited in support of the contrary view rests largely upon doubtful notions as to the historic privileges of members of parliament before the enactment in 1770 of the statute of 10 George III C50. That act declared that members of parliament should be subject to civil process, provided they were not 'arrested or imprisoned.' When the constitution was adopted, arrests and civil suits were still common in America. It is only to such arrests that the provision applies."

Speech Not Grounds.

Clause one, referred to by Justice Brandeis, states that senators and representatives "shall in all cases, except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same."

The question of the immunity granted senators and representatives from statements made on the floor of their houses was not involved in today's suit since Ansell claimed Long libelled him by circulating copies of the senate speech.

The opinion today was the third reverse which Senator Long has had from the courts in the Ansell case. The District of Columbia supreme court told him he could not claim immunity; so did the District of Columbia circuit court of appeals. The latter court also said that if Ansell's claim were supported by the evidence, the senate committee counsel had been libeled.

Senator Long claimed that such a statement had prejudiced his case and asked that the highest court order such an assertion stricken from the circuit court opinion. The highest court apparently paid no attention to this plea.

Ansell's office indicated that the former judge advocate general had no comment to make on the decision.

SIR CHARLES' PLANE ATTACHED IN SUIT

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5.—(AP)—An attachment today tied up the monoplane Lady Southern Cross, which carried Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith and Captain P. G. Taylor across the Pacific in their classic flight from Australia to California.

While the flying knight was being saluted in Hollywood as a conquering hero, a deputy city marshal cocked a chair against the wall of the hangar where the famous plane rested and took possession in the name of the law.

The attachment was levied in a suit filed by E. Beverly, assignee of Tom Catton, who charged Sir Charles owed him $2,750 for services in 1928, when Kingsford-Smith was preparing for his historic flight from Oakland to Australia.

Beverly asserted Catton advanced money, goods and services worth $1,750. He claimed $1,000 interest.

Authorities said a bond of $5,500 would be necessary to effect release of the ship pending settlement of the case.

Kingsford-Smith, here in an attempt to sell the ship, himself made known that the plane, despite its crossing of the Pacific in 15 hours 49 minutes flying time, was not considered commercially acceptable. Rigid British and Australian aviation restrictions prevented commercial use of the low-winged monoplane in any of the dominions, the Los Angeles manufacturer of the ship explained. The manufacturer said the plane probably will be rebuilt here and resold in regular commercial channels.

Sir Charles paraded the streets of Los Angeles and Hollywood in a pair of fur-lined overalls.

"You're no idea how the blamed thing itches," he said.

P. G. B. Morriss, friend of the aviator, called a neighborhood tailor. Measurements were taken, seven tailors went to work and in less than one hour Kingsford-Smith had a suit.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—(UP)—The cabinet adopted a law today prohibiting all collections for charity except the official winter relief campaign.

FINAL SERVICES HELD FOR ADDISON MAUPIN

Funeral services for Addison Maupin, 79, retired secretary and assistant treasurer of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, who died Saturday night at the residence, 1041 West Peachtree street, N. W., were conducted at 3:30 o'clock Monday afternoon at Spring Hill. Burial was in the family plot at West View cemetery.

A resident of Atlanta for 30 years, Mr. Maupin was active in church, social and business affairs of the city, and eight years ago retired from the Southern Bell Telephone Company. Previous to his connection with the Atlanta telephone company, he was president of the Richmond Telephone Company.

'ATLANTA BUYER' HELD IN PHILADELPHIA FRAUD

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Charged with receiving stolen goods and forgery, a man giving his name as Martin Weiss, said to be known also as Green and Greenberg, was held under $1,500 bail for court today by a police magistrate.

Weiss, who is 45, said he is from Pittsburgh. It was testified that he had ordered hosiery from the United Hosiery Mills here and had taken $3 worth of samples, representing himself to be a buyer from a store in Atlanta, Ga.

LONGWORTH RESIDENCE IS PUT UP FOR SALE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A "For Sale" sign went up today on the home of Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, widow of the former speaker.

Long a show place of the capital, and center of official and social activity, the home in duPont circle was offered for $70,000.

Colombian Seaman Attaches Battleship

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—(AP) The flagship Cacuta of the Colombian navy was padlocked today in Philadelphia harbor, "attached" by counsel for Seaman Robert Green, who claimed Colombia owes him $1,000 in back pay.

An attorney left a padlock on the flagship's gangplank rail after he served an attachment.

The Cacuta came here for repairs.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's Defense May Use Pictures of Nudes

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A move to obtain photographs of nude statuary and oil paintings in the museum of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, aunt of 10-year-old Gloria Vanderbilt, brought a sudden adjournment today in the hearing of the court fight over the girl-heiress' custody.

Nathan Burkan, counsel for Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, the child's mother, asked for delay to give him time to have a photographer visit the Whitney Museum of Art, sponsored by Mrs. Whitney, who charges that Mrs. Vanderbilt is an unfit mother for little Gloria.

Other than to state that Burkan would seek to introduce the photographs in the hearing, Justice John F. Carew gave no explanation of the attorney's purpose.

Mrs. Whitney, sculptress and patron of the arts, established the Whitney museum some years ago and it contains a notable collection of paintings and statuary.

Burkan also requested the sudden adjournment to allow a handwriting expert to examine letters written by the girl to Mrs. Whitney and Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan, Mrs. Vanderbilt's mother, who joined in making accusations against her daughter.

The letters purporting to contain the child's declarations that she would prefer to remain with Mrs. Whitney were acknowledge to be in little Gloria's handwriting. Mrs. Vanderbilt challenged certain phrases, however, as "too mature for a child."

It was expected her counsel would attack the genuineness of the messages, already admitted in the hearing, and charge the letters were dictated or suggested by older persons.

At the opening of the brief session, Burkan called a steamship line representative who testified that Maria Caillot, Mrs. Vanderbilt's former French maid and a witness against her early in the hearing, had sailed for Europe and would not be available for further questioning.

It was Mlle. Caillot's testimony regarding an incident in a Cannes hotel involving Mrs. Vanderbilt with the Marchioness of Milford-Haven that caused Justice Carew to exclude press and public from future hearings.

The courtroom was still barred to spectators when the hearing was resumed today. Even the glass panels in the doors were covered by pieces of blotting paper.

Purposes of Talmadge Praised At Banquet of Greek Civic Club

Governor Eugene Talmadge has probably never been more hospitably or more heartily entertained than he was as guest of honor at the Greek Civic Club dinner held at the Ansley hotel Monday night.

The Greek Civic Club is an Atlanta organization the purpose of whose members is to learn the ways and means of good citizenship and to teach it to their offspring. In honoring Governor Talmadge, the members of the club declared themselves as believing in the governor's purposes and pledged themselves to his support.

The governor, in a short address, thanked the Greek people of Atlanta for their friendship, and praised their sincerity, whether it was expressed for or against him.

George Moore, in introducing Governor Talmadge, said, "Good government cannot make good people, but good people can make a good government. It is for the purpose of making good people and good citizens that the Greek Civic Club exists."

A number of Georgia notables attended the dinner, including Governor Talmadge, Hugh Howell, chairman of the Georgia democratic committee; Adjutant General Lindley Camp, Major Clark Howell Jr., vice president and general manager of The Constitution; Ben Huiet, member of the Georgia public service commission; R. E. Matheson, of the state revenue commission; Attorney-General M. J. Yeomans, W. E. Wilburn, chairman of the state highway department; and Paul H. Doyal, chairman of the state revenue commission.

INFANT HEIR ADMITTED TO REYNOLDS HEARINGS

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Superior Court Judge P. A. McElroy signed an order today admitting Libby Holman Reynolds' infant son into the litigation over the $20,000,000 tobacco fortune of his father, the late Z. Smith Reynolds.

The child, Christopher Smith Reynolds, will be represented in the proceedings by R. C. Vaughn, recently appointed "next friend." Under the order today, he was authorized to intervene in the action now pending, in which the Cabarrus County Bank and Trust Company seeks to set aside a court judgment of 1931 making a settlement of $1,000,000 upon Reynolds' first child, Anne Cannon Reynolds II, and her mother, Anne Cannon Reynolds-Smith.

Vaughn, as next friend, was ordered to "Take such steps as he deems necessary and expedient to properly protect" the rights of the infant and to "prosecute said proceedings to final judgment." He was also authorized to engage the services of two attorneys. Sixty days were allowed for the filing of papers in the intervention.

A source close to the Reynolds family said that this and other recent court maneuvers were all aimed at removing legal obstacles and leading up to final settlement and division of the estate for both the children and the two mothers by agreement.

LEAGUE ORDERS JAPAN TO EXPLAIN FORTS IN PACIFIC

suspicions that they were being constructed essentially for naval purposes.

Marquis Theodoli, of Italy, chairman of the mandates commission which investigated these charges against Japan more than a year ago, commented: "It now rests with the mandatory power (Japan) to disprove these criticisms."

He added that Japan would seize the opportunity to "dispel vague suspicions regarding occurrences in the islands . . . and one method would be to afford the most unrestricted access to the islands for foreign travelers and vessels."

Ito, questioned by searching critics for five hours, deprecating "newspaper reports" on the subject, added that all powers should be most prudent, as there may be trouble in that part of the world. He indicated when naval maneuvers were taking place foreign visitors would not be very welcome.

Specific Items.

He was asked concerning specific expenditures on harbor construction in Saipan and Pelan, two of the largest ports in the islands, strategically located to control access to Hawaii and the Philippines.

Ito replied that big ships were necessary for trade in these islands, at least 3,000 tons, and the harbors had to be made fit to accommodate them. These explanations failed to remove suspicions among members of the commission.

The islands under fire include the Marshall, Caroline, Pelew and Mariana groups, with a populatioin of about 70,000 persons. Great Britain and Australia hold insular mandates in the same region, and the United States has rights in Guam and the Island of Yap.

NEW TYPE BATTLESHIPS ARE PLANNED BY JAPAN

LONDON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Japan, it was learned authoritatively tonight, has prepared plans for construction of a large number of warships of an entirely new type, in case her demands for naval equality go unheeded in the current conversations and a naval race is started.

Whether any official hint of such plans would be given to the powers during the conversations, as a trial balloon, could not be immediately determined.

The plans, secretrly prepared, embrace a new ship of economical build, but so powerful that some of the present categories provided for the fleets of the world by the Washington and London treaties might be made useless in comparison, it was said.

It was understood it would be built only in the event no new treaty based on Japanese proposals is adopted by the United States and Great Britain to take the place of the Washington treaty at the end of 1936.

The Japanese regard their proposals for a new treaty as the only effective method of making war impossible. The British and the Americans have so far rejected them and a deadlock continues with no compromise in sight.

The Japanese emphasized again today that any compromise offer must come from the British or Americans, asserting they will not surrender.

HOW FAMILY LAXATIVE
Suits Young and Old
Saliva and digestive juices prepare your food for your stomach, and because you chew Feen-a-mint, the delicious chewing gum laxative, these same juices place the laxative in your system gradually. No mass of laxatives hits your system suddenly to upset its delicate balance. This more natural, gentle, gradual action prevents strain, discomfort. It makes Feen-a-mint ideally gentle for children, yet thoroughly positive for any member of the family. Doctors prescribe the laxative in non-habit forming Feen-a-mint. It is for pleasant correction without upset to stomach or diet. Delay is dangerous. Today get back on schedule and stay there. Delicious Feen-a-mint at druggists, 15c and 25c.

FARMERS ARE ASKED TO DRAFT OWN PLANS

Blackwood Urges Executives of 12 Cotton States to Call State-Wide Meetings.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Governor I. C. Blackwood urged governors of 12 other southern states today to call state-wide meetings of their farmers to draft "a thoughtfully prepared cotton control program for a period of years" upon expiration of the Bankhead act.

Pointing out that the national government had initiated "three separate programs of cotton production control" since June, 1933, the South Carolina executive urged that "the farmers of the belt themselves have a voice in planning" a permanent control measure to take effect in 1935.

Governor Blackwood quoted a resolution adopted at a state-wide meeting of cotton farmers here October 2 in which the farmers said suspension of control in 1935 would mean overproduction "that will again drive prices to a 4-to-6-cent level.

Cotton growers of each South Carolina county are to meet November 15, the governor continued, to decide details of a permanent program and elect one delegate for each 1,000 farmers to attend a state-wide meeting November 20 to work out a substitute for the Bankhead act.

"Realizing that one state of the belt acting alone in a matter that vitally concerns the entire belt will perhaps not have a great effect," the governor wrote 12 colleagues, "I am suggesting that your state adopt a similar plan."

A south-wide meeting would be held as the culmination of the 13 state sessions, he said, to map a new program with the co-operation of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

The communication was addressed to the governors of North Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Alabama, Virginia, Mississippi, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Missouri and Louisiana.

MACHINE HOUR LIMITS MUST REMAIN—SLOAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Elimination of machine hour limitations from the cotton textile code, George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, said tonight, "is inconceivable" and would be a "death blow" to small communities in which cotton mills are located.

Sloan's statement was appended to a report on an institute analysis of the industry, showing that 42 per cent of its 200,000 workers are employed in towns of 5,000 population or less.

"The analyses show clearly for the first time," he said, "how really cotton manufacturing is not only a small community industry but one of small enterprises.

"Of the 1,122 cotton mills in the industry, 588 are located in villages of less than 5,000 population, 140 in centers of from 5,000 to 10,000 population, and only 150, employing an aggregate of 80,000 workers are located in cities of over 75,000 population."

If machine hour limitations were removed, Sloan added, "the tendency will be for mills in the larger centers to expand their employment through the operation of additional shifts, on account of the greater availability of workers and housing facilities with resulting loss of employment in small communities.

"The problem is primarily a social one. In formulating the cotton code the industry and the government proceeded on the principle that it is better to preserve the small units and the small community against transfer to large communities.

"It was felt that any other policy would threaten a death blow to village and town life and the destruction of capital invested in these small trading areas.

"In is inconceivable that the government would now reverse its policies."

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

For 10 years I have put up with a no-account husband. At first when I discovered that I was stung I suffered as every woman does under these circumstances. Then one day I said to myself that I was in for a life of disappointment in my marriage and that I would go ahead, make the best of it and find my pleasure in the children. Lately I have been thinking that a woman of 35 ought to have another chance at marriage if she has a worthless husband, one she doesn't love. What about it? My children are fond of their father but he has no sense of responsibility toward them. Not a cent is saved toward their education and it is almost time to send them to school and college. This is only one of several things that makes me wonder if I wouldn't be doing the children, as well as myself, a favor if I divorced my husband and set out to look for another. I am not a bad-looking woman and have always had a way with the men, though I have never cast a side glance at one since I was married. Please discuss this problem.

DISSATISFIED.

ANSWER:

It is infinitely pathetic for a young attractive woman to find herself married to a worthless man whom she doesn't love or respect. The years stretch ahead of her grey and drab. Not even the pleasure she has in her children quite compensates her for what she misses in her husband. Bitter disappointment is likely to muddy her thoughts in the second instance just as love blinded her with its rosy veil in the first instance. However, self-deception doesn't help anybody to work out of difficulties. Wish-thinking, common as it is, doesn't get us what we want. The effort to justify questionable conduct on the ground that it may benefit a loved one or loved ones is the natural impulse of a conscience-pricked soul—but someday, somewhere, the reckoning must come and will.

Your thinking, dear woman, is not clear on several points: First, the sociologists say that the vast majority of delinquent children come from divorce-rent homes. They go further and say that even when a man is not all he ought to be the children are better off for being reared in the home with their own father at the head of it. So it is pretty certain that you would not be doing the children a favor to divorce their father.

Second, the chances are slim indeed that you could pick up a husband who would be financially able to do for those children what you want done for them and, even if you could find him and he were able, there is no guarantee that he would be willing to take on the support and education of another man's brood. There are not many rich philanthropists on the lookout for 35-year-old widows and ready-made families. The average attractive woman believes when she is married to one man that she could be married to any other were she free and so inclined, but the truth was once expressed by a witty widow who said that early in her widowhood she imagined she could get any man she wanted but after a few years she waked up to the realization that she would have to take any man she could get.

From the purely selfish standpoint then, you would be running an awful risk to divorce your husband; but no woman has the right to a selfish standpoint when she is the mother of children. Her duty is to sacrifice herself for those little ones, however bitter it may be. They have the right to grow up in the security of a home into which they were born through no will of their own and you, who brought them there, should keep them there.

GEORGIA CIVITANS MEET HERE TODAY

Prominent Citizens To Attend 1-Day Convention of Organization.

Prominent citizens from all sections of Georgia, including six officers of Civitan International, will be in Atlanta today to attend the 13th annual convention of the Georgia district of Civitan International, which will be held at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Judge Edgar Watkins, prominent Atlanta attorney, will deliver the address of welcome following the invocation by Dr. W. W. Memminger, international chaplain, and the reading of the Civitan creed by Dr. W. Earl Quillian, of Atlanta, president of the Civitan International. Thomas D. Luck, of Carrollton, will make the response.

Addresses by Dr. Quillian and Peyton Jones, of Macon, international vice president, will feature the afternoon program, which will include a state program, extension and visitation work, election of officers and selection of a convention city.

Former Governor John M. Slaton will be the toastmaster at the banquet tonight which will bring the convention to a close.

Wives of Civitans will be honored at a luncheon at Rich's tea room at noon today and then will go to Loew's Grand to see "The Merry Widow."

OFFICE APPLIANCE EXHIBIT TO BE HELD

The Atlanta Office Appliance Association will open an exhibit of modern business machines and methods this morning on the ground floor of the Western Union building, corner Marietta and Forsyth streets, it is announced by W. C. Raftery, president of the association.

The exhibit will be open from 10:30 a. m. to 9:30 p. m., continuing through Friday, the announcement says. The firms co-operating in the exhibit are: Bostitch Sales and Service Company, Burroughs Adding Machine Company, A. B. Dick Company, Dictaphone Sales Corporation, Ditto Sales Agency, Elliot Addressing Machine Company, Felt & Tarrant Manufacturing Company, Kee Lox Manufacturing Company, International Business Machines Corporation, Miller-Bryant-Pierce Company, Multigraph Sales Agency, Monroe Calculating Machine Company, Remington Rand, Inc. (systems), Remington Rand (typewriters), Shaw-Walker Company.

"The modern office is a machine shop," says Mr. Raftery. "Few people realize the tremendous strides made in office methods in the past few years. Offices have changed from the horse and buggy days, figuratively speaking, and have kept pace with the advancements made in manufacturing, transportation and amusement.

"Accounting equipment which multiplies, adds, divides and subtracts—frequently in one machine—duplicating and printing equipment, dictating equipment which conserves the businessman's time, time and labor-saving devices such as these mean that the modern office worker must be nimble of finger as well as of mind."

Revenues Declining, Gas Company Claims

Testimony that its operating costs had increased under the NRA, while revenues declined steadily, was presented Monday by the Savannah Gas Company at a hearing before the Georgia public service commission.

The evidence concerning operating costs was given under questioning by Chairman Jud P. Wilhoit, during testimony of J. A. P. Crisfield, manager of the gas company.

The commission concluded oral testimony in the case late Monday afternoon and after receipt of documentary evidence concerning various phases of the company's operations will take the rate case under study for a decision.

Early this year the commission cited all gas companies in the state to show cause why their rates should not be reduced.

John Goree, assistant attorney-general and counsel for the commission in the hearing, questioned company witnesses closely as to the worth to the Savannah firm of a management fee paid the American Gas & Power Company, its parent concern. Goree said the fee, 3 3-4 per cent of the Savannah gas firm's gross earnings, amounted to about $20,000.

Crisfield and D. H. Levan, of Jacksonville, Fla., consulting engineer for the company, said the fee gave the Savannah Gas Company the benefit of exhaustive research and study into newer and more efficient production, operating and management methods for gas companies, and had brought economies to the Savannah firm.

A. Pratt Adams represented the gas company as counsel. City Attorney Shelby Myrick, of Savannah, represented consumers.

MRS. MORRIS CONTINUES LECTURE SERIES TODAY

Mrs. Emma Garrett Morris will continue her series of lectures in Rich's tea room this morning at 10 o'clock. The November series of four lectures will be on "Living Immortals."

This morning Mrs. Morris will speak on Romain Rolland, the French novelist. The three other men, to be discussed in succeeding lectures, are Jules Romains, Thomas Mann and Gerhardt Hauptmann.

VETERAN TRAINMAN SAYS RAIL BUSINESS IS BEST SINCE WAR

Low fares and the "New Deal" spending spirit are filling the day coaches to such an extent that it looks like "wartime travel" by C. B. Baird, for 32 years railroad conductor running between Atlanta and Augusta.

"Back in the summer," he said, "business was so good that we fellows who have been in the service long enough were reminded of the war days," said Baird, reflecting on a brisk rise in vacation traveling.

Not since 1914 and years immediately following, when the road was at its zenith, he said, has travel been quite so good as at present.

"We have had our ups and downs," said the conductor, who has railroaded for 39 years, "and now it looks like we are headed for a straight run."

Asked what he considered responsible for it, Baird replied: "Low rates, I guess, and the New Deal."

He recalled that practically all of the road's employes who were laid off during the worst days of the depression are now back at work.

"And if you can call this an indication, the news butch sold out of papers before we reached Harlem."

CAPITOL ADVERTISING AGENCY ESTABLISHED

Establishment of the Capitol Advertising Agency by Herman M. Rich, proprietor of the Capitol Printing Company, and Leon Kletzky, formerly with the classified advertising department of the Atlanta Journal, was announced Monday. Mr. Kletzky will be the active head of the firm.

Devoted exclusively to classified advertising, the new agency is believed to be the only one of its kind in the southeast, engaged entirely in the servicing and placing of "want ads" in newspapers and magazines throughout the world. Mr. Kletzky, who assumes his new duties at once, is well qualified for the position. A native of Colorado, he began his advertising career with the Pueblo, Col., newspapers and served for some time on the Denver Rocky Mountain News before joining the classified advertising staff of the Atlanta Journal in 1930.

Mr. Rich, who will be vice president of the agency, has been engaged in the printing business here for over seven years. In addition to being in charge of the Capitol Advertising Agency, Mr. Kletzky will assist Mr. Rich in the promotion of printing copy and sales. Officers of both companies will be located in the Capitol Printing Company's new building at 300 Walker street, S. W.

Work Going On at Great Norris Dam Described in Talk by TVA Engineer

Approximately 250 engineers of Atlanta and Georgia Monday heard Sherman M Woodward, consulting engineer of the Tennessee Valley Authority, describe the work being done in the construction of the great Norris dam and the Wheeler dam. His talk was illustrated by a series of photographic slides, showing not only the various stages in construction of the dams themselves, but the town of Norris which the government has created to house its 2,000 Norris dam workers and their families and the magnificent new "Freeway," ideal motor highway which now provides modern means of ingress to the dam site.

Mr. Woodward spoke at the monthly meeting of the American Society of Civil Engineers, Atlanta section, and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, Georgia section, as invited guests.

George L. Reed, president of the civil engineers' section, presided, and Walter S. McDonald, chairman of the program committee, introduced the speaker. Others at the speakers' table included Colonel Hall Doty, of St. Paul, national president of the Mechanical Engineers, and Eugene W. O'Brien, of Atlanta, national vice president of the Mechanical Engineers.

Mr. Woodward first described the "Freeway," which has been built to the Norris dam site. This, he said, was intended to be an ideal standard type of road. In order to hurry the construction extra heavy trucks were used and routed over the highway itself in order to compact the base so the concrete could be poured for the surface without delay. No advertising is allowed on the right of way, which is exceptionally wide, and only such gasoline stations as are essential. At all filling stations and crossroads parkways in the middle of the highway permit uninterrupted flow of the through traffic without danger from cars entering the highway or turning to the left.

He showed pictures of the work on the Norris dam and Wheeler dam, 50 miles above it, and also showed the creation of the coffer dams and the engineering means of construction.

The Norris dam, he said, will have a length, on the top of the dam, of about 2,000 feet, with a height above the river bed of 250 feet. Normal height of the water, he said, will be 200 feet.

Work is pushed 22 hours a day, with the workers divided into four shifts of 5 1-2 hours each. There is no stop for meals during a shift. All labor is paid for strictly on code wages and of the 2,000 employed a large proportion attend the free classes provided by the government in spare time.

He showed photographs, also, of some of the 4,000 to 5,000 graves to be inundated and which, in every case where any one interested is found, are being moved to any desired site by the government.

Russian Deserter Sentenced to Death

MOSCOW, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Sergei Voronkov, a sailor who deserted the soviet warship Marat, at Gdynia, Poland, in September and refused to return to Russia, was sentenced to death today by the military collegium of the supreme court.

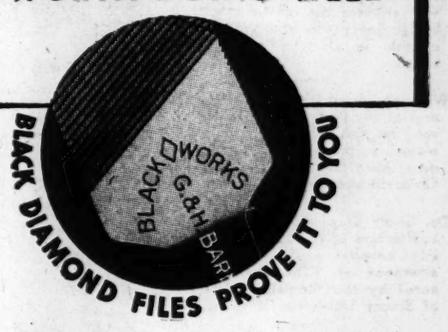

All Voronkov's property was ordered confiscated and his relatives were arrested and ordered before the court for navigation.

The arrests were in compliance with a new section of the criminal code, promulgated last June, providing that adult relatives of military and naval men guilty of treason or espionage who flee abroad may be imprisoned for five to ten years if they have knowledge of the treasonable plans. They may be exiled to Siberia for five years even if ignorant of the plans.

SMITH NAMED HEAD OF CHARLOTTE HOLC

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The Home Owners' Loan Corporation announced today the appointment of Roy S. Smith as district manager of the Charlotte, N. C., office. Smith, who has been chief negotiator for the Charlotte office, succeeds Miles Carpenter, who resigned last week.

A man and his wife who had just returned from a round-the-world cruise spoke of Chesterfield as "an international cigarette."

Vacuum tin of 50—air tight—water tight—fully protected even if submerged in water.

Packages of 20 wrapped in Du Pont No. 300 Cellophane—the best made.

Chesterfield Cigarettes are on sale in eighty-six countries. You may purchase them on nearly all ships and at almost every port.

We believe you will agree with us that for a cigarette to enjoy such popularity, it must have merit.

In the making of Chesterfield, we do our level best to make it as good a cigarette as can be made.

CALLS ALL-BRAN NATIONAL NATURAL LAXATIVE

Delicious Cereal Checked His Constipation

Here is an unsolicited letter from Mr. Daniels:

"For many years I have been habitually constipated, and have used all sorts of laxatives. So, in fairness to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, I heartily claim it to be a most wonderful remedy for constipation.

"Need I tell you that I have long since ceased using laxatives? Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the National Natural Laxative. If it were used by every family in the United States for breakfast, we would have a much healthier race of people."—Mr. John Daniels, 1090 Third St., North Bergen, N. J.

Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes "bulk" to exercise the intestines and vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Isn't this food much pleasanter than risking pills and drugs? Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Mrs. Woodruff Urges Conservation Of State's Native Trees and Shrubs

Mrs. James W. Woodruff, of Columbus, second vice president of the Garden Club of Georgia, contributes the following interesting article in which she urges the conservation of Georgia's native trees and shrubs, in observance of conservation week, which, by decree of Governor Talmadge, is set for this week.

"With the phenomenal increase in the number of garden clubs throughout the country has come widespread appreciation of their great civic worth and benefit. Also there has come a realization among clubs themselves of the need of greater co-operation and concerted effort. That this can best be accomplished through state federations is an accepted fact; for 'strength in union' means greater opportunities for service to the whole state.

"In Georgia through the ability, enthusiasm and vision of the president, Mrs. Thomas Hubbard McHatton, of Athens, wonderful constructive plans have been made by the Garden Club of Georgia for the beautification of Georgia and the conservation and preservation of its numerous native plants and trees.

"The interest and support of the public has been demonstrated by hearty co-operation in all its projects. Conservation, scenic beauty, preservation of wild flowers, reforestation, school gardens, highway planting, each of these projects is for the common good, the common enjoyment of the entire community, and with the launching of the conservation program for November plans for the year's accomplishment will be begun.

"Georgia is especially high in beautiful native plants—dogwood, fringe tree, redbud, holly, honeysuckle, etc. Let's plant them lavishly, but not by robbing the woods and destroying natural beauty. Buy your plants from a nurseryman. One city in Connecticut has planted thousands and thousands of mountain laurel plants in the parks and home grounds. The state of Maryland has pledged to plant 3,000,000 dogwood trees before 1936. Georgia can accomplishe just such things.

"With the paving of more highways, each year more and more tourists come to Georgia or pass through Georgia. What are their impressions? Will they find our roadsides unsightly, and our woods denuded of beautiful native trees and shrubs and flowers?

"The Garden Club of Georgia, with the co-operation of every individual, can make its dream come true—of making Georgia a state of loveliness and beauty and charm."

Lillian Mae Patterns

FOR VERSATILE CHARM— TWO LOVELY BLOUSES Patterns 2063 and 2064.

Make them up in dark wool-jersey for your smart sport suit, or make them up in glamorous satin or metal cloth for a very dressy skirt and blouse affair—the lines of these two chic blouses will be equally flattering. Pattern 2063 owes its charm to its over-the-shoulder yoke and its soft, becoming bow. Pattern 2064 boasts stitched seams—so important in this season's fashion news—and a nicely rippled collar. Both blouses button smartly up the back and flare below the waist into exciting little peplum effects. Each pattern includes a choice of long or short sleeves and a simpler neckline, for those who prefer them.

Pattern 2063 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 2 5-8 yards 39-inch fabric.

Pattern 2064 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 2 1-4 yards 39-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern. Send 15 cents for each Lillian Mae pattern, 30 cents for both. Write name, address and style number. Be sure to state size.

Order your winter pattern book. Order it now! The new Lillian Mae models are stunning, and so easy to make! Designs for all ages and all occasions. Price of book 15 cents.

Try Mercolized Wax—
Home Beauty Treatment

One reason Mercolized Wax is so strongly recommended is that it really takes the place of several different cosmetics, saving time, patience and expense. It is better than any cleansing cream or massage cream for accomplishing the results for which such articles are used. As Mercolized Wax actually absorbs an old, faded or discolored cuticle, a little each day, the underlying skin which gradually appears, is clearer, softer, healthier-hued and more youthful than any cosmetic-made complexion. Get 1 jar of Mercolized Wax at any drug or department store. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty of your skin. Powdered Saxolite reduces wrinkles and other age lines. Simply dissolve one ounce Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and use daily as an astringent lotion.—(adv.).

Hostesses Named For Music Club Program Wednesday

Hostesses for the Atlanta Music Club's second program of the year, to be given Wednesday morning at 10:45 o'clock at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium, will be Mrs. Armond Carroll, fourth vice president, and Mrs. Jane Mattingly, recording secretary. They will assist Mrs. Harold McKenzie, president. Mrs. Martin Kilpatrick, chairman of ushers, will be assisted by Mrs. Thomas Daniel Jr. and Mrs. Charles Hurt Jr.

An illustrated discussion of the history of song literature will be the subject of the program, with Mrs. Howard C. Smith Jr., as chairman. From the earliest 'chants, through folk song, lieder, and opera, the development of the song will be shown. Matile McKee, soprano, will sing folk songs of France, Algiers, and Spain. Willa Maye Mitchell, soprano, will give a group of songs from Italy, Sweden and Swabia; Lieder by Schubert, Schumann, Brahms, Rubenstein and Wagner will be sung by Frances Stukes, contralto, and excerpts from operas by Gaevert, Handel, Mozart and Donizetti will be presented by Lois Lewis, lyric-coloratura soprano.

Mrs. John Mullin, membership chairman, and Thad Morison, assistant, will issue memberships to anyone wishing to join the club. Holders of season tickets to the All-Star Concert Series are entitled to a $2 reduction. In addition to the six morning programs, members will have the privilege of hearing the Curtis string quartet (postponed on account of the illness of one of the players) Sylvia Lent, violinist, Walter Gieseking, pianist, and three evening ensemble programs by prominent Atlanta musicians. Mrs. Ed Danforth, assistant treasurer, will be at the door Wednesday morning and anyone interested is cordially invited. Single admission will be 50 cents.

Woman's Club Sponsors Exposition

Tremendous preparations which are completed indicate that the Merchants' Exposition, which will be held at the Atlanta Woman's Club on November 6, 7 and 8, will be one of the largest and most outstanding displays ever held at the club.

The club is filled to capacity with attractively decorated booths of every description and many unusual and beautiful articles are on display. Mrs. John F. MacDougald is general chairman of the exposition and is being assisted on the central committee, by Mrs. Max E. Land, president; Mesdames H. C. Minier, James A. Greene and W. F. Westmoreland, chairman of placing concessions, and other members of the club.

Attractive entertainment programs have been arranged for every afternoon and evening by well-known artists, and each day between the hours of 12 and 1:30 o'clock delicious luncheons will be served for 35 cents.

Many small prizes and a number of large prizes will be given away twice each day, and as the entire clubhouse is devoted to this exposition and will be open each day from 9 until 10 o'clock, a gala occasion will be offered for the pleasure and enjoyment of hundreds of invited visitors.

Florence Marye Will Talk On 'Boxwood Through the Ages'

On Wednesday, November 7, at 3 o'clock at the Piedmont Driving Club the Planters' Garden Club will present Florence Marye in an illustrated talk on "Boxwood Through the Ages." The lecture is open to the public, and will interest every gardener and lover of boxwood, that exquisite and aristocratic evergreen that has played an important role in the gardens of many lands. Staff photo by George Cornett.

One of the most important cultural events of the week will be the lecture on "Boxwood Through the Ages" to be given on Wednesday, November 7, at the Piedmont Driving Club, by Florence Marye, under the auspices of the Planters' Garden Club. No tickets will be sold, but the interested public is invited to attend and purchase tickets at 50 cents at the door.

The continuity of the boxwood garden will be discussed by this well-posted and charming speaker, who will be introduced by Mrs. L. G. Daingerfield, president of the horticultural organization.

Will Trace Lineage.

In treating the American gardens, Florence Marye will trave their lineage back to the patterns that have come down through the ages from ancient Rome and the renaissance gardens. For more than 2,000 years, boxwood has bordered and framed important gardens of many countries, as will be shown by a series of slides. Being an experienced dirt gardener, she will give hints for transplanting and the care of boxwood.

The cut-work garden patterns of Georgia are perhaps more elaborate than those in other old American gardens, and Florence Marye will urge that these gardens be preserved for posterity. The one and only ante-bellum example of a French eighteenth century parterre of embroidery, is to be found at the Ferrell gardens, in LaGrange, this famous garden being owned by Mrs. Fuller Callaway. Florence Marye will talk upon this feature in tomorrow's lecture.

This well-known and delightful speaker is well qualified to deal intelligently upon every phase of her lecture, which is based upon serious study of "Boxwood Through the Ages." Florence Marye is founder of the Planters' Garden Club, and served as vice president of the club. She is the author of "Early Georgia Gardens" in the garden history of Georgia, and compiler of the Georgia section of "Gardens of Colony and State." At every meeting of the Planters' Garden Club some member reads a carefully-prepared talk on the gardens of some nation.

Planters' Club Roster.

Officers of the Planters' Club are Mrs. L. G. Dangerfield, president; Mrs. Alex C. King Jr., secretary; Mrs. S. Y. Tupper, treasurer. The membership is composed of the following group of prominent Atlanta women: Mesdames Thornton Marye, Henry B. Scott, Dudley R. Cowles, Harold Armstrong, J. G. Oglesby Jr., B. M. Grant, Samuel N. Evins, E. D. Smith, Neil Conrad, W. M. Hurt, Thomas K. Glenn, Charles T. Nunnally, Lindsey Hopkins, C. C. McGhee, H. Frank West, Bates Block, Samuel C. Porter, Hal M. Davison, W. L. HIGH VOLTAGE CABLE KILLS 3 IN ALABAMA

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 5.—(AP)—A white man and two negroes, employes of the Montgomery Gravel Co., lost their lives at a gravel pit near here Sunday afternoon when they came in contact with current from a shorted high voltage submarine cable and were thrown into a lake. The men were attempting to add a joint to a gravel suction line at the time of the accident. They were Thomas D. Knight, Dan Barlow and Alex Traylor, the latter two negroes.

Lewis Wimberly Thomas Scholarship Given to Tallulah by Mrs. Robert Hunt

Mrs. Robert G. Hunt, of Chicago, has given to Tallulah Falls school a memorial of her son who passed away some months ago—to be known as the Lewis Wimberly Thomas scholarship. This gift is made through the Atlanta Young Matrons' Circle for Tallulah, one of the directors of which is Mrs. William L. McDougall, the daughter of Mrs. Hunt and sister of the late Lewis Wimberly Thomas, of Griffin.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunt will sail on January 10 for a world cruise and on their return will make their permanent home in Griffin, opening again for use the old Kincaid home in which Mrs. Hunt, as Addavale Kincaid, spent her girlhood days. Mr. Hunt is retiring from years of active business in Chicago, and his coming with Mrs. Hunt to Georgia will be welcomed by many friends throughout the state.

Will Raise $25,000.

The Young Matrons' Circle, of which Mrs. H. W. Beers is president, have just announced their determination to raise $25,000 as their special jubilee gift for Tallulah during the twenty-fifth anniversary period of the school's life which ends in the spring of 1935. To this end this able organization is asking jubilee gifts of $25 from friends of education everywhere and are working hard for scholarships of $150 for a year's care and schooling for a mountain child living in the school home or $2,000 for perpetual scholarships which will maintain a child for all time in any name desired by donor.

Recently credited to the Young Matrons' Circle is the Marie Dressler scholarship begun by suggestion of a donor through the Good Housekeeping story of Tallulah and completed in Atlanta on the night of Marie Dressler's death in California. This memorial of the universally loved American actress and film star was secured by the united efforts of the Young Matrons' Circle, the Paramount theater and the Atlanta Georgian. The mother of the little girl holding the Marie Dressler scholarship is in state tuberculosis sanitarium at Alto.

Since the Marie Dressler memorial was announced a scholarship of $150 has been given by Francis Marion, well-known scenario writer and close friend of Marie Dressler. Mrs. Francis Marion Hill is an Alabama woman, long resident in Hollywood, where she has made a place second to none in the moving picture world.

Mrs. Arthur S. Bird, scholarship chairman for Young Matrons' Circle, reports $14,640 secured from this source during the past year which, with earnings and dues, gives the Young Matrons from October, 1933 to 1934, the encouraging total of $18,621.64. Upon this sum the Atlanta Young Matrons' Circle bases its ambition to secure a silver jubilee gift of $25,000 for report at their spring meeting in 1935.

Mrs. Bird's report for past year up to October 17, 1934, is as follows: New Perpetual Scholarships: Miss Marian Woodward (the Helen E. Woodward perpetual scholarship in loving memory of her mother, the late Mrs. David Woodward), $2,000; Mrs. Charles Loridans (the Walter Branham Arnold perpetual scholarship in loving memory of her father), $2,000; Mrs. Philip F. L'Engle (the Samuel and Henrietta Plumb Tyree perpetual scholarship, a tribute of affection for her maternal grandparents), $2,000; John M. Ogden (the Dorothy Mai Ogden perpetual scholarship, a tribute of affection for his little daughter), $2,000; Mrs. Stewart Hill Jones (the Stewart Hill Jones perpetual scholarship, in memory of her husband), $2,000; Rufus DeWitt King (the Beulah McCollum King perpetual scholarship, a tribute to his wife), $2,000;

This scholarship was begun as annual last year.

Annual Payments on Perpetual Scholarships: Mrs. H. W. Beers (the Nancy Mathews Akers perpetual), $300; Mrs. Blewett Lee (the G. J. Foreacre perpetual), $150; Mrs. Harry M. Atkinson (the May Peters Atkinson perpetual), $150; Mrs. George W. McCarty (the Ellen Gertrude Ottley perpetual), $150; Miss M. E. Pinckard (the Jame Steptoe Pinckard perpetual), $90.

Annual Scholarships: Mrs. Arthur S. Bird (the Betty Ann and Louise Bird scholarship, for her daughters), $150; Arthur S. Bird (the Louise Stratton Bird scholarship, a Mother's Day tribute from her son for Mrs. Edgar Bird Sr., of Arlington, Texas), $150; Mrs. R. DeWitt King (the Addie Louise McCollum scholarship, a tribute of affection for her mother), $150; Mrs. C. Robert Mitchell (the Robert and Alice scholarship for her son and daughter), $150; Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert F. Beers (the Mary Elizabeth, Frances and Birdie Beers scholarship, for their daughters), $150; Mrs. Goodloe Yancey (the Carrie Ogletree Oliver scholarship, in loving memory of her mother), $150; Mrs. Thomas J. White, Long Island (the Ann Gillette scholarship in memory of her mother who passed away in late July), $150; B. F. Coggins (to be known as the Frank, John and Anne Coggins scholarship as a tribute to his children), $150; W. E. Chapin, $100; Mrs. W. F. Pearson, of Washington, D. C., $75; Mrs. George A. Bland, $50; Mrs. A. M. Moore, $50.

Special Silver Jubilee Gifts: Texas Oil Company, through Mr. and Mrs. Thad E. Horton, $50; Mrs. Donald McClain, $25; Mrs. Edward Worcester, $25; Mrs. William McDougall, $25; Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, $25; Mrs. Price Gilbert, $25; Mrs. George W. Rowbotham, $25; Mrs. George W. McCarty (a tribute to her mother, Mrs. John K. Ottley,), $25; the History Class of 1884 (now celebrating its golden anniversary), $25; Mrs. Carroll B. McGaughey (part of silver jubilee scholarship), $25; Mrs. Malcolm Cavanaugh, $15; Mrs. H. Faison Hines, $10; Mrs. L. N. Conrad, $10; Mrs. Paul Seydel, $5; Mrs Crichton Callaway, $5; Mrs. George W. Campbell Jr., $5. Total scholarships, $14,640. Dues and earnings for year, $3,981.64. Grand total, $18,621.64.

Alliance Francaise To Meet Thursday

Alliance Francaise meets Thursday, November 8, at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Edgar Neely, 4 Barksdale drive. Dr. George Raffalovich will review the career of Marshall Lyautey, resident general in Morocco from April, 1912, to September, 1925, whose death last July occurred in Morocco. A cavalry officer, formerly one of General Gallieni's chosen helpers in Tonking and Madagascar, Lyautey faithfully served his country and the cause of humanity.

Following the causerie, Miss Lucile Alexander, head of the French department at Agnes Scott, will present four of her students in a one-act comedy by Tristan Bernard, the French humorist. It is entitled "Le Narcotique," and will be acted by Mlle. Elizabeth Rodrique, from Nantes, France, and the Misses Mary Garland, Ethlyn Johnson and Margaret Stokey, of Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. Leach Honor Bridal Pair.

Mr. and Mrs. Willaford R. Leach were hosts last evening at a dinner party at their home on North Decatur road in Druid Hills in compliment to Miss Louise Felker Ware and Dr. John Heinz Venable whose engagement was announced Sunday and whose marriage will be an interesting event of December. The beautifully appointed table was graced in the center by a silver epergne filled with canary-colored chrysanthemums and blue salvia. Blue tapers burning in silver candelabra completed the lovely table appointments.

Covers were placed for Miss Ware, Dr. Venable, Miss Clare Ware, Miss Emily Frances Leach, Rev. and Mrs. G. S. Venable, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence R. Ware and Mr. and Mrs. Leach.

Miss Anderson Given Miscellaneous Shower.

A miscellaneous shower was given recently by Misses Bobbie and Eleanor Mayfield at their home on Austin avenue, honoring Miss Vivian Anderson, whose marriage to John Edward Quinn will be an interesting event of Saturday, November 17.

CARDUI FOR WOMEN

Quicker, Lasting Relief.
Big Saving! No Cooking!

Here's an old home remedy your mother knew, but, for real results, it is still the best thing ever known for severe coughs. Try it once, and you'll swear by it.

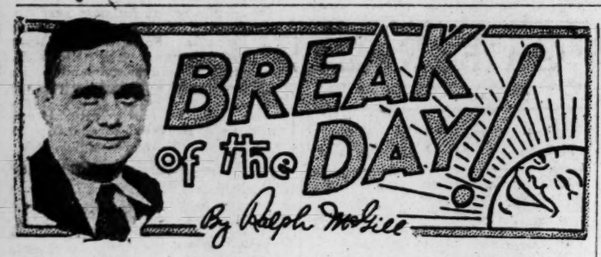

It's no trouble at all. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking is needed—a child could do it.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of actually better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for four times the money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time.

And there is positively nothing like it for quick action. You can feel it take hold instantly. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, and clears the air passages. No cough remedy, at any price, could be more effective.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, famous as a healing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. It is guaranteed to please you, or money refunded.

Southern League Directors Vote To Abolish Split Season

The Season's Best Gridiron Act---Bierman and His Thinking Gophers!

They are saying that "Bemoaning Bernie" Bierman, the coach up at Minnesota, has done the impossible in his job in that he has developed intelligence in the Minnesota eleven.

Minnesota always had the greatest material, but the football teams were never very smart, and it became an axiom that the Swedes at the state institution were just big, dumb Swedes and nothing could be done about it.

A lot of football coaches had tried but not one had ever developed a smart team at Minnesota. Dr. Henry L. Williams, the inventor of the "Minnesota shift," tried for 21 years and never developed a smart team. Bill Spalding, Fritz Crisler and Clarence Spears each had a try. With no luck.

The Minnesota teams remained big and dumb.

Bernie Bierman, who halfbacked at Minnesota 20 years ago, is of German descent. He looks like a middle-aged physician. He is calm and never seeks publicity, but rather avoids it.

He put Tulane on the football map before going to Minnesota. He had to leave Tulane and coach a team which defeated Tulane to be called back as head coach.

Bierman was the first to introduce calmness to the southern football scene. Other coaches had quit the hysterical speeches which are calculated to fire the young mind and send the owner out to do or die. But their teams all trotted on the field.

Bernie Bierman's teams walked on the field in a slow and methodical manner as if they were part of a funeral procession.

Bernie said he wanted the boys to be thinking about what they were going to do, and then do it.

He had teams which could think. This is important. A coach must have athletes. And they must also be able to think.

At any rate, he was a success at Tulane.

He got himself some athletes and Tulane ceased to be a doormat, or the sort of team which coaches seek to play on homecoming day.

And Ted Cox is coming along very well indeed in his footsteps today, it should be mentioned in passing. But back to this Bierman person.

FIFTEEN YEARS OF COACHING.

Bierman has been coaching for 15 years. He started with the University of Montana in 1919. He became an assistant at Tulane in 1923. He was there for two years.

He left to become head coach at Mississippi A. & M., and while there defeated Tulane. They hurriedly recalled him and made him head coach. He held the position for five years, going to Minnesota in 1932.

Bierman always did a little polite moaning. He was sorry but he always feared the worst. He was quite timid and quiet about it. In fact, he was almost apologetic about his moaning and this made it all the more effective.

Bierman always insisted he was no strategist or miracle worker. And he isn't. But he does teach fundamentals well. He insists on that.

But this season the boys are saying that the Minnesota team is actually thinking and depends more on the brain than brawn. And as this is very unusual, it has everyone talking about Bernie Bierman.

MINNESOTA AND ALABAMA.

Minnesota is to the middle west and east what Alabama is to the south. The Alabama teams used to be numb above the ears, but Frank Thomas has taught them to think.

The result is very devastating indeed. The Alabama eleven is going to smash through this season with the greatest of ease, and the only reason it may not be invited to play in the Rose Bowl game is that the teams out there will want no part of Alabama.

But at that I like the chances of Alabama. They have won twice and tied once in the Bowl and from St. Mary's at San Francisco. They will draw more than any other team.

In looking over the situation, one is driven to the conclusion that there are just two real teams—the Tide at Tuscaloosa and the Gophers at Minneapolis—the Gopher which thinks for the first time.

THE BOTANY CHAMPION.

I am always intrigued with champions, no matter what their profession, and yesterday I learned that Dr. Edgar Wherry, professor of botany at the University of Pennsylvania, was in Atlanta and scheduled for a lecture before the assembled members of the Garden Club of Georgia. So I heard him.

Dr. Wherry is supposed to know more about botany than any other man in the world and I am sure he does. He knows more about Georgia's plants, for instance, than anyone else in Georgia.

They had dramatized Georgia's dogwood blossoms for this meeting. Somewhere some artist had made dogwood flowers of paper, getting all the delicate tints.

And they had been arranged before a background of black velvet. The lights were flooded on them and the sight was one to remember always—the white dogwood blooms against the black velvet.

A champion is a champion, in the ring or before a meeting of the Garden Club, and there I sat, after years in Georgia, learning for the first time about wild orchids growing in Georgia and how the wood violet is a dwarf iris and how the ladies with rock gardens send all the way to Japan and the Balkans for flowers which grow in Georgia.

The doctor stood up there and in a quiet way told us what grew in Georgia and why and how the slopes of Stone mountain were the greatest rock garden in the world during the month of April and a lot of other things no one in his audience knew.

I like to hear and see champions and Dr. Wherry was no disappointment. And the greatest stage setting I ever saw was the dogwood against black velvet with the white lights on the blooms.

THE TAIL WAGS THE DOG.

The tail is to wag the dog in Southern league baseball for another year.

Our baseball minds met yesterday at Memphis and retained the absurd player limit of 16 with six rookies mandatory.

The decision was at the behest of Knoxville and Little Rock, the smaller clubs in the league. They have come to be the only ring, if there is one, in the Southern league.

Our important baseball minds keep working in reverse. The Atlanta delegation held out for an increase in the limit but was, as usual, voted down.

GRANT RETURNS TO ROUGH WORK THIS AFTERNOON

Cornelia Star Faces First Practice in Three Weeks.

By Bill Ray.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 5.—The old Cornelia fox-hunter, Cy Grant, who has missed the Tulane, Alabama and Florida games on account of his sprained shoulder, will get his first rough work in over three weeks tomorrow afternoon when Coach Harry Mehre throws him against the scrubs and freshmen in defensive and offensive scrimmages.

Even with the assurance that the side-stepping, elusive-running Grant will be back in action, Georgia's outlook for a fifth victory over the Yale Bulldogs is dreary.

YALE HARDEST.

"Outside of Alabama, Yale will be the hardest team that we have or will encounter throughout the season," said Herman Jerome Stegeman, athletic director, who scouted Old Eli Saturday as they whipped Dartmouth 7 to 2. Yale's Bulldog has been waiting patiently for the Georgia Bulldog to come north this season for they want to retrieve some of the lost honor that Georgia has won by their four straight victories.

With all these facts in his mind Coach Harry Mehre was in a despondent frame of mind this afternoon as the squad took a light workout. He gave the boys a long lecture before the drill started on the mistakes made in the Florida game.

The assistant coaches were using sheets of paper on which Scout Stegeman had illustrated the Yale plays as the various groups worked on pass defense, offensive and defensive guard and tackle work.

YALE PLAYS.

Coach Ivey "Chick" Shiver, who works with the scrubs, had his squad practicing the Yale plays which they will use against the varsity tomorrow afternoon. And Coach Mehre, anxious to get the team acquainted with Old Eli's style of play, had the varsity looking on.

Duckey Pond's boys up at Yale use the Warner system with the single wing back, a system which gave Georgia a great deal of trouble when North Carolina demonstrated it four weeks ago on Sanford field.

Tomorrow's scrimmage will be both defensive and offensive in nature with the squad probably working until nightfall. All of the players were on the field this afternoon without any hangover injuries from the Florida game.

Sandlot Teams Near Close Of Season

The Rotary sandlot football tournament is gradually drawing to a close, with a number of teams out in the lead.

The Rinkidinks defeated the Whitefoord Avenue Cubs by a score of 6-0. The Rinkidinks started an attack from their own 20-yard line with Diffender, quarterback, running 50 yards around left end, in the second quarter. A pass from Womack, right half, to J. Womack, right end, was good for a 20-yard gain. The ball was carried across the goal by Diffender, making the only score of the game. The Cubs played a good defensive game which kept the Rinkidinks from chalking up a larger score.

The Northwest Yellow Jackets bowed to the Whitefoord Avenue Bears after coming thus far undefeated. The score was 7-0. In the first quarter, George, fullback, succeeded in getting away for a 60-yard gain, making the score for the Bears. The strong defensive playing of the Bears held the Yellow Jackets in their own territory most of the game. The Bears resorted to straight power plays during the entire game.

The Decatur Bantams defeated the Midget Trojans, 12-6. The score for the Bantams was made by Summerour, quarterback, in the second quarter and Grace, fullback, in the fourth quarter. A pass from J. Redding, left half, to Griffin, right end, netted 30 yards for the Bantams, placing the ball in a scoring position. Morris, Griffin and Lamb were the outstanding line stars.

The East Lake Flashes broke loose this week and won their first game, defeating the Grant Park Jackets, 33-0. The star of the game was Jackson, quarterback for the Flashes. He crashed through the Jackets' line and made many good gains. Jackson made three of fthe four downs during the game.

The O'Keefe Panthers' score over the Hammerheads was 7-0. The Hammerheads put up a good fight but were unable to hold back the fast-moving Panthers. The Panthers are undefeated and it looks as if they will be there when the championship is decided.

The Oakland City Red Elephant remains undefeated also. They ran over the Cyclones by a score of 13-0. The Red Elephants made their score in the second and fourth quarters by some excellent passes.

The Decatur Bulldogs held the Grant Park Aces to an 0-0 game. The Aces claimed the Bulldogs used some ineligible players. This question will be investigated and if found to be true the game will be given to the Aces.

The percentage rating is as follows:

120-POUND—A CLASS.

	W.	T.	L.	Pct.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5.—(AP) A neighborhood "sandlot" football scrimmage resulted in death today to Myron Callagy, 23, from fractured neck vertebrae. His family said he went out "to get a little exercise" and engaged in the game.

Kingfish Requests His Boys at L. S. U. To Pay for Ride

By Quincy Ewing.

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 5.—(AP) Louisiana State University students know that there is no Santa Claus on the campus.

Their tinsel hopes were blasted today when Senator Huey Long passed the word that something like 500 of the students would have to pay back money he passed out to them in his wealth distribution process to pay their way on the "Kingfish" football specials with him to the Vanderbilt-L. S. U. football game in Nashville.

Turning his pockets inside out Santa Claus Huey was nearly mobbed as he distributed crisp bills at $7 a head to students fighting to make the trip. Each signed a laundry slip and the deal was made with Long holding the bag of I. O. U.'s.

Hundreds of students and many who were not students besieged Long when it was noised about Baton Rouge that he was "giving away money."

Now the students are paying it back. They have been told that they needn't kid themselves about it being "money off the Christmas tree."

E. N. Jackson, university business manager, said the money would probably all be paid within two months, and that it had been rolling back in at the rate of $40 a day since the game a week ago.

About $275 in all has been paid back so far, he said.

Jackson said Senator Long handed out about $3,500 to the students and that repayments were expected to increase heavily toward the end of the loan period.

"I don't believe the European war debt attitude is going to take very firm hold on the campus," Jackson remarked.

More than $125 was returned by students after the university warned that disciplinary action would be taken against those who signed fictitious names on the laundry slips.

Asked whether he expected to be reimbursed, Long said:

"Well, I might lose about $100—you know, we never lose much!"

PAUL AND DIZZY CHAT WITH BOSS

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Dizzy and Paul Dean, who will ask a joint salary of $40,000 for their pitching next season, dropped in on President Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals for a chat today.

The meeting was announced as solely a social get-together, but it is known Breadon would like to sign the Deans at once.

The brothers, who pitched the Cardinals to their four victories over the Detroit Tigers in the World Series, have been on a barnstorming and vaudeville tour.

"We made about $12,000 apiece since the World Series," Dizzy said. "So there ain't going to be no big bad wolves running around our house at Deanville this winter.

"But that ain't going to make me unreasonable. Take some and leave some, I says, and Mr. Breadon will find us very reasonable and as I might say to him in a letter, hoping he is the same, I am your truly, Dizzy."

When they get around to contracts, Dizzy has announced he will ask for a one-year agreement calling for a $25,000 salary, and Paul will tell how he thinks he should be paid $15,000.

If it looks like a battle of the dotted line, Dizzy will make $35,000 his basic demand, leaving a margin of $10,000 for oratorical deflation. Paul, by the same line of reasoning, will start at $20,000.

Dizzy's 1934 contract called for a salary of $7,500 and he received a $1,000 bonus when he signed the document. Paul, a first-year man, was signed for $3,000.

AUBURN STARS ARE INJURED

AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Team trainers said today Joe Bob Mitchell, halfback, and Morris, end, injured as Alabama Polytechnic Institute bowed to Duke Saturday, possibly would be in condition to oppose Georgia Tech at Atlanta Saturday.

Coach Jack Meagher drilled the first Auburn team only lightly today, but sent the second team through a scrimmage with the freshmen.

Emory Sophs Play Frosh Wednesday

A football game between the freshmen and sophomores preceded by exhibition tennis matches put on by members of the varsity net team has been scheduled for the annual Parents' Day celebration at Emory Wednesday.

In the first meeting of these two teams, the freshmen staged a rally late in the fourth quarter and won out, 7-6, after having been outplayed up to that time.

Since that time the sophomores beat the seniors, 7-6, and the freshmen held the favored junior eleven to a scoreless tie. Both teams have won one game, lost one and tied one.

A defensive battle is anticipated when the two teams tie up. Both have shown strong defense to date, but neither has been able to maintain a steady drive.

ERIE AND MIAMI SEEKING GAMES WITH SMITHIES

Prep Elevens Busy at Work for Week's Battles.

By Roy White.

Erie Academy, Erie, Pa., and Miami High school, Miami, Fla., are two of the first teams to be considered on Tech High's 1935 football schedule, it was learned Monday.

Erie, a former rival of the Smithies for several seasons, has asked for a resumption of relations on a two-year contract, with the first game to be played at Erie late in November and the other in Atlanta in 1936 in an early October game.

Miami High is negotiating for the Smithies to return to Miami for an early November date on the 1935 card, and it is likely that the Miami team will be scheduled on a home-and-home plan, though the latter has not been discussed at present.

Other teams that are fairly certain of a place on the 1935 card are Boys' High, for the close of the season, Decatur and Marist. No dates other than Erie on November 17 at Erie and Miami November 9 at Miami have been set as yet.

A SCORELESS TIE.

Tech High and Miami played to a scoreless tie in a drenching rain on October 5 at Ponce de Leon park. Last year Miami defeated Tech High, 20-0, at Miami in a Thanksgiving game, and the Florida eleven holds an edge over the Smithies in games played.

Tech High has always been popular in Pennsylvania and one of the greatest drawing cards on the Erie schedule, and it was for this reason Erie has asked for another series of games on a home-and-home basis. Erie likewise has proven a fine opponent for the Smithies here.

B. H. S. and T. H. S. Start Practice

Boys' High and Tech High football teams went about their practices Monday afternoon with more determination than ever before. The Purples won an easy victory over Bradley High Friday and the Smithies had a field day at the expense of Columbus at Columbus.

Opponents for Friday and Saturday will be among the toughest of the season for both clubs and that is the reason the coaches went about their work Monday in a serious mood.

Boys' High plays Gordon Friday night and the Barnesville eleven will be no set-up. In fact, it is likely to be one of the Purples' hardest games of the year. Gordon was beaten by an improved Monroe Aggie team, 6 to 0, Friday afternoon in Monroe.

Tech High faces Lanier High in Macon. The Smithies ran wild to beat Columbus, 45 to 0, while Lanier was losing to Savannah, 32 to 6, Saturday in Macon. The entire Smithie squad of 40 players and the 70-piece band will make the trip to Macon.

That Savannah rout over Lanier is no indication of the weakness of the Poets, but was an experiment for the Lanier coaches. Reports from Macon show that after Savannah had scored a couple of times, Lanier began sending in reserves and saved the varsity for the Smithie game Saturday.

Lanier suffered no injuries and gave the entire squad one of its best workouts in losing to Savannah. And the team will be in the best condition of the year, plus some valuable experience to the reserves, as they face Tch High Saturday.

Marist, Commercial Meet Thursday.

Marist and Commercial held long workouts Monday in preparation for the North Georgia Interscholastic conference championship game Thursday night at Ponce de Leon park.

Commercial holds the lead, with Marist in second place, losing only to Russell in the season's biggest prep upset.

And Marist with a strong team will be out for revenge and a chance to get back into the running for the title, while the Typists will put forth every effort to win its first N. G. I. C. championship.

Southern Dental Practices Soon

Within two weeks the Atlanta-Southern Dental College basketball squad will hold its initial practice under the tutelage of Coach Dr. T. H. Mizzell at the local Y. M. C. A. court.

The Dentist squad will again be coached by Dr. T. H. Mizzell, who has guided the Forrest avenue basketeers through several successful seasons during the past few years. It is reported that "Bill" Underwood, former Mercer College star, will assist Dr. Mizzell.

Underwood played for the Linen Service last season in the Civic league. The Dental team was runner-up in the league last season and was beaten for the championship by the Linen Service five in a close and thrilling contest.

It is expected that Dr. Mizzell will put another fine basketball team on the court this season. With all the members of last year's team back with the exception of H. Parker, who was graduated last May.

However, Dr. Mizzell will have on hand the following players in order to build up another winning five: Laird, Anderson, Surgent, Carbonell, Captain Hagood, Combee, A. Davis.

Baby Jackets, 'Pups' Get Silver Footballs

Members of the Georgia Tech and University of Georgia freshmen football squads will receive silver miniature footballs, engraved with their names, this year as a reward for their services in behalf of the Scottish Rite hospital fund.

At a meeting of the Shrine committee to discuss the Thanksgiving game between the two teams, held yesterday at the Capital City Club, this was decided and various subcommittees appointed to handle plans for the game. They were:

General committee on arrangements, Bill Wardlaw, Tom Law and Frank Spratlin.

Committee on ticket sales, Kirk Hancock, Jimmy Setze Jr., and Foster Fitzsimmons.

Advertising committee, Emile Ditler, Bill Wardlaw and Jake Harris.

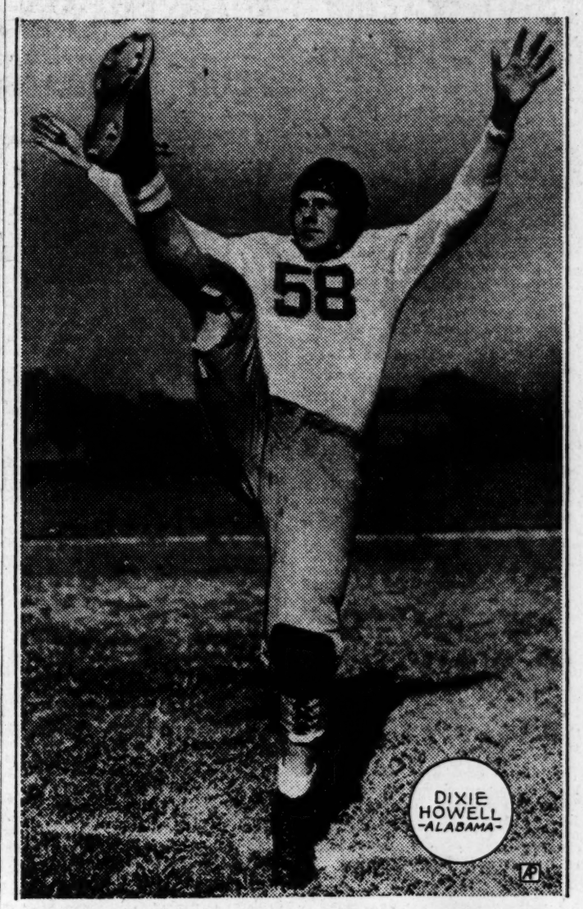

It was decided to keep admissions at the popular prices of $1 for reserved seats and 50 cents for general admission to the south stands. It also was decided to sell programs at 10 cents each.

Professor A. H. Armstrong and Charley Griffin represented Georgia Tech and promised to furnish the ushers for the game.

All proceeds of the annual freshman classic go to the Shriners' hospital fund for crippled and deformed children, which are treated without cost. Last year the game netted close to $6,000 and enabled the hospital to reopen a closed ward of 30 beds.

The silver footballs will be awarded the players at a supper following the game. This was decided upon instead of a dance for the players.

All-American Bound

Dixie Howell, who does everything but swallow a football for Alabama, is being widely mentioned for All-American this season. Howell is the leading back of the Tidesmen, favorites to repeat in the Southeastern conference race. He will be seen in action at Grant field Saturday week when Tech meets the elephantine Alabamans.

Tarheels' New Coach Great Letter Writer

Snavely Points Out Players' Faults in Weekly Correspondence; Sings in Church Choir.

By Jimmy Jones.

It is not at all surprising that this fellow, Carl Snavely, has turned out the surprise football team of the south.

In fact, Coach Snavely, himself, is something of a surprise. In his first year at the University of North Carolina, he has the Tarheels, chronic "takers" of the last several years, dishing it out and how! But if you marvel at the fact that the Tarheels have lost only one game this season (that to Tennessee) do not lose sight of the fact that Coach Snavely's teams at Bucknell won 42, lost 16 and tied 8 in the seven years he coached at the historic Pennsylvania institution that the late Christy Mathewson first glorified on the baseball field.

Coach Snavely is a new, if not a distinctive type of coach to appear on the southern scene. His coaching methods, while somewhat eccentric, undoubtedly must be of the soundest. And the fellow is a "bear" for work.

Mr. Bob Madry, the stout North Carolina charge d'affaires in the publicity office, accompanied the Tarheels to Atlanta and revealed to the writer a few interesting facts pertaining to Mr. Snavely's personal and profession habits.

Here are some of them:

It is not only true that he conducts a correspondence course on football with his players during the summer months, but that he writes each individual player on his squad a personal, confidential letter following each game, disclosing that player's faults, if any, and also his good points, regardless of whether the game is won or lost.

Coach Snavely is a great letter writer, the Cyrano de Bergerac of the coaches, as it were. He will sit down and write a letter at the slightest provocation, but he refuses to make a speech at any public or alumni function until after the season is over.

SANG IN CHOIR.

He is a man, plain as calico in his personal habits and his mode of living; a "teetotaler," a non-smoker and non-swearer. At Bucknell, he sang in the choir at the Baptist church with Mrs. Snavely, his constant companion and a very keen student of the game of football.

His favorite and only diversion is golf, being almost as much of a "bug" on that sport as he is on football. He rarely goes out of evenings, spending them studying football diagrams and writing letters to players.

He is possessed of a dry sense of humor that is not immediately apparent and is very good company off the field. But on the field is a hard, tireless worker, all business, and a strict disciplinarian. He does not hesitate to deal firmly, but he also is quick to praise a player for aptitude and alertness.

WARNER LIKES HIM

He is a thorough tactician, an infinite believer in fundamentals and "Pop" Warner once said of him that he has adopted his (Pop's) system of football better than any other coach in America. Coach Snavely uses a modified Warner system of single wingback and unbalanced line. It is a fairly simple formation, but he gets a great variety of plays and great power from it, with some of his own additions.

Not only in his letters does Coach Snavely keep his players constantly reminded of football, but he holds innumerable lectures and blackboard drills. He also has a motion picture cameraman take pictures of all his opponents' games for future study and illustrative work.

He also has a man who sits in the press box and makes a note of every play his team runs during a game, in shorthand. For this job, he has pressed into service the son of Governor Ehringhaus, of North Carolina, who is one of the football managers.

ANOTHER RECORD.

Therefore, he becomes not only the first coach ever to sing in a church choir, but also the first to press a governor's son into clerical service.

At Bucknell in 1931, he had the only unbeaten team in the east. There he developed three All-American players and in his first year at Carolina, he probably has another All-American in George Barclay, the guard, a great player who is just receiving national notice through playing on

TENPIN STARS HOLD TOURNEY

Tenpin bowlers will have an opportunity to do some plain and fancy bowling Saturday evening at 8 o'clock when the "Strikes and Spares" Handicap Tenpin sweepstakes will be bowled.

Handicaps will be computed from the scratch mark that will comprise the high average mark of the city for tenpin bowlers. Five games will be bowled. No entry fee will be charged, bowlers pay only the cost of the games.

The event is being staged in conjunction with the sports short, "Strikes and Spares" that will be shown at Loew's Grand theater beginning Friday, November 9. A beautiful trophy is being awarded the winner of the special contest by the management of Loew's Grand theater. Entry should be communicated to the office of the bowling alleys.

A special party of local devotees of the tenpin game is being organized by Ralph Crist, president of the Atlanta Bowling Association, to attend the picture as a means of brushing up on the fine points of the game.

The bowling fever has already hit such film favorites as Harold Lloyd, bowling champion of the stars; Jean Harlow, Ginger Rogers, Lew Ayres, Lee Tracy, John Boles, James Cagney, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Arthur Lake, Bruce Cabot, Adrienne Ames, Wallace Ford, Vince Barnett, A. St. John and Ed Kennedy.

Ducpin bowlers will have another chance to upset the little wood as they compete for banner awards as a sweepstakes is on the bill for Saturday evening, with special awards for the high score in both men and women's divisions.

Only three games are to be bowled. No entry fee will be charged, you pay only for the cost of the games bowled. Handicaps are computed from 115 for the men and 100 for the women, with the bowlers getting two-thirds of the difference in each case.

The "Myrna Loy trophy" will be awarded for the high score in the ladies' event. The "William Powell" trophy will be awarded for high score from the men's group.

Auburn Alumni To Meet Friday

A meeting of the Auburn alumni has been called for 6:30 o'clock Friday night at the Atlanta Athletic Club. A short business session will follow a dinner.

It will be a general get-together in preparation for Saturday's annual football game between Tech and Auburn at Grant field.

Every alumnus of Auburn is invited and urged to be present and reservations can be made through H. B. Lett, the secretary, at Official 8600.

ATLANTA GETS OPENING DATE WITH KNOXVILLE

Season Opens on April 16; Same Player Limit Retained.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Directors of the Southern Association of Baseball Clubs today went on record against a "split season" next year, decided on opening and closing dates and made a slight revision in the player limits in one of the shortest annual sessions ever held.

The directors decided to open the season April 16 and close September 15. Memphis will open at Little Rock; Nashville at Chattanooga; Knoxville at Atlanta, and New Orleans at Birmingham. July 4 home games were awarded Birmingham, Atlanta, Memphis and Chattanooga, and Labor Day games to New Orleans, Little Rock, Knoxville and Nashville.

The same player limit of 16 will prevail, with 10 Class A and six Class B men. However, two additional Class B men may be carried for the first 30 and last 30 days of the season. In the past, teams were allowed two extra rookies for 20 days at the beginning and at the end.

SPLIT IS KILLED.

President John D. Martin made it clear after the meeting that the vote of the directors definitely killed the possibility of a "split season" next year. The action, he said, ended discussion of the subject.

Mr. Martin did not reveal the vote on the rescinding of the "split season," in effect in the Southern the past three years. Thomas R. Watkins, Memphis, and Hughes Spalding, vice president of the Atlanta club, led the fight that brought its doom.

The salary limit for next year remains at $4,500 with $200 allowance for playing managers included.

Larry Gilbert, New Orleans general manager, was renamed chairman of the schedule committee, with Watkins of Memphis, and Fay L. Murray, of Nashville, as committeemen. The committee will meet in Memphis soon to draw up a tentative schedule to be submitted to the directors at a schedule meeting in New Orleans February 11.

OTHER COMMITTEES.

Other committees appointed were:

Constitution: Spalding, chairman; W. A. West, Birmingham; R. L. Thompson, Little Rock.

Resolutions and rules: Bob Allen, Knoxville, chairman; A. H. Woodward, Birmingham; Joe Engel, Chattanooga. Tickets: W. A. West, Birmingham.

Charles H. Miller, Memphis, was renamed league statistician, while W. A. Smith, Memphis, will continue as auditor.

A resolution was passed allowing $50 a month to the widow of the late Bill Brennan, veteran Southern umpire.

The present trustees, West, Gilbert and Thompson, were re-elected.

Morris Block, of Selma, Ala., conferred with the club owners informally in regard to reviving the old Southeastern league, composed of Alabama and Georgia cities. He was seeking support of individual clubs and officials said he met a favorable reception.

Clark Starts Work For Tuskegee Game

Clark University, victorious over Paine College last Saturday, began earnest preparation for the annual Armistice Day game next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Ponce de Leon park with the Golden Tigers of Tuskegee Institute, an ancient foe and bitter rival.

Coaches Robinson and Johnson, who had spent a hard week of work in drilling their men in blocking, seemed well pleased after the Paine game, and this week they will devote their time to the offense.

A carefully planned, well-timed attack is in the making at the South Atlanta institution with a mysterious backfield star, who hasn't played in a Clark game thus far this season, will direct the attack. Carl Ray, who is an outstanding candidate for All-American honors this fall at quarterback, is expected to relinquish his post and block for the mysterious star. Ray is considered one of the best blockers in colored football.

This afternoon Tuskegee plays and formations will be used against the varsity in scrimmage. Coach Johnson has been teaching them to the yearlings for the past two weeks. The varsity forwards will be used exclusively, the coaches stated, with the reserve backs hunning the Tuskegee offensive weapons.

Director of Athletics A. B. Wright, at Clark University, is expecting a record-breaking crowd for this game. Special seating accommodations will be made for the thousands of white fans who annually witness the game, and a conservative estimate indicates that at least 10,000 fans will be in the stands at the kickoff.

Fairgrounds Track Will Change Hands

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A syndicate headed by Robert Eddy operator of the Jefferson Park race track here, was negotiating today for the purchase of the Fair Grounds track from Colonel E. R. Bradley.

While negotiations were not complete, it was expected in racing circles that the deal would be concluded soon.

The sale of the Fair Grounds would mean, according to reports in racing circles, that one track instead of two would operate at New Orleans this season. It was the general opinion that Jefferson Park's winter season which opens Thanksgiving Day would be consolidated with a single meeting at the Fair Grounds.

Atlantans To Ride In New York Show

Miss Judy King and Forrest Adair III, two youthful Atlanta equestrian enthusiasts, will appear in the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden, New York, Wednesday through November 13, it was learned Monday.

Miss King will ride in "The Gay 90s," feature of the show, and will be in full costume.

Young Adair will ride a bay stallion, Regatta, son of Vendetta, grand champion at Louisville several years ago.

Hays May Be Used at Quarter, Dean at Fullback in Shakeup

INJURIES FORCE ALEX TO SHIFT HIS BACKFIELD

Hard Schedule Takes Toll of Jackets' Reserve Supply.

By Jimmy Jones.

Do not be surprised or confused, if, as a spectator at Georgia Tech's remaining four football games with Auburn, Alabama, Flodira and Georgia in the order named, you also become a witness to a bit of juggling of players in the Tech backfield.

For example, it is entirely possible that you will see a halfback calling signals, or a lineman dropped back to punt or play fullback in a pinch, due to a decision Coach Alexander has been forced to make since the Jackets' weighty schedule and a siege of injuries have taken their combined toll of his replacements.

TELLS OF PLANS.

In his usual calm manner, Mr. Alexander sat in his office on Monday afternoon and reflected upon the happenings of the last several weeks, during the course of which the Jackets' reserves have been sadly depleted.

"At the start of the season, we set out to perfect our system with the players we had at our command," he stated. "But now that we have either lost entirely or have several of our key men injured, we're going to start all over again.

"From now on out, I'm going to adjust our system to the ablebodied men we have without regard to normal position, which means that we may have to shift several of the backs around. For example, we may have to use Hays, who is really a halfback, as quarterback, now that Boyd is hurt. Jimmy Moore, a sophomore, is, at present, the only substitute we have for Roberts. And in some games, I may have to pull Dean out of the line and use him at fullback, since our fullback strength was greatly impaired with the injuries to Phillips and McKay early in the season."

SAD PLIGHT.

Coach Alexander's plight is really much worse than he will admit, for he is too gallant a sportsman to admit the true state of his squad's condition for fear that it will be taken by some who do not know him better as sounding like an alibi.

Here are some of the unfortunate developments in the Tech squad since it launched its gruelling 10-game argosy against Clemson on September 29:

1. Phillips, a great player last year, hurt knee in scrimmage and still not up to 1933 form as passer or runner, although defensive work has been fairly good.

2. Johnny Ferguson, kicking halfback, injured knee and lost for season.

3. Bill McKay, first-string substitute fullback, did well until suffered head injury in Clemson game. Hasn't been very useful since.

4. "Sun Dial" Martin, good man last year and improved runner this season, can be used only for a quarter due to doctor's orders and Coach Alexander's own unwillingness to use him longer because of physical condition.

5. Lawrence Hays, best of sophomore backs, two knee injuries at important stages of campaign which kept him out of two games.

Then when "Pug" Boyd, quarterback and halfback replacement, received a fractured jaw in the Carolina game, that was the last straw.

LINEMEN BATTERED.

On top of all this, some of the linemen are crippled up from the hammering they have taken from playing Vandy, Duke, Michigan, Tulane and Carolina in a row. Dave Wilcox, the left guard, played against the Tarheels with a badly swollen ankle and his brother, John Wilcox, had a couple of abscessed ears. "Pee Wee" Williams took a lot of punishment at left tackle in a heroic effort to stop the powerful strong side plays of the Tarheels Saturday.

Speaking of that game, Coach Alexander said:

"I guess our blowup was a little over due at that. I thought it would come in the Tulane game, after the boys played a pretty fair game in the rain at Michigan and lost. But they really surprised me by the way they played at New Orleans. Therefore, I wasn't greatly surprised, in view of our condition, at the way the team played Saturday. They weren't any worse than I expected after those first five minutes when the line stopped Carolina's running game, only to fall victim to its passing atttack."

"SAVED" REGULARS.

Coach Alexander revealed that he purposely withdrew his regulars after the Tarheels ran their lead to three touchdowns to try and save Phillips, Roberts, Williams and the Wilcoxes and some of the others from needless punishment.

"I could see the kind of game we were going to play after that and I thought I would try and save them from all the battering I knew they were going to take from a team that had us outclassed and which undoubtedly was the strongest team we have met this season.

Grand Circuit Style Racing Slated Here

By Jack Troy.

Atlanta's opportunity to see grand circuit harness racing in the horseflesh will be presented Friday, Saturday and Monday, Memorial Day, at Lakewood park.

It is all a result of Asa Patterson's and Walter Candler's trip to Hawkinsville last week for the meeting there. "It was red hot," they cryptically reported at the meeting of the Atlanta matinee driving and riding association last night at the Athletic Club.

Leading owners and drivers heard about the Hawkinsville meeting and attended with the idea of finding something easy. It seems they all had the same idea.

GREAT MEETING.

So what should happen but that many of the trotters that had been burning up various tracks all season did not even finish in the money. Candler and Patterson, men of long experience in harness racing, declared they hadn't seen anything like it in years and years.

And so the two Atlanta sportsmen, noting such a startling array of all-star horseflesh in action so near Atlanta, promptly extended an invitation to the owners and drivers to come here for a three-day meeting. The invitation was accepted and many of the horses are already on the grounds at Lakewood.

The pick of the horses off the grand circuit, Bay state circuit and great western circuit will compete in the three-day meeting this week-end.

GRAND CIRCUIT STYLE.

That's really all harness horse enthusiasts need to know. There will be three days in which to see grand circuit racing in the horseflesh.

All plans were worked out at last night's meeting which was attended by Asa Patterson, Walter Candler, John M. Ogden, Jakie Patterson, Dewitt King, Colonel F. M. Holtzinger, Courtney Hall, John Patterson, Trammell Scott and Herbert Oliver.

All gate reecipts will go into purses. There is to be no financial interest for anybody except the drivers. Friday's program will begin at 2 o'clock.

There will be three races on each day's program, two for out-of-state entries and one for Georgia-owned horses.

45 LEADING HORSES.

Many prominent South Carolina owners and drivers will be here for the meeting. There will be 45 leading trotters, at least, exclusive of Georgia horses.

Dr. Barnett, mayor of Greenwood, S. C., and Bob McCaslon, of Greenwood, chairman of the ways and means committee of the South Carolina house, also will be here from Greenwood.

Here are a few of the outstanding horses that will be seen:

Sam J. Napoleon by Napoleon Direct—started at Toronto, Can., and went on down the circuit; raced 16 times and won 13 races, was second in the other three. Owned by Sam Nichols, of Spartanburg, S. C., and broke the track record at Concord, N. C. Did the distance in 2:05, which is a world's record for three-year-old racers. Sam J. Napoleon is driven by W. G. Pierson in all races.

BB A "SURE SHOT."

BB by Napoleon Direct—recently finished second to Lady Vonian at Nashville. She went distance in 1:59 3-4. Owned by Charlie Boswell, of Paducah, Ky. BB is regarded as a "sure shot."

Louis Jazoll, Murill Jazoll, The Zest and True Blue—owned by Louis Huber, of Cincinnati, who raises, trains and races his own horses.

Cyclone Pete, Johnnie C. Frisco and Scipio—All owned by C. L. Hatchell, of Chester, S. C., who has been racing in Ohio and West Virginia circuits, except Scipio, who belongs to the Fraziers, of South Carolina.

Foxie Chenault, Chestnut Hunter—Owned by Dr. C. L. Lester, of South Dakota. Foxie Chenault has mark of 2:08 1-4. Chestnut Hunter has mark of 2:09 1-4. Lester has running horses also.

ALREADY HERE.

These horses and owners are here already and will appear in daily workouts at Lakewood.

George Stiles, of Rome, famous trainer and driver, will take part in the meeting. Stiles will drive Signal Mountain, Georgia state champion, owned by Governor Eugene Talmadge, who will be one of the most ardent spectators. Governor Talmadge participated in the Hawkinsville meeting last week.

Herbert Oliver, president of the Atlanta Horse Show Association, is secretary of the Matinee Association. He will be one of the chief figures in the three-day meeting.

It is to be one of the biggest week-ends in harness horse history of Atlanta and Georgia. A fast track and clear weather will make for a record-slashing meeting.

Boys' Basketball League Planned

At a meeting last Tuesday night it was voted by the managers of the Sunday school teams already in the league to open the league to sandlot teams or any other teams desiring to enter. Any boy is eligible to play that attends junior or senior high school or if not must be under 18 years of age.

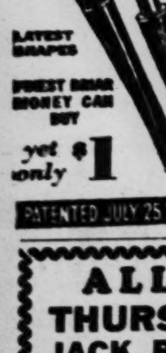

Any team interested is requested to attend the meeting tonight at the Y. M. C. A. at 7:30. Only three teams are needed to complete the league.

Charleston Hunter Lassoes 175-Lb. Deer

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 5.—(AP)—There may be many ways of catching a deer, but it is a safe bet few have been bagged as T. Kadoma got his.

The Japanese farmer, who lives near here, lassoed a six-point buck from a rowboat while the animal was swimming in the Cooper river. It weighed 175 pounds.

Captain W. H. Hoss, who rowed the boat for Kadoma when the catch was made, got the antlers.

PETRELS DRILL AGAINST PASSES FOR CATHOLIC

Gold and Black Also Works on Own Aerial Game for Saturday.

By Jack Troy.

You know how it was when you played baseball and the boys would yell "the old ginegar! the old ginegar!" by way of adding spirit and a heads-up attitude. Then it spread to football and the boys went around slapping each other on the backs or other handy spots and chortling, "The old ginegar now; where's the life!"

So you can rest assured Oglethorpe is going to be okay in that Saturday intersectional game with the Flying Cardinals of Catholic University at Washington, D. C.

Because the word is out that they are treating Captain Frank Mitrick, who has an injured shoulder, with vinegar. Belton Clark, injured quarterback, is also getting his share of vinegar. He has an injured chest.

Trainer Stacy Rowell is mixing vinegar with clay and getting the soreness out in a big way, they do say. Chests of clay and "the old ginegar." Oglethorpe is going to do all right.

BOTTOM OF BARREL.

The Oglethorpe squad is about down to the bottom of the barrel in so far as reserves are concerned. And reserves will be sorely needed against Catholic.

Alumni Coach John Patrick is drilling the reserves this week in the hope there will be one or two players who show promise enough to warrant sending into the game as replacements.

A lot of passes are being tossed this week, both pro and con. Which is to say the Petrels are heaving them in their own right and also defending against those tossed by the second-stringers and freshmen.

And this is all due to the fact that Catholic's Flying Cardinals have a reputedly strong aerial game. The Cardinals tossed 41 against Holy Cross and made no few of them stick.

TUPPIN PROMISING.

It is quite likely that Frank Tuppin, blond sophomore halfback from St. Petersburg, Fla., will be in the game at one time or another to do a little passing. Tuppin is the boy who loosed a 50-yard toss to Cecil Moon against Erskine. It was completed for one of the most spectacular passes of the season and amounted to a gain of 55 yards.

Tuppin once was a good prep school baseball pitcher. Then he hurt his arm and was unable to throw overhand any more. So he took up diamond ball, which requires pitches to be made underhand.

Tuppin hurled that pass to Moon sidearm, much as if he were pitching to a batter in diamond ball. And the toss was as accurate as you could wish to see.

Such passes as this would prove very valuable indeed against a team such as Catholic, which has an iron-clad defense. And the Catholics have a very nifty offense, too, according to the season's record.

WORK ON KICKING.

Since kicking will play an important part, the Petrels had a long session in this department yesterday. There was, of course, considerable work on pass defense and a lot of time was devoted to smoothing up the spinners and triple passes and so on.

The Petrels—sometimes called Pets, for short—will be sent into a short scrimmage today. It will be the only one of the week. No chances will be taken by Coaches Patrick and Wren on further injuries.

Lamar Adams, guard, is still hurt and is unlikely to play Saturday.

Basketball

METHODIST LEAGUES.

The final organization meeting of the Methodist Young Peoples A. A. Basketball leagues will be held at 1101 Georgia Savings Bank building on Wednesday night at 6:30 o'clock. It is planned to have three leagues as in former years.

There is still room for another team in each of the leagues. Any team or Sunday school that is not a member of this association and desires to play league basketball this year should call President Black at Walnut 8484 for further information, or have a representative present at the meeting Wednesday night.

The girls' teams will play the modified boys' rules as they did last year. Games will be played at the Atlanta Athletic Club court, probably on Tuesday and Thursday nights.

FERA MANAGER.

The C league, completed its roster at the meeting sponsored by the FERA Wednesday night and a meeting will be held by the team managers Tuesday at 5 o'clock in room 207 Chamber of Commerce building when drawing for opening night games will be made. The following clubs were admitted to membership, Standard Oil Company, Rogers Stores, Inc., Atlanta Constitution, Fulton National Bank, Knights of Columbus and Swift & Company.

FERA LEAGUE.

With one league already completed and enough clubs enrolled to form two more, the FERA will hold another meeting in room 207 of the Chamber of Commerce building Wednesday night.

Basketball teams desiring to enroll are urged to have representation so that practice hours can be assigned, and all details for the opening games which will be played the first week of December can be made.

Y LEAGUES.

Elated over the completion of the Y Civic league, Oscar Brock, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., will begin the formation of a similar league to play on the Y. M. C. A. court one night each week throughout the basketball season.

A nucleus of four teams has been secured. A meeting is scheduled for Friday night at the Y. M. C. A., so that this league can complete all details in time to begin play the first week of December.

Y-CIVIC LEAGUE.

Davison-Paxon Company was elected to membership in the Y Civic league, and all plans for the opening games were made at the meeting held at the Y. M. C. A. Friday night. The league will operate with eight clubs and will open Thursday night, December 6.

Oscar Brock, Dr. William Gage and Pete Melton were elected league referees. A ruling barring players employed after November 1 was added to the league by-laws. Teams drew their opening night opponents and the season's official schedule will be submitted at the next meeting which will be held prior to the opening games.

ALPHA GAME.

The Canton, Ga., high school basketball teams will open the 1934 schedule Friday night, November 16, against the Alpha Class teams of Atlanta. This will be the third time that Canton has started the season against the popular Atlanta clubs.

ALPHA PRACTICE.

The Alpha Class boys' basketball club will begin practice at the Joe Brown school court at 7:30 o'clock Monday night. Manager Parker invites all players who desire a tryout to be at the court at 7:30.

This popular Atlanta team, sponsored by the Wesley Memorial class, will start their sixth season under Manager Parker against the Canton High school teams November 16. And games will be played each week with teams throughout Georgia, Alabama and east Tennessee.

'Strong Legs Will Run That Weak May Walk'

Tech and Georgia Freshman Game, Sunday Movies Provide Care for Crippled Children.

By Ralph McGill.

Because the Georgia Tech and Georgia freshmen play football on Thanksgiving Day with every cent going for the Scottish Rite Crippled Children's hospital; and because the Sunday movies give something each week, something has happened.

For a year 60 beds have been ready and right now there are 62 ready and all of them are holding the bodies of small children who have something wrong with their bodies.

Every child out there is afflicted; has some brace on his leg, has some operation healing where club feet have been made straight; where crooked bones have been made straight; where twisted backs are being straightened.

All year some of those youngsters have been strapped to boards so that the delicate bones in their backs will grow straight.

WELL CARED FOR.

And they never complain or whimper or cry. They get milk every day and they get sunshine—from the sun or from lamps when the sun is not shining. They are well fed every day. And competent nurses and surgeons look after them.

All this would be impossible without the Georgia Tech-Georgia football game and the Sunday movies. It would be impossible without either of these contributing agencies. The game must be played. Or half of these beds will be closed and that many children will go on living with crooked spines and twisted feet and diseased bones and joints that won't work.

Somehow there are always people who take it unto themselves to see that the weak and the helpless of the world are given a chance. They do not always succeed. But if there was ever a charity worth while it is this one where the children are made strong and well and given a chance.

STRONG LEGS, WEAK LEGS.

This game is to be played on Thanksgiving Day at Grant field—strong legs will run that weak may walk.

The game is to be one of the best football games of the year. This is no publicity statement. It is a true one. The players will be well coached, eager and spirited. There are good football players on the freshman teams of Georgia and Georgia Tech. It will be a good game.

Tickets will be $1 reserved and 50 cents unreserved. Make a mental note of this game—determine to see it on Thanksgiving Day so that for at least another year all those beds may be kept ready for the youngsters who have come into the world with two strikes against them in the game of life.

Make a mental note—on Thanksgiving afternoon the Georgia freshmen play the Tech freshmen. And you'll be there.

Stoefen Expected To Sign This Week

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Lester Stoefen, world's doubles champion with George Lott, will join his Davis cup partner in the professional tennis ranks before the week is out, it was indicated here today.

Lott took the step last week.

The likelihood of Stoefen's departure from the amateur ranks was seen in the comment of Dick Charnock, Stoefen's manager and close friend of Ellsworth Vines Jr., that he believed an interesting announcement regarding the professional tennis situation will develop" out of a meeting between Vines and Bill O'Brien, professional promoter, in New York Wednesday.

Vines is en route to New York.

a winner. Barclay seems destined to become North Carolina's first All-American.

Prior to going to Bucknell, Snavely coached at Belfont Academy and Kiski and many of his star players at these two noted prep schools followed him there.

CAME FROM VIRGINIA.

His ancestors came from Virginia, but he attended college at Lebanon Valley, a small college where he was not a star, but a three-letter athlete. He played fullback on the football team.

He believes that southern college fotoball is on a par with that of any other section in the country, maybe better than that of the east, and about as good generally as that of the mid-west and far-west. But he thinks southern high school football below that of the eastern standard because it is not as greatly emphasized.

This is about all there is to write about Coach Snavely, excepting the fact that the North Carolina alumni were skeptical of him at first and that many of them preferred Matty Bell, of Texas A. & M., and Glenn Thistlewaite, now at Richmond, over him. Now they are glad they took Snavely.

ICTERIDAE.

The blackbird group has always interested your writer to a very great extent. The first really sizeable flock of birds in his memory is one of rusty blackbirds seen out north of Decatur. In my unbounded and youthful enthusiasm, before cautious science had reared its careful head into my life, I stated that there were billions of birds in the flock, and implored all my friends to rush out and see them. One kind gentleman told me to pay more attention to my butterfly collection, but another indicated more confidence in my glowing report and went with me to the spot at once in his automobile, where he also gloried in the mass formation of the blackbirds.

I have missed seeing them so far this year, although last fall they might have been seen any afternoon circling around Capitol Hill. I never tire of watching the constantly changing formation of the flight as they wheel and wing their ceaseless ways through thin air. Flight is a romantic thing, altogether too challenging to the imagination.

Georgia is blessed with a number of blackbirds, although I really cannot say how many of them there are to be found in this state. I can name offhand only the red-winged blackbird, the rusty blackbird, the bobolink, the purple and the bronze grackles, the boat-tailed grackle, the meadowlark, the orchard oriole, and the Baltimore oriole. Yes, friends, all those species are blackbirds. Nine of them, to my knowledge, are found in this state, either as residents or as migrants. It will probably pay for us to take this family to bits and have a look at some of its component parts.

MEADOWLARK.

Dr. T. S. Palmer, some years ago, made a trip down to Georgia to help some of the local bird protectionists put through some laws for the conservation of bird life. Included in the bill was a statement protecting the field larks, or meadowlarks. Dr. Palmer told the Georgia general assembly the various reasons why the birds should be given legal protection. It was moved that the meadowlark be taken from the list of protected birds for the reason that it pulled up young corn. Dr. Palmer objected. A farmer-legislator arose and asked:

"Dr. Palmer, have you ever seen a meadowlark pull corn?"

Dr. Palmer said he had not.

"I have," returned the legislator, and from that day to this the field lark remains on the unprotected list of birds. It is high time they were protected now, for they are not as abundant as they were in former years.

ROSS TO SEEK WIN THURSDAY

Jack Ross will use orthodox tactics against Honey Boy Hackney, the powerfully assembled New Jersey wrestler Thursday night at the city auditorium. Because he is sure he will need nothing else to emerge as the winner.

Ross and Hackney headline the card, which is supported by the Tarzan Jordan-Tiger Moore one-hour battle. A good preliminary is being arranged.

Ross recently was reinstated by the boxing commission when he promised not to bring any more concealed weapons into the ring.

Hackney has been a great crowd-pleaser at the auditorium. In his last appearance here he fought to a draw with Jordan. They butted heads trying to obtain a third fall and both were so groggy that time ran out before they recovered.

Ross was kayoed by Romanoff on the same card. The bearded ape man socked him over the head with the weapon Ross brought into the ring.

This week's card has been moved up to Thursday night in order to avoid a conflict with a concert which is scheduled at the auditorium on Friday night.

Ross is colorful and well-liked by the crowd, but nevertheless most of them would like to see Hackney pin his ears back Thursday night. And Hackney is apt to do just that.

Tickets are on sale at the Five Points Soda Company or may be reserved by calling DE. 3932. Popular prices prevail.

Atlanta Cyclists Enter State Meet

Two star Atlanta cyclists, Billy McAdams, state junior champion, and Charles Lynn, are going to Savannah today for the Georgia state cycling championship to be held Wednesday.

Cecil Hursey, of Savannah, is Georgia senior champion, and the local boys will endeavor to take his measure.

Down the Alleys

The Motion Picture Duckpin league is getting away to "full steam ahead" with all of the bowlers pepped up over the improvement in the individual averages and the competition keener than ever between the teams.

Paramount missed Oscar Morgan from their lineup last week as they dropped two games to Theatrical Printing. Full teams will be had as the play is resumed this evening, however, and interest and enthusiasm should be more prominent than heretofore even.

In the schedule this evening Warner Brothers and Columbia, Paramount and National Screen Service, Fox vs. Theatrical Printing, R.-K.-O. vs. M.-G.-M.

Travelers and Hartford Fire, American Fire and Aetna Casualty Surety Company, Cotton Insurance Association and Commercial Union are matched in the Fire Insurance league.

The crack Hartford Fire Insurance Company team will tackle the Knights of Columbus in the Georgia Tenpin league's feature match tonight. Porky's Grill and A. L. Zachry Company, Davey Plumbing & Heating and Gaylord Container, Aces and Anderson's Flower Shop.

In the Gate City Duckpin league the Atlantic Steel Company plays Davison-Paxon Company; Fairbanks, Morse & Co. bowls Lamar-Rankin Drugs, American Can Company and York Air Conditioners, J. P. Allen Company and Knight Ice Company will bowl.

The $1,000 Roach Killer and General Electric Company, Curtiss Printing Company and Power Club, Railway Mail and United Motors Service, Aristocrat Dairies and S. A. L. Railway will be matched in the Amateur Duckpin league this evening.

And the Bamby Baker Boys' Duckpin league will have its four teams matched.

BROWN MEETS KARL SARPOLIS AT AUDITORIUM

Chewacki Faces Hills in Semi-Final of Weber's Card.

Orville Brown, the big heavyweight sensation from the midwest, will tackle Dr. Karl Sarpolis, the west coast bone specialist, in the feature match of Matchmaker Henry Weber's weekly mat show at the city auditorium tonight.

This is the third meeting of the two here and Brown is seeking a third victory over the doctor. This would go a long way toward strengthening Brown's claims for a match with Jimmy Londos, the world's champion.

INDIAN RETURNS.

The terrible Chief Chewacki, the Indian terror of the mat, will return for a match with Georgia Hills, the big lumberjack from the north woods. They will tangle in the semi-windup match and Hills promises to keep the Indian on the run the whole evening. Hills will stand for none of Chewacki's daffy tricks and says he will be just as rough as the Indian.

Jack League and Sid Sabors will open the card in a short match at 8:15 o'clock.

The main match will give the fans plenty of action from the start. Brown, one of the most consistent winners ever to appear here, is working for a match with Champion Londos and he will take no chances with Sarpolis tonight.

SEEKS REVENGE.

Sarpolis, on the other hand, remembers those two previous defeats and will be out there battling with his all in an effort to upset Brown. He would like nothing better than hand the rugged mid-westerner a decisive licking and upset his plans for a match with Londos.

In this match the fans will see some real scientific wrestling, something mat patrons very seldom see in these days of rough and tumble tactics. Both Brown and Sarpolis are smooth, clever workers and it is pleasing to watch them in their pitting their speed and skill against each other.

Tickets are on sale at the Piedmont Hatters on Peachtree street and after 6 o'clock they will go on sale at the auditorium box office. Fans are urged to buy their tickets in advance and avoid the late crowd at the auditorium.

22 TEAMS KEEP SLATES CLEAN

J. P. C. Handball Meet Progressing

Action is heavy in the Jewish Progressive Club doubles handball tournament. Here are the standings to date:

Rosenthal and Hartman, 12 victories, 2 defeats; Shinas and Rubin, 12 victories, 2 defeats; Warsaw and Kaufman, 10 victories, 4 defeats; Idov and Abe Berman, 8 victories, 6 defeats; Moret and Idov, 8 victories, 6 defeats; Axle Rod and Rosenberg, 6 victories, 8 defeats; Minsk and Zimmerman, 6 victories, 8 defeats; Weinstein and Eisenstat, 6 victories, 8 defeats; Seigal and Alterman, 4 victories, 10 defeats; E. Berman and Greenberg, 4 victories, 10 defeats; Brody and Soloman, 4 victories, 10 defeats; Lipton and Levin, 3 victories and 11 defeats.

Play is held each Monday and Wednesday night. The four winning teams after the 24 games will play an elimination tournament. Parks-Chambers will give a trophy to the winners.

Wednesday's schedule:

7 O'Clock—Shinas and Rubin vs. Idov and Berman, Minsk and Zimmerman vs. Rosenthal and Hartman, Moret and Idov vs. Weinstein and Eisenstat.

8 O'Clock—Berman and Greenberg vs. Axle Rod and Rosenberg, Warsaw and Kaufman vs. Brody and Solomán, Seigal and Alterman vs. Lipton and Levin.

'Bubber' Alford Goes To Punta Gorda Club

ALBANY, Ga., Nov. 5.—Floyd Alford Jr., manager of Radium Springs, will manage the Hotel Charlotte Harbor at Punta Gorda, Fla., this winter. Alford also announces that the golf course at Radium Springs will remain open the year round but that the hotel will close for four months during the time he is in Florida.

Radium Springs has become nationally known for its various tournaments, both golf and shooting, and it is thought that Alford will probably schedule a number of these same events at Punta Gorda this winter.

On the Air Today

ELECTIONS—Press and radio will unite tonight in broadcasts over the Columbia network, including WGST, to furnish news and summaries of the most important of today's ballots. Brief breaks will be made into scheduled broadcasts late tonight.

H. V. Kaltenborn, veteran CBS political commentator, and Raymond Clapper, former chief of the United Press Washington bureau who has been intimately reporting administration moves, will summarize and interpret returns furnished by the Press-Radio bureau in a broadcast over WGST from 9:30 to 10 o'clock.

Returns from the California race, due to difference in Pacific time, will not be available then, but will be read later.

The Press-Radio returns will be taken from the complete reports of the Assocaited Press, the United Press and the International News Service.

COUNTESS—Isham Jones has invited one of radio's most popular personalities, Countess Olga Albani, to sing during his program over WGST and the Columbia network from 8:30 to 9 o'clock tonight. Countess Albani, a Barcelona-born tenor, has chosen "I Give My Heart," "Siboney" and the memory-colored "Annie Laurie" for her offerings. Jones' orchestra and a quartet under the direction of Leith Stevens; will assist.

VARIETY—Columbia has assembled many of its most successful stars for the "Columbia Variety Hour" broadcast over WGST this afternoon from 2 to 3 o'clock. Freddie Rich's orchestra, with Emery Deutsch as guest conductor, the two-piano team of Fray and Braggiotti, the Eton Boys, Vera Van, David Ross, the Columbia String quartet, and the Do Re Mi Girls will be presented.

RETURN—The "Pet Milky Way" programs, a feature for housewives and others interested in the culinary arts, will return to WGST commencing with the broadcast this morning at 10 o'clock.

BRIEFS—"Not by Bread Alone," a dramalogue honoring the Jewish Social Service Association of New York, will be presented over WGST by the "March of Time" cast (written in this style also) at 3:30 o'clock—today you may hear: Bing Crosby and the Boswell Sisters, at 8—Glen Gray's Casa Loma orchestra, at 9—an "Educational Week" broadcast on "The College of Tomorrow," at 1:30.

Pullman Softball Team To Be Honored

The Pullman Company's softball team will assemble at the Decatur Woman's Club at 8 p. m. Saturday for an Italian supper to be followed by a dance. The music to be furnished by the Graham Jackson orchestra. Friends of the team are invited to attend.

ARE YOU SMART? Solve This Puzzle

Solve this Figure 15 Puzzle. Eight missing figures will do it. Fill in the blank spaces opposite with the numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8 and 9 so that the total will be 15 when added in every direction—up and down, crossways and diagonally. No number may be used more than once.

By FREDERICK GARDNER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Stocks continued to point upward today and trading expanded a little in contrast with the usual tendency before a holiday.

As the share list crept ahead for the third consecutive session, the bulk of the buying again converged upon issues rated as highly speculative.

Not much doubt was expressed in brokerage quarters as to the outcome of tomorrow's elections. Political factors were stressed less as an immediate market influence than business trends. However, strength in building and liquor shares had political angles.

Except for strength and activity in a number of low-prices secondary shares, there was little indication of a change along the financial front. Bonds held to a narrow groove and most commodities beat a steady course.

Building Shares Gain.

In the building group, Certain-teed products preferred spurted 5 points and the common more than a point. Johns Manville crossed 50 for a net gain of more than a point. American Radiator, Foundation Company, Long Bell Lumber A, Devoe & Raynolds A, Celotex preferred and Congoleum moved up fractions to about 3 points.

While most of the prominent shares made only fractional gains, increased demand for equities lifted a number of issues 1 to 3 points, including Eastman Kodak, Coca-Cola—both of which touched new 1934 peaks—Corn Products, California Packing, American Can, R. H. Macy and American Tobacco B.

Merchandise Shares.

Reports of sustained retail trade kept alive interest in merchandise shares. Steel stocks, however, did little in the face of the American Iron & Steel Institute's estimate of a further rise in steel production to 26.3 per cent of capacity against 25 per cent a week ago.

Turnover increased to 759,000 shares against 651,220 Friday and the Standard Statistics Company 90 stock index advanced to 71.6, up five-tenths of a point.

Broader speculative interest exhibited in stocks did not embrace commodities generally. Wheat closed 1-2 cent a bushel lower to 7-8 cents higher, but corn advanced as much as 1 3-8 cents. Cotton dipped 30 to 40 cents a bale.

STOCK OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—We look for a further advance in stock prices over the near term.

COURTS & COMPANY—We expect to see better prices in the near future.

DOBBS & COMPANY—The results of Tuesday's voting are not likely to have much effect on stock prices unless the results are very unexpected, so that the market is apt to be governed by the extent of seasonal recovery rather than anything else.

COTTON OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—We look for an irregular and evening up market between now and the bureau report and a better and more active market after it is out of the way.

COURTS & COMPANY—We see nothing in the present situation to indicate a wide swing in either direction.

HUBBARD BROTHERS & CO. TO DOBBS & CO.—In view of the government loan offer there would seem little chance for any general weakening of the spot situation, but a reviving demand for consumption still seems necessary to sustain advances.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—The foreign wheat market will affect prices but domestic conditions continue very strong.

SHARES ON CURB REGISTER GAINS

By BERNARD S. O'HARA.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Firmness was displayed by curb exchange stocks today. Advances of fractions to around a point predominated at the close and embraced virtually all divisions. Trading was in moderate volume.

A number of specialty issues recorded substantial advances. The list was steady at the opening but values improved during the first hour. Following a lull the upturn was again resumed. The majority of shares finished around their best prices for the day.

Advances of around a point were shown by New York Telephone preferred, Celluloid preferred, Hazeltine Corp., Parker Rust-Proof, Philip Morris, Humble Oil, Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Distillers Corporation-Seagrams.

Aluminum Company of America was an isolated soft spot, dipping 1 1-4 points. Both Swift and Company and Swift Internacional ended about unchanged. American Cyanamid B, Electric Bond and Share, Creole Petroleum, Lake Shore, Sherwin Williams and American Gas and Electric were up fractionally.

Transfers were approximately 146,000 shares compared with 129,000 last Friday.

RFC CARRIER LOANS TO HOLD AT 4 PER CENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Loans to railroads by the Reconstruction Corporation will be continued at 4 per cent for the "time being."

Chairman Jones said in response to questions at his press conference today that he had made this decision November 1. The interest rate has been reduced several times to the present 4 per cent.

Markets to Close.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—All stock exchanges and commodity markets in the United States will be closed tomorrow, election day, except Salt Lake City Stocks, Boston Wool, Savannah Naval Stores and New York Livestock and various cattle markets. European and Canadian markets will be open as usual.

Earnings.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—United Carbon Company and subsidiaries report for the first nine months net profit of $988,413 after charges, taxes, depreciation, etc., equal after preferred dividend requirements to $2.53 a share on the common stock. This compares with profit of $479,647, or $1.06 a share, in the same period a year ago.

In the September quarter profit totaled $318,040, equal to 86 cents a share, compared with $178,916, or 40 cents a share, in the third quarter last year.

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—Net earnings of $4.40 a share on common stock after all regular charges were reported Sunday by Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts, Ltd., for the fiscal year which ended August 31.

The earning record is the best in the company's history. Its improved position was accounted for partly by profitable operations in the United States, beginning with the repeal of prohibition.

The company's operating earnings for the year were $4,514,000.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, 5 points down, at 12.30. Receipts 403; shipments 826; stocks 144,995.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Cotton eased off today under December liquidation and evening up for the election day adjournment. Trading was comparatively quiet and March contracts, after selling from 12.19 to 12.14, stiffened up a few points on covering, but later eased to 12.13 and closed at that figure. The general market tended steady at a net decline of 6 to 8 points.

December sold off from 12.09 to 12.02 and May from 12.21 to 12.14, making net losses of 6 to 8 points, and last prices were at or within a point of the lowest for the day. Much of the business was attributed to December liquidation which was absorbed by the trade, while there was a good deal of switching between months wtihout much change in the differences.

Evidently traders found nothing in the news to stimulate an aggressive position on the market in advance of tomorrow's holiday. Three more of the private end-October crop reports were issued with figures on the indicated yield ranging from 9,225,000 up to 9,506,000 bales, but they seemed to create little immediate market interest.

Some attention was attracted by the annual report of the bureau of economics on the agricultural outlook for next year but it was not generally mentioned in connection with the day's price movement.

The preliminary report of the New York Cotton Exchange service estimated world's consumption of cotton of all growths for September at 1,879,000 bales against 1,936,000 for August and 2,043,000 for September last year. Exports today 30,830, making 1,441,065 so far this season. Receipts 32,063. United States port stocks 3,153,357.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON DECLINES 3 TO 6 POINTS

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Pre-holiday influences held the cotton market to narrow trading and a slightly downward tendency. The market will be closed tomorrow for the general election.

Traders sought to even up in commitments and outside of that business was scarce. The opening was very quiet 3 to 5 points down on the basis of lower Liverpool cables.

Firmer stocks buoyed prices a point or two in the early trading, but later there was an easing off on long liquidation for the holiday and prices dropped 6 to 8 points below Saturday's closing quotations.

After a rally of 2 to 3 points near the end of the session the market closed steady showing net declines of 3 to 6 points.

October and December were the only active months at the opening call. Liverpool reported that buying there was encouraged by steadiness in American and Egyptian markets, but that there was a later reaction assigned to professional selling due to wider parities.

Liverpool is due on New Orleans tomorrow unchanged to 1 penny point down.

Port receipts 32,063, for week 55,779, for season 2,359,268, last season 3,709,776. Exports 30,830, for week 44,732, for season 1,407,169, last season 2,579,904. Port stock 3,176,801, last year 3,914,673. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston, 114,362, last year 132,054. Spot sales at southern markets 11,430, last year 35,143.

By VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—With today's bond market shoved in between a week-end and tomorrow's election holiday, most traders and investors were not inclined to take a very active part in the proceedings.

While there were scattered strong and heavy spots throughout the list, the majority of issues held to a low fractional range. Transfers totaled $8,177,000, par value, against $9,452,000 last Friday and the Standard Statistics Company average for 60 domestic corporate bonds was again unchanged at 84.

United States government securities displayed a slightly lower drift in relatively dull transactions. The turnover here amounted to only about $1,200,000. Declines of 1-32d to 8-32ds of a point predominated.

Among the better acting corporation loans were Certain-teed 5 1-2s, up 2 1-2 at 62 1-2; Goodrich 6s, up 1 1-4 at 82; North American Edison 5s of 1969, up 1 at 79; Paramount-Publex 5 1-2s, up 2 1-2 at 57 3-4; Studebaker 6s, up 1 at 47, and Walworth first 6s, up 3 at 40.

Losers included New York Central 4 1-2s, off 1 1-4 at 58 1-4; McCrory Store 5 1-2s, off 2 3-4 at 82 1-4; International Mercantile Marine 6s, off 3 1-4 at 40 3-4.

German obligations were heavy, reflecting the reich's action in suspending all cash payments on external debts between July 1 last, and June 30, next year. Turnover in the foreign section, however, was small.

Sugar and Coffee.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Raw sugar was dull today and no sales were reported.

There was a lack of interest in the futures market owing to the holiday tomorrow and the inactivity in the spot market, with final prices net unchanged to 1 point higher. Sales were only 3,400 tons.

The range follows:

	High	Low	Last
December	1.84	1.83	1.82b
January	1.75	1.75	1.74b
March	1.70	1.70	1.70
May	....	....	1.72b
July	....	....	1.76b
September	1.81	1.81	1.79b

b—Bid.

In refined a moderate business was reported but it was only of a hand-to-mouth character and prices were unchanged at 4.65 for fine granulated.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Coffee advanced rather sharply in the late trading today on Brazilian and local buying promoted by reports of somewhat better demand for cost and freight coffees and owing to vague rumors concerning further possible action by Brazil to aid the coffee market.

Santos opened 6 higher and closed 11 to 15 higher; sales 16,000. No. 7 opened 3 to 8 higher and closed 11 to 14 higher; sales 11,000. GOLD OUTPUT IN U. S. CONTINUES TO GAIN

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Gold production in the United States in September totaled 284,000 fine ounces, according to the American bureau of metal statistics. This was the highest output since the bureau began compiling monthly figures in 1932, and represented an increase of 45,000 ounces over August.

For the period from January to September United States output amounted to 2,107,000 fine ounces against 1,759,000 in the same period last year.

World output of gold was estimated by the bureau at 19,617,000 fine ounces in the first nine months against 17,795,000 in the similar period a year ago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Faced by an election holiday tomorrow, wheat prices today ruled irregular—higher finally for deferred deliveries, lower for December.

Rains in Argentina and rust complaints from there, together with 2,379,000 bushels decrease of the United States wheat visible supply, had more or less bullish influence. An opposite factor was arrival of 119 cars of hard winter wheat here today for Chicago mills, a circumstance tending to weaken December prices.

Wheat closed uneven, 1-2 cent lower to 7-8 higher, compared with Saturday's finish, May 96 7-8 to 97, corn 1-2 to 1 3-8 advanced, May 77 3-4 to 7-8, oats 1-8 to 3-8 up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 17 cents.

Corn and oats value were strengthened by better shipping demand here for corn, and by reports that a cargo of corn said to have been bought Saturday to come immediately to this country was actually taken for April shipment to Montreal, Canada.

Provisions went higher with hog values. All future deliveries of lard went to a new top price record for the season.

QUARTERLY DIVIDEND DECLARED BY G. M. C.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Directors of General Motors Corporation today declared the usual quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common stock. In the previous quater the corporation authorized an extra dividend of 25 cents in addition to the regular payment.

The dividend is payable December 12 to stock of record November 15.

Declaration of the extra dividend three months ago followed publication of an earning statement for the June 30 quarter which was more favorable than that for the September 30 quarter. For the second quarter the corporation earned a balance of 88 cents a share for the common stock against 48 cents in the third quarter.

FURTHER GAIN SEEN IN STEEL PRODUCTION

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The American Iron & Steel Institute estimates steel industry operations for this week at 26.3 per cent of capacity against 25 per cent a week ago, and 23.6 per cent a month ago. This is the highest operating rate reported since the last week in July.

The week's operations show a gain of 1.3 points or 5.2 per cent over those of the previous week.

There has been a slow but steady recovery in operations since the week of September 3, which marked the year's extreme low at 18.4 per cent of capacity. In the past three weeks the upturn amounted to 14.6 per cent which was in sharp contract with a year ago when mill activities were on the decline.

Raisin packers find that they can prevent the fruit from sticking together if they spray it with an oil made from the seeds of seeded raisins.

Market Outlook

by MAX BUCKINGHAM

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(UP)—The motor car industry tonight furnished Wall Street with more encouragement than any other section of the industrial picture.

There will be no session of the stock market tomorrow—all major security and commodity markets of the nation closing for the election—but there was a definite feeling of optimism prevalent. Today's excellent showing, prices gaining fractions to 2 points with more than 750,000 shares exchanged, left Wall Street in a cheered mood.

ITEMS OF CHEER.

Items which caused cheer:

Forecasts that 1935 auto production will be between 3,250,000 and 3,500,000 units compared with approximately 2,800,000 units this year. This would mean that other major producers would join with Henry Ford in lifting next year's production figures.

Some indications of a start in motor car demands for steel. This was reflected in the magazine Steel's analysis of the industry this week. In addition the American Iron & Steel Institute reported production this week at 26.3 per cent of capacity, the highest level since July 23, a gain of 1.3 points over the previous week.

Improved sentiment for automobile production increase next year, translated into the automobile equipment manufacturing industry.

HEAVY TRADE SEEN.

In addition to the automobile situation, proximity of the Christmas shopping season is being felt in the retail industry. Already stores nationwide are making plans for addition of 500,000 workers to handle the Christmas shopping rush and some forecasts call for the best holiday trading since 1928-1929. This is leading to interest in retail shares on the market which are advancing sharply in addition to particular rises in low-priced mercantiles on rumors of some new stock control coming into some of the companies.

Wall Street is apathetic toward tomorrow's election. Individual issues have attracted some attention, particularly the gubernatorial election in California, where Upton Sinclair seeks office on the EPIC plan issue. First indications of Sinclair's strength brought considerable selling of California issues plus rumors of a flight of capital from the western state. Since then, however, Wall Street's views have changed and these issues have recovered considerable of their losses.

INCREASE IS SHOWN IN IMPORTS, EXPORTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Trade between the United States and nations of the western hemisphere increased in both exports and imports during September as compared with the same month last year, while imports from the remainder of the world showed a falling off.

Exports to every continent were on the upgrade, the total for the entire world being $191,690,169 as compared with $160,119,098. Our imports for the world-at-large totaled $131,658,732 in September compared with $146,642,944 a year ago.

The largest increase in exports to any individual country was to the United Kingdom, where exports during September jumped to $40,119,254 as compared with $28,474,201. At the same time our imports from the United Kingdom dropped approximately 25 per cent, being $9,838,405 as compared with $12,093,455.

STYLISH CROCHETED SET.
Pattern 5251.

Here is Fashion's newest in crochet, designed by Alice Brooks. And if you want to be at all well-dressed this season, you must have crocheted accessories. This beret and scarf are one of those simple sets that have all the smartness that this handicraft now demands. Crocheted entirely in one color, you can add touches of color to your heart's content, for the stripes are bright contrasting threads drawn through. This set is to be had only in this Alice Brooks pattern.

In pattern 5251 you will find complete instructions for making the set shown; an illustration of it and the stitches needed; material requirements and color arrangements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents to Household Arts Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

NANCY PAGE

By FLORENCE La GANKE

Not so long ago I received a large number of quilt patch patterns from Mrs. M. E. Knecht, of Akron, Ohio. There were a number of familiar friends and a patch or two that were quite different. The one I am giving you today is one called "Sister's Choice." I have an idea that her sister looked over the whole collection and said, "Well, if I could have just one quilt made by you I would select this one. So we call it "Sister's Choice."

It is a variation of the bear's paws or any other creature's paws. But it differs from them in the placement of the five dark and the four lighter squares that make a nine patch of sorts in the center. It is not, strictly speaking, a nine patch but there is a close family resemblance. I wonder whether all the Nancy Page quilt club members can see it?"

"I am going to use plain white, plain yellow and a printed yellow and white block with the eight small printed triangles made of a darker yellow and white print. I may try to find that darker print in shades of yellow and orange and yellow and henna or yellow and green or yellow and lavender. "That sounds like a nice color scheme to me, but I am planning on a blue and pink quilt with white for background." And so the discussion went on.

But in the meantime the members were busily clipping the picture and directions from the paper. They were pasting them in the Nancy Page quilt scrap book. The pattern sheet with its piece life size but with no seams allowed for cutting had been sent for according to the directions included at the bottom of this column.

In selecting material the members were careful to select color fast material of medium fine quality. They avoided large patterned prints and they were careful not to get pieces of plain color that were as dark as those shown in the picture. When they are as dark as that, they stand out like sore thumbs in the quilt top.

This pattern may be an all-over one or one with sashing in plain color. The pieced blocks may be laid cornerwise with squares of plain between the pieced blocks.

The actual pattern for "Sister's Choice" Quilt Design may be obtained by sending three cents and a self-addressed stamped envelope to Nancy Page in care of The Atlanta Constitution. Back patterns may be secured by sending an additional three cents for each pattern requested.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyist.

Alternative Squeezes.

A very remarkable deal turned up in a local duplicate game. It was remarkable both for the swings produced by the bidding and for the opportunity offered in the play. The contract at diamonds with a club opening lead offers the opportunity to parallel a well-known double Dummy problem.

The player who reported this deal is confessedly reluctant to bid a grand slam in duplicate play. While every experienced match point player recognizes that there is no percentage in favor of bidding a grand slam as against being content with a small slam, this player has an aversion to grand slam bids that amounts to paranoia. But owing to the web of circumstances in which he was caught, the first bid that he made on the deal was seven diamonds!

West, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

North: ♠ A; ♡ A 3; ◇ 8 6; ♣ J 10 9 8 7 6 5 4
West: ♠ Q J 2; ♡ K 10 9 5 4; ◇ —; ♣ A K Q 3 2
East: ♠ K 10 9 8 6 5 4 3; ♡ 8 6 2; ◇ 9 3; ♣ —
South: ♠ 7; ♡ Q J 7; ◇ A K Q J 10 7 5 4 2; ♣ —

West	North	East	South
			Pass(1)
1♡	2♣	2♠	7◇(5)
4♠(2)	5♣(3)	6♠(4)	Pass
Dbl.	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—South was sure he would have another chance to bid and decided to wait until the opponents had bid a game and then bid five diamonds, hoping by this procedure to induce the opponents to be content with doubling five diamonds rather than going to a possible slam.

2—Not a bad bid since East has made a free spade bid, but motivated largely by the desire to induce North to try a five-club "save."

3—North "bites," having a counterplot of his own.

4—East falls for the triple cross! He is sure from West's jump assist and from North's evident desire to save that six spades is a certainty. North, with his two aces, licks his chops in pleasant anticipation.

5—And now South's Fabian tactics have put him on a choice spot. He has no inkling of whether the spade slam can be made, nor whether the diamond save will be worth while. The player took a deep breath and burst forth with a grand slam bid. It need scarcely be remarked that North moaned hollowly as he laid down the two aces after the opening lead of the club king.

The deal now offers a beautiful double dummy problem: South to make the grand slam at diamonds against any subsequent defense. The South player solved the problem as follows:

On the opening lead East discarded a heart. Declarer took a round of trumps, and when the trumps did not split, abandoned the idea of trying to ruff the third heart for fear of overruff by East. He led a few more rounds of trumps and then led the queen of hearts. West covered, and North won with the ace. A club ruff put South back to cash the rest of his trumps. North saved one club, the small heart and the spade ace. The lead of the spade to the ace now squeezed West in clubs and hearts, in which two suits he held the only stoppers.

It was immediately asserted by the East player that had West not covered the queen of hearts the contract could have been defeated. The South player then demonstrated that in this event he would have made his contract by a prettier form of the squeeze—the trump squeeze.

If the queen of hearts is allowed to hold, blocking the suit, the Declarer will at least preserved double entry into the North hand. He will lead all his trumps but one, North saving the two blank aces and two clubs. West will be compelled to save two clubs and two hearts. South retains two hearts, a spade and a trump. The lead of the spade to the ace now effects a trump squeeze. If West lets go a heart, North will cash the ace of hearts, setting up the jack. On the other hand, if West discards a club, North will lead a club for South to ruff, and the heart ace will then give re-entry to the long club.

Finally, it would be noted that East is helpless to save the situation by saving his third round heart stopper. If East fails to let go a heart on the opening club lead, South will simply take the heart finesse at once and after unblocking the suit, regain entry with a trump to lead and ruff out his third heart.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

BUILDING IN SOUTH GAINS 57 PER CENT

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 5.—(AP)—A 57 per cent increase in construction awards in the 16 southern states in the first 10 months of 1934, as compared to the same period in 1933, was reported today by the Manufacturers Record.

The biggest item in the $422,157,000 total for the 1934 period was $162,082,000 for roads, streets and paving, but the publication said "road work is not getting under way under the new federal program as rapidly as had been anticipated." It added, however, that "important lettings (of contracts for roads and streets) are planned for the near future, and following the award of contracts it may be possible to start work on many of the projects this year. In any event, recent lettings and awards shortly to be made insure a good volume of road work for the spring of 1935."

3 Per Cent Gain.

October construction awards in the 16 states were listed at $38,472,000, an increase of 3 per cent over September, but a decrease of nearly 30 per cent as compared with October, 1933.

Awards for road, street and bridge projects in October this year were reported at $12,365,000.

Industrial and engineering projects for the first 10 months this year totaled $148,815,000, general building $27,531,000, public buildings $83,729,000.

The Manufacturers Record said "A revival of activity in the field of gas production and distribution was noted in October. The award of contract by the Lone Star Gas Company of Dallas for the building of a $700,000 pipe line, was reported, and plans were announced for a line involving the expenditure of a like amount for another Texas firm.

TVA Award.

"The Tennessee Valley Authority, in connection with construction of Norris and Wheeler dams, and other power and navigation projects in its ambitious program awarded contracts for cement involving over $2,000,000." It said an "outstanding new project" was the beginning of construction on a new motor car and motor truck assembly plant at Baltimore for the Chevrolet Motor Company, of Detroit. The general contract price, it said, "totals $1,234,000, and the technical contracts are yet to be awarded; besides, the manufacturer will supply and install a wide variety of equipment necessary for production of 85,000 complete units annually."

Levee, revetment, dike and seawall construction awards in October were reported at $4,317,000. The major portion of the work is on the Mississippi river and its tributaries.

Naval Stores Quota Is Fixed for 1935

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace today approved a quota of 450,000 units as the quantity of gum turpentine and gum rosin to be marketed during 1935 by processors.

The quota was set by the control committee for the industry subject to the approval of the secretary.

The Netherlands has decreed that the word Dutch is not to be used officially, and the familiar Dutch East Indies becomes Netherland India.

TARZAN AND THE LION MAN No. 44
By Edgar Rice Burroughs

When Eyad showed interest in having one of the white girls for his harem, Atewy pressed his point, "But you will not get one, for the sheik is going to keep them both. And you know, too, that the sheik's share of the diamonds will be a fourth. If there were no sheik, we should divide more!"

Shrewdly Atewy continued: "No, Eyad, we shall not fare very well—unless—" "Unless what?" "Unless an accident should befall Ab el-Ghrennem!" "Accidents befall sheiks even as they befall others," Eyad announced philosophically. Thus content with the germ of their plot, the conspirators lay down and slept.

Meanwhile, with mind alert, Rhonda Terry lay listening to the diminishing sounds of the camp and watching the lone sentry who squatted half-dozing at the fire, his back toward her. She leaned over and whispered to Naomi: "When I get up, follow me. That's all you have to do; but don't make any noise!"

"What are you going to do? We can't go out there in the forest—with the lions! And if the Arabs catch us trying to escape, they'll kill us!" Naomi's voice quavered in rhythm with her trembling body. "Shut up, and do as I tell you!" Rhonda replied sharply under her breath. "Come on! Quick!"

DRIVE CAREFULLY TODAY

DRIVERS NOT MIND READERS

A hand signal is worth very little unless it is an intelligent one. It is sometimes difficult to tell whether the driver of a car is flicking off cigar ashes, waving to an acquaintance, or signalling that he is about to turn. Merely thrusting the arm out the left side of the car in a haphazard fashion does not constitute a proper signal. Both the driver of the car approaching from the rear and the driver who may be approaching from the opposite direction should get a clear impression of what the person signalling intends to do. The signal should be given while at least 50 feet away from the corner where the turn is to be made.

DAILY SHORT STORY

JULIET'S FALL

June Never Suspected Her Jealous Husband Would Bring Tragedy Into the Balcony Scene.

By GLENN REILLY.

The tour was ending. For 11 work-packed weeks the Delancey Stock Company had toiled its way across almost as many states in an effort to bring to the rural American public its interpretation of Shakespeare at his best; and now success, in the form of a New York booking, was in sight.

For 11 weeks the company had been making dramatic history, largely through the efforts of June Nichols and Charles Riggs, the romantic leads, who were Mr. and Mrs. off-stage.

Something about the young couple had invariably made the audience decide to stop sitting on its collective hands and respond wholeheartedly. Maybe it was because their acting had spelled romance in big letters, for the two had been so manifestly in love that they couldn't help putting the idea across the footlights.

The young couple had seemed to be sky-rocketing to success, until a green phantom of jealousy had intervened, and the rocket had burst in midair.

Riggs smiled a bit sardonically to himself as he thought of this while waiting in the wings for the first-act curtain.

"They'll get a real bit of acting this evening," he decided grimly, as he ran over the script of 'Romeo and Juliet' to refresh his memory.

The irony of the situation appealed to Riggs' dramatic imagination. In a few moments he would be repeating literature's most famous love poet-

Rigg's eyes raised from the script and he stared unseeingly at the asbestos curtain, lips compressed tightly. He and his wife would make love tonight for the last time. Never, he thought, would he let her have another. Especially not a man like Dornford Bates, the company's manager.

Throughout the 11 weeks of the run Bates had been paying more than a professional interest to June. And, considering his reputation, as a Don Juan, as well as the fact that through him one could advance materially in the theater, it was no wonder that Riggs had become speculative, then downright apprehensive. Of late relationships between himself and June had gradually become strained and last night had been the climax.

Passing June's dressing room before the evening show, Riggs had heard voices issuing from the slightly opened door, her voice and that of Bates. Suspicious, he had listened in cold rage while the two arranged for a meeting after the show the following evening.

"You'll get used to being away from your husband if you expect to get places, honey," Bates had said. "I have some business upstate tomorrow, but I'll hurry back in time for the date, you can bet."

Riggs had crept away, stunned by his wife's scheming. Ever since he had planned and fought within himself to find a solution—but all his ideas were thwarted by the one fact: June was fickle. Riggs knew a meeting with Bates could mean but one thing. He would kill June rather than that.

During the afternoon he had gone out upon the deserted stage and laboriously filed the steel bolts which secured the railing used in the balcony scene. From where he stood in the wings Riggs could see the balcony now, hidden from the audience by the heavy backdrop.

When June leaned on the railing it would give way, and she would fall a good 10 feet. In his mind's eye he could vision it.

Riggs sobbed, and he clutched the curtain passionately. June—his June! So she had been merely acting, after all.

His face suddenly resumed its mask-like appearance as he heard June's voice, and he turned to see her descending the stairway from the dressing room. Picking up the trailing end of her skirt, she crossed with a lithe step to where Riggs was standing and put a graceful hand on his arm as she peeped through the curtain. "How is the house tonight, Charles?" she asked.

"Full and all set for some real romance, June," he replied woodenly. He hoped that she had failed to notice that his arm had grown tense at her touch.

The play dragged on interminably for Riggs. June was playing admirably, and she seemed more beautiful and desirable than ever before. A growing sense of unreality enveloped Riggs as the fatal scene approached.

Suddenly Riggs knew that he didn't want June to die. He could win her back. He'd tell her Bates' true character, and she'd see her error. They could go right on being the romantic couple of the theater. June must love him; she must.

As in a dream he heard, "Romeo, Romeo, wherefore art thou, Romeo?" June's hands were resting lightly on the railing. He must warn her quickly before she leaned over to watch for his coming. He must call—

There was a hollow, snapping sound, and she fell before him, still clinging to the broken railing.

"June!" his choked scream was cut short by the impact of her falling body. He stopped swiftly and gathered her into his arms, murmuring inarticulate words of remorse. June was horribly limp and still.

Instantly there was pandemonium. The curtain was rung down, and in the sudden hubbub the actors and prop men surged about the prostrate pair.

In the midst of the ensuing excitement, while a hastily called ambulance was picking up June's broken form and the police were questioning Riggs, the call boy handed Burke, the assistant director, a telegram. Tearing it open, he read aloud: "Dornford Bates killed in auto crash while hurrying back to the theater. Details later."

Tomorrow: "His Mother," by Marguerite Tinsley, is a humorously pathetic story of young Nate who wanted to be loyal to his dead mother and decided to run away when his father married a second wife.
